Quarterly Commentary as at December 31, 2017

The major story of the fourth quarter 2017 was the passage of the Tax Reform Bill – the largest overhaul of the U.S. tax system in more than 30 years, and the Republican Party’s first major legislative win under President Trump. The ~$1.5T plan, which goes into effect in 2018, will cut the corporate tax rate from 35% to 21%. While the late quarter passage of the bill ultimately limited its impact on market returns in the 4th quarter, the anticipation and subsequent passage of this bill along with continued strong economic data helped infuse the markets with optimism heading into year-end.

The Fund’s outperformance was driven by both favorable stock selection and sector allocation decisions. Favorable stock selection in the Industrials and Information Technology sectors more than outweighed adverse selection in the Consumer Discretionary and Energy sectors. The Fund’s significant overweight to the economically sensitive Industrials and Consumer Discretionary sectors added the most to performance from a sector allocation standpoint.

The Fund focuses on neglected small cap companies with attractive long-term fundamentals, near-term profitability improvement potential, and low relative valuations. The strategy emphasizes market leaders with proven products or services, sustainable competitive advantages, solid balance sheets, and attractive cash flows. While sector weightings are a result of bottom-up research and stock selection, and the strategy remains positioned for economic recovery. Downside protection is provided by the superior return on equity and balance sheet profile of the Fund compared to the index and the market leadership positions of most portfolio companies.
