Quarterly Commentary as at June 30, 2017

During Q2, an overweight exposure to Momentum, the primary stock selection factor, slightly detracted -0.01% from returns. An overweight to Value negatively impacted performance by -1.76%. A greater exposure to smaller stocks contributed 0.61% to returns.

Expensive Momentum names within Biotechnology have outperformed the market by large margins. Low Volatility names, which historically outperform the overall market, lagged the benchmark for this period. Names with strong balance sheets and least aggressive accounting have also underperformed. These conditions have created headwinds for the strategy to start out the year.

Overall allocation effects detracted from returns while overall security selection effects contributed to returns for Q2. An overweight allocation to Financials and an underweight allocation to Health Care detracted from returns while a slight underweight allocation to Consumer Staples contributed to returns. Security selection within Financials, Energy, and Consumer Discretionary aided returns while security selection within Information Technology, Industrials, and Real Estate hurt returns.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. This policy had a positive effect on returns during Q2.

We believe long term success comes from building a portfolio around proven stock selection factors. Based on these key themes, the Fund is very well positioned versus its benchmark and relative to the overall market. The Fund's companies have higher momentum, lower debt ratios, and trade at deep discounts across a number of valuation factors. They are also returning capital to shareholders by buying back shares instead of diluting shareholders like the average company in the index.
