

RBC Target 2030 Education Fund

Investment Objective

This fund is an asset allocation fund specifically designed to meet the changing needs of investors who are saving money for the purpose of funding a post-secondary education that commences around 2030. The fund gradually shifts its asset mix from an emphasis on equity funds, in its early years, to an emphasis on money market funds as its "target" date (2030) approaches. Over the life of the fund, its portfolio will shift from a focus on funds with growth potential to a focus on funds that will preserve capital.

Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2018

The accelerating U.S. economy and trade were the big stories in the third quarter of 2018. Concern that Canada would be omitted from a renegotiated trade pact between the U.S. and Mexico were alleviated at the end of the period, with the announcement of an agreement. The U.S. raised pressure on China to open up its economy, but by quarter-end there was scant evidence that the conflict had done much to hinder the U.S. economic expansion.

Returns in major fixed-income markets were negative, as interest rates moved mostly higher. Japanese fixed income underperformed as the central bank allowed interest rates to fluctuate outside the narrow band that had been in effect, while European bonds were hurt by concern about Brexit and proposals to boost Italian government spending. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the portfolio were held back by the RBC Bond Fund and the Phillips, Hager & North Total Return Bond Fund.

Global equities were mixed during the quarter, with the S&P 500 Index rising to an all-time high while many other markets posted negative returns. The performance of emerging markets was especially negative given the trade tensions and a relatively strong U.S. dollar. Returns were bolstered by the RBC Private U.S. Large-Cap Core Equity Pool and the RBC U.S. Equity Fund.

If the economy continues to expand as we expect, tightening central-bank policy will likely lead to higher bond yields, which will act as a headwind to bond returns. Stocks offer more attractive upside as we think economic growth will be sufficient to drive further gains in corporate profits and revenues. Given the aging business cycle and the fact that U.S. equities are above fair value, we caution investors to expect lower total returns and heightened levels of volatility over the coming quarters.
