Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2018

Following a slow start first half of the year for the portfolio, we are starting to see signs of a shift in investor sentiment to more economically-sensitive sectors. We have benefited from this rotation particularly as attention has turned to companies executing well, but which had not experienced outsized multiple expansion. We continue to believe that our portfolio is very attractively positioned, and we feel that we are extremely well set up for the future.

The Fund trailed its Russell Midcap Value benchmark for the quarter as adverse stock selection detracted from returns, while sector allocation decisions added slightly to returns. Favorable stock selection within the Energy, Utilities, and Information Technology sectors were more than offset by adverse stock selection within the Consumer Discretionary and Industrials sectors. From a sector allocation standpoint, the moderate overweight to the relatively strong performing Industrials sector added to returns.

The Fund's strategy seeks to be invested in companies with attractive business fundamentals whose stocks are trading at a discount. Overall positioning of the portfolio is done primarily on a bottom-up basis with relative valuation gaps influencing portfolio construction within defined limits. The portfolio continues to be based on the premise that a diversified portfolio of companies with attractive return characteristics, opportunity for improvement, and low absolute and relative stock valuation metrics provide an attractive investment option and at times exploit excesses that arise in both bear and bull markets.
