Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2018

The accelerating U.S. economy and trade were the big stories in the third quarter of 2018. Concern that Canada would be omitted from a renegotiated trade pact between the U.S. and Mexico were alleviated at the end of the period, with the announcement of an agreement. The U.S. raised pressure on China to open up its economy, but by quarter-end there was scant evidence that the conflict had done much to hinder the U.S. economic expansion.

The Fund's overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a positive impact on performance. Global equities were mixed during the quarter, with the S&P 500 Index rising to an all-time high while many other markets posted negative returns. The performance of emerging markets was especially negative given the trade tensions and a relatively strong U.S. dollar. Returns were bolstered by the Phillips, Hager & North U.S. Multi-Style All-Cap Equity Fund and the RBC QUBE U.S. Equity Fund.

Returns in major fixed-income markets were negative, as interest rates moved mostly higher. Japanese fixed income underperformed as the central bank allowed interest rates to fluctuate outside the narrow band that had been in effect, while European bonds were hurt by concern about Brexit and proposals to boost Italian government spending. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the portfolio were held back by the RBC Bond Fund and the RBC Global Bond Fund.

Economic growth is strong in the U.S., but many other economies are slowing. Protectionism and Chinese economic deceleration are among the risks threatening the solid, albeit moderating, growth. While we expect continued expansion, the slowdown has led us to lower our developed-world growth forecasts. Exposure to bonds was recently increased, sourced from cash. Our asset mix remains slightly underweight fixed income and overweight stocks.
