Quarterly Commentary as at December 31, 2018

The largest contributor to relative returns this quarter was our holding in Indian financial HDFC Bank, whose stock rose by nearly 10% over the quarter on perceived margin expansion in 2019, together with a relatively resilient Indian equity market. Our holding in Swiss pharmaceutical giant Roche reported third-quarter sales results that beat all expectations, and U.S.-domiciled financial trading platform MarketAxess appreciated after third-quarter earnings came in ahead of expectations.

The biggest detractor from relative returns in the fourth quarter was our holding in U.S. onshore oil and gas e&p company EOG Resources, whose share price fell together with the dramatic sell-off in oil prices. Holdings in U.S. early-stage lender SVB and German postal and logistics group Deutsche Post DHL were also among the top detractors this quarter. SVB sold off after management suggested that the rate of loan growth would slow temporarily into 2019 and Deutsche Post's share price declined on softer third-quarter earnings and concerns of a slowdown in global trade.

In the fourth quarter, it appeared that the decade-long period of monetary stimulus and benign-rate conditions were coming to an end. An uncertain political environment of trade wars and populist politics led to significant negative returns for equities globally. The U.S. Federal Reserve Board was clear about its intent to raise interest rates steadily, U.S.-China tensions rumbled on and seem unlikely to conclude any time soon, and Europe's polarising political landscape persisted. China has internal indebtedness issues and a slowing economy, and many emerging markets have suffered from a strong U.S. dollar, rising U.S. interest rates and elevated oil prices.

As always, the RBC Global Equity team remains committed to discovering companies that we believe will become future success stories. We are constantly searching for compelling long-term opportunities at the right valuations, while avoiding those businesses that are overvalued or that seem cheap but in fact are fundamentally flawed.
