Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2017

The Fund's performance this quarter was driven by holdings including Shopify, StorageVault Canada, and UrtheCast.

Shopify is a technology platform that offers cloud-based, multi-channel e-Commerce solutions designed for small- and medium-sized businesses. Merchants are offered a comprehensive set of solutions to run their business across various sales channels, providing them with a single view of their business and customers while enabling them to manage from one integrated back office. The platform also generates rich data to help inform a merchant's strategic decisions. Shopify continues to be viewed as the runaway leader in the space, and should continue to experience outsized relative growth.

StorageVault Canada has a unique growth opportunity, driven by its exclusive right to acquire assets from Canada's largest self-storage company, Access Self Storage, and a chance to consolidate the highly fragmented Canadian storage market. Coupled with steady organic growth, this investment can create significant shareholder value over the coming years. So far in 2017, the company has announced or completed acquisitions of over $400 million of properties, already significantly more than the company's annual guidance of $50 million in acquisitions.

UrtheCast serves the rapidly evolving geospatial and geoanalytics markets by operating Earth observation sensors in space, including two satellites, to produce imagery data. The company recently signed a definitive agreement to sell a pair of ultra-high resolution satellites and is expected to convert two other agreements for a total commitment of US$490 million. Converting these will provide significant build-phase revenue for the next three years. The company also recently secured an anchor customer for data from the pending UrtheDaily Constellation, further increasing the potential upside.

We added DHX Media during the quarter, and raised our weightings in a number of names, including Algonquin Power & Utilities, Canyon Services Group and UrtheCast. We reduced weightings in various holdings, including Interfor, Milestone Apartments REIT and the Toronto Dominion Bank. We eliminated Aecon, Crius Energy, Methanex, Norbord and TransAlta Renewables from the portfolio.
