Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2017

Security selection and asset allocation both contributed to relative performance.

From an asset allocation perspective, the largest contributor to performance was our overweight position in Information Technology. Our small overweight position in Energy was the biggest detractor as the sector ended the quarter on weakness.

At the security selection level, our holdings in the Consumer Staples and Health Care sectors contributed the most to relative performance. The largest contributor was our overweight position in the Anglo-Dutch Global giant, Unilever (Consumer Staples, 39 bps). The second largest contributor was British American Tobacco, one of the world's five largest tobacco companies based in the UK (Consumer Staples, 34bps). The largest detractor was stock selection within the Industrials sector. The most significant detractor was French Gaztransport Et Technigaz (Energy, -31bps).

The value rally which was the hallmark of the second half of 2016 seems to have paused. Investor sentiment appears to be buoyed by the strengthening of corporate profitability and return to growth and the expectation of a more benign fiscal environment. This is despite continuing questions around political stability with potential for disruptions particularly in France and Italy. In the current environment, domestically-exposed stocks may return to favour with those exhibiting highest potential growth in revenue emerging as winners.

We are, as always, cognisant of the wider macro environment both for its challenges and opportunities. Nevertheless, our focus remains on the discipline of long-term investing in companies with strong competitive positions, low capital intensity, sustainable and/or improving profitability and the right management strategy and governance structures.
