Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2018

Global trade suffered a setback in the first quarter of 2018 as U.S. President Trump threatened to impose trade tariffs on China and, to a lesser degree, allies in Europe and North America. However, economic growth remained robust in most areas of the world.

The Fund's overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a positive impact on performance. Government-bond yields rose significantly around the globe during the first quarter, especially in the U.S. and Europe. Canada's bond market outperformed as the country's weakening economy held yields down. RBC Global Corporate Bond Fund had a negative impact on returns while BlueBay Global Monthly Income Bond Fund was among portfolio investments with a positive impact.

Global equities posted modest losses, reversing gains earlier in the period, on concerns about rising inflation and the potential for a trade war.

Canadian stocks underperformed due in part to a housing slowdown and worries that the Energy sector is falling behind on pipeline infrastructure. RBC Canadian Dividend Fund had a negative impact on returns, offset by the positive impact of investments such as RBC Global Equity Focus Fund.

We expect the global economy to grow at its fastest pace since the financial crisis, allowing central banks to continue dialing back monetary accommodation. In our view, stocks will continue to outperform bonds in this rising-rate environment, but we recently added to our fixed-income exposure as bonds can help offset equity-market volatility in a balanced portfolio. We remain overweight stocks and underweight bonds, but our asset mix is closer to neutral than it has been in many years, given the maturation in the business cycle and demanding valuations.
