Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2018

An overweight allocation to the Growth factor and an underweight allocation to the Size factor contributed to returns for the quarter, supported by an overweight allocation to the Momentum factor. An overweight allocation to the Value factor was the largest detractor from returns for the quarter.

Overall allocation effects and security-selection effects contributed to returns for the first quarter. Within security selection, holdings in Industrials, Financials, Consumer Discretionary and Energy aided returns while Information Technology (IT), Consumer Staples and Health Care detracted. An overweight allocation to IT and underweight allocations to Real Estate and Energy contributed to performance while an overweight allocation to Consumer Staples hurt performance.

Based on our key themes, we believe the Fund is well positioned versus its benchmark and relative to the overall market. The portfolio's companies have higher levels of return on capital as well as lower reliance on external financing, and they trade at deep discounts across a number of valuation factors. They are also returning capital to shareholders at three times the benchmark rate. These combined advantages can only be delivered by a portfolio which is distinct from the benchmark. Our active share of 88% means that the portfolio continues to represent a unique take on the U.S. market.

As the year progresses, we will continue to focus on our niche of the market: quality companies, often trading at out-of-favour prices, which are aggressively returning capital to equity shareholders through dividends and share repurchases. Given the weight of the evidence – across decades of testing and more than 15 years of live performance – we expect strong performance in the future.
