Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2017

The Canadian equity market, as measured by the S&P/TSX Capped Composite Index, exceeded most global markets over Q3. Persistently improving oil prices, positive economic results and a strong Canadian dollar were the main drivers responsible for this outperformance. The Energy sector's insistent hindrance on the Canadian equity market subsided during Q3, particularly in the latter half. Oil prices increased as a result of declining inventory levels, which elevated stock prices for many producers in the industry. Strong performance in the Financials sector raised the level of the Canadian equity market as well. The Bank of Canada's most recent interest rate hike, on the back of a strong gross domestic product report, boded well for numerous stocks in the Financials sector. More specifically, insurance companies were the main beneficiaries of higher domestic bond yields over the past three months.

The Fund's overweight exposure to the Energy sector was the largest inhibitor to relative performance this quarter as positions in Tourmaline Oil Corp. and Seven Generations Energy Ltd. were significant detractors. While returns began to improve as oil prices recovered, the prolonged weakness that preceded the recent recovery muted performance for the two stocks during the period. Nonetheless, each company remains a core holding as a result of its attractive valuations and strong growth characteristics.

The Fund's holdings in Materials were an area of strength over Q3. A key position in Polaris Materials Corp. and an overweight position in Dollarama provided strong positive returns. Dollarama delivered strong earnings per share growth in Q3 driven by the continued rollout of new stores, higher price point items and constant focus on improving productivity. Dollarama continues to have a multi-year opportunity to expand its Canadian store base.

The Fund's trading activity is a function of our disciplined fundamental research process and approach to portfolio construction, which optimize position sizes to match fundamental conviction and minimize exposure to unpredictable risk factors.
