Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2017

The Fund enjoyed a decent return in the first quarter as interest rates paused from the abrupt upward turn that occurred late last year and ended the first quarter slightly lower than where they began it.

We entered the year with a view that the abrupt upward turn in interest rates that occurred last year was “too much, too fast,” and the Fund was positioned with a slightly longer duration than its benchmark (a stance carried over from last year). However, this position did not last long, as the murkiness of a regime shift from monetary (i.e., low central bank interest rates) to fiscal (i.e., government spending) stimulation clouded our view. We returned to a modestly short duration strategy by quarter end with a view that the most likely direction for interest rates, once again, is upward. Despite this relatively high level of activity, rate strategies were neutral to performance as interest rates remained range-bound for most of the quarter.

Corporate and provincial bonds continued to outperform Government of Canada bonds this quarter, as low interest rates fueled investor demand for additional yield, and slow but persistent economic growth provided the required confidence in creditworthiness. While we remained overweight in both of these sectors, we were mindful of the length of the rally and the extent of credit spread tightening. With this in mind, we reduced the size of the Fund's overweight position in both provincial and corporate bonds to hedge against the possibility of a negative event or repricing of risk that would lead to a rewidening of spreads. We also continued to “upgrade” the corporate bonds in the Fund to higher quality issues and less cyclical industries. These strategies added to Fund performance in the first quarter.

The Fund also held small out-of-benchmark positions in real return bonds and U.S. Treasury bonds. The former reflects a view that long-term inflation will be higher than the 1.5% that was expected when we entered the position, while the latter provides portfolio “insurance” in the event of a risk sell-off or outperformance of U.S. rates.
