Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2017

This quarter, the Fund underperformed its benchmark, the S&P/TSX Capped Composite Total Return Index.

The Canadian equity market, as measured by the S&P/TSX Capped Composite Index, continued its ascent to begin the year. Many themes that were prevalent in the market – including increased optimism over the possibility of tax cuts and higher infrastructure spending, along with improving global economic growth and stronger corporate earnings – resulted in positive absolute performance for the Canadian equity market. Despite a slight contraction in the latter half of the quarter due to uncertainties surrounding the implementation of proposed Trump policies, 9 of 11 sectors ended in positive territory. This was led by Utilities, which benefitted this quarter after interest rates retraced following the sharp rise after the U.S. election. While equity performance was generally positive, the Energy sector was negative this quarter due to falling oil prices, which represented a reversal from the past few quarters.

The Fund's overweight exposure to companies most sensitive to oil prices was the largest detractor from relative performance this quarter. After a remarkable recovery in 2016, the rise in the price of oil has recently slowed. Higher-than-expected U.S. inventory data, along with uncertainty over an extension of the OPEC agreement on production cuts, caused the price of oil to drop below US$50 per barrel higher leverage to oil prices.

The Utilities sector rebounded this quarter after recent weakness stemming from rising interest rates along with defensive sector rotations. After adding to our overweight position last quarter, Brookfield Infrastructure Partners contributed positively this quarter. Brookfield is a capable operator with a unique portfolio of irreplaceable global infrastructure assets and significant visible growth.

The Fund's trading activity is a function of our investment process. Our disciplined fundamental research process and approach to portfolio construction serve as a base to optimize position sizes to match fundamental conviction and minimize exposure to less repeatable, unintended risk factors.
