Quarterly Commentary as at June 30, 2017

The Consumer Discretionary and Health Care sectors were the leading contributors to Fund performance while the Information Technology sector detracted from the benchmark during the past quarter. The top absolute contributor was Peptidream Inc, a biopharmaceutical company that boasts technological collaborations with some of the world's largest pharmaceuticals. Softbank Group also contributed positively to Fund outperformance as investors welcomed the addition of its US$100bn investment fund which should boost its earnings outlook. Softbank's investment in Alibaba Group provided a lift in sentiment for Softbank shareholders after Alibaba reported record earnings during the period.

The Fund's positioning in the Information Technology sector detracted from fund performance. The Fund continues to favor the Telecommunication Services and Health Care sectors while underweighting Industrials, Real Estate and Utilities.

Economic data from Japan has been reasonably encouraging, which has led to gains in the index year to date. Abenomics, with its accommodative fiscal and monetary policies deserves credit for Japan's improving economic position.

Prime Minister Abe's position remains strong despite the recent setback his LDP party suffered in the Tokyo elections. He continues to push forward on longer term structural reforms. The Bank of Japan's (BoJ's) Governor Kuroda is expected to be reappointed when his term ends in April 2018, to ensure the BoJ continues its yield curve control policy while scaling back the pace of its Japanese government bond purchasing. Abe's stimulus packages continue to focus on infrastructure projects, wage growth and consumption, which should help stimulate growth over the next two years. Lastly, we have been encouraged to see a gradual improvement in corporate governance that should lead to better investor returns.
