Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2017

Unlike its Canadian counterpart, the U.S. Federal Reserve (Fed) did not change its policy rate this quarter, leaving it at the 1.00-1.25% level. Like the Bank of Canada (BoC), the Fed reiterated the data-dependent nature of its future monetary policy moves. Looking forward, market participants expect a slower pace of rate hikes from the Fed than the beginning of the year, with another one to three rate hikes through the end of 2018. As the Fed continues to move toward a more normal monetary policy, we expect short-term interest rates in the U.S. to follow suit, which should translate into higher reinvestment rates for investors going forward.

PH&N U.S. Money Market Fund's strategy going forward continues to focus on preserving capital while maximizing yield by investing in high-quality securities that pay an incremental yield over and above what is available from U.S. Government Treasury Bills. To this end, the Fund is predominantly invested in corporate securities such as asset-backed commercial paper, bankers' acceptances and commercial paper of high-quality corporate borrowers and, to a lesser extent, the U.S. dollar-denominated debt of Canadian provinces. As always, safety of principal and return of capital are not compromised and remain the primary objectives of the Fund.
