

RBC O'Shaughnessy U.S. Value Fund (Unhedged)

Investment Objective

To provide long-term total returns, consisting of capital growth and current income. The fund invests primarily in equity securities of U.S. companies based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy. Strategy Indexing is a rigorous and disciplined approach to stock selection based on characteristics associated with above average returns over long periods of time. Stocks, including American Depository Receipts (ADRs), are bought and held over the course of each year, with no attempt to "time the markets".

Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2018

From a factor perspective, our exposure to higher beta stocks had a positive impact on performance. An overweight exposure to the Momentum factor was also a positive. We do not specifically seek strong Momentum in the strategy, but the overweight is a result of our explicitly screening out poor Momentum. The largest factor detractors were our exposure to smaller capitalization names than the benchmark and an overweight to stocks with strong Financial Strength.

From a sector perspective, allocation effects were negative and selection effects were positive. Real Estate and Utilities were the top contributors to allocation effects. Meanwhile, Health Care and Consumer Discretionary were the top detractors. Consumer Discretionary and Energy were the top contributors to selection effects. Meanwhile, Information Technology and Consumer Staples were the top detractors.

Based on our key themes, we believe the Fund is well positioned versus its benchmark and relative to the overall market. The portfolio's companies have higher levels of return on capital, lower reliance on external financing, and trade at deep discounts across several valuation factors. They are also returning capital to shareholders at significantly higher rates than the benchmark.

These combined advantages can only be delivered by a portfolio which is distinct from the benchmark. We believe that the portfolio continues to represent a unique take on the U.S. market. As the year progresses, we will continue to focus on our niche of the market: quality companies, often trading at out-of-favor prices, which are aggressively returning capital to equity shareholders through dividends and share repurchases.
