

RBC Global Bond & Currency Fund

Investment Objective

To provide total returns comprised of interest income and some capital growth. The fund invests primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the underlying funds), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in high-quality fixed-income securities issued internationally by Canadian and foreign governments and emerging market currencies. The fund may also invest in fixed-income securities issued by Canadian and foreign corporations and supranational agencies like the World Bank.

Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2018

The Fund was launched on January 29, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Risks to emerging-market assets are fairly well known: a withdrawal of stimulus by global central banks; increased trade protectionism; and important elections in Brazil, Turkey and India. Of these risks, it is trade tensions between the U.S. and China that will be most important in the fourth quarter. As U.S. mid-term elections near, anti-China rhetoric from politicians will likely become more hostile. While conscious of these risks, the portfolio manager recognizes that emerging-market currencies have weakened substantially and now appear to offer more attractive valuations.

The Fund should provide some protection for investors in a rising interest-rate environment as challenging returns for global bonds are offset by returns in emerging-market currencies. Given recent declines in emerging markets, the portfolio manager plans to look for opportunities to increase the Fund's holdings of emerging-market currencies at the expense of global bonds. Over the long term, the portfolio manager expects that investing in emerging-market currencies, especially from a Canadian investor's perspective, could provide a return stream that complements global bonds in almost all market environments.
