

PH&N Overseas Equity Fund

Investment Objective

To achieve long-term capital growth by investing primarily in a diversified portfolio of common stocks in companies in the world's largest industrialized countries outside North America, including countries in Europe and the Far East, including Japan and Australia. This Fund is different from the Global Equity Fund because the primary focus of its investments does not include companies in the United States.

Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2017

Indian financial HDFC Bank was the biggest contributor in the quarter as realizations grew that India's demonetization program should prove beneficial to Indian banks. The second-largest contributor was Dutch semiconductor developer ASML, on the back of strong demand for the company's technology from chip manufacturers. Dutch paint manufacturer Akzo Nobel followed, as a bid from U.S. rival PPG Industries drove Akzo's share price higher.

The biggest detractor was Japanese pharmaceutical company Astellas Pharma due to concerns that U.S. legislation could impact drug pricing. Danish pharmaceutical Novo Nordisk was the second-biggest detractor, as U.S. execution and senior staff turnover were negatives for performance.

The driver of strong equity performance is unclear, especially in a quarter where we have witnessed an average year's worth of returns in just three months. Clearly the growth outlook is improving, although we are unsure if this will be enough to sustain market returns at similar levels in coming quarters.

There are some obvious roadblocks ahead. It is unlikely that the Trump administration will be able to legislate as radically or as quickly as initially thought – China still has to grapple with a loose money supply and an ongoing property bubble, and Europe is veiled in political uncertainty with critical elections on the horizon in France and Germany, alongside negotiations for the U.K.'s exit from the European Union.

As always the Global Equity team attempts to navigate this uncertain backdrop by investing only in companies deemed to be successful in the future. We are constantly searching for compelling long-term opportunities at the right valuations, while avoiding businesses that are overvalued or optically cheap, but fundamentally flawed.
