Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2017

The U.S. economic growth acceleration that began in the middle of last year has largely continued into Q3. Major equity indices hit record highs in Q3, shrugging off escalating geo-political tensions between the U.S. and North Korea as well as two consecutive category 4 hurricanes that ravaged the south. However, the preference for “risk off” sectors of the market has been an important theme this year and continued for the most part in Q3 as Washington’s continued lack of clarity or action on any major pro-growth fiscal policies promised by the Trump administration has weighed on the more economically sensitive areas of the market.

The Fund’s outperformance was driven by favorable stock selection, while sector allocation decisions had a modestly positive impact. Favorable stock selection in the Consumer Discretionary, Materials, and Telecommunication Services sectors contributed the most to returns and outweighed adverse stock selection in the Industrials and Financials sectors. In terms of sector allocation, significant overweight to the strong performing Industrials sector aided returns. At the end of Q3 we started to see a shift in market leadership from large caps to small caps and from growth to value stocks as well as a reversal to more “risk-on” sentiment, all of which benefitted the Fund.

The Fund focuses on neglected small cap companies with attractive long-term fundamentals, near-term profitability improvement potential, and low relative valuations. The strategy emphasizes market leaders with proven products or services, sustainable competitive advantages, solid balance sheets, and attractive cash flows. Downside protection is sought through a superior return on equity and balance sheet profile of the portfolio compared to the index and the market leadership positions of most portfolio companies.
