Quarterly Commentary as at June 30, 2017

During Q2, an overweight exposure to Momentum, the primary stock selection factor, added 0.14% to returns. An overweight to Value negatively impacted performance by -1.70%. An overweight to smaller stocks was the largest contributor for Q2, contributing 0.43% to performance.

Expensive Momentum names within Biotechnology have outperformed the market by large margins. Low Volatility names, which historically outperform the overall market, lagged the benchmark for this period. Names with strong balance sheets and least aggressive accounting have also underperformed. These conditions have created headwinds for the strategy to start out the year.

Overall allocation effects and security selection effects detracted from returns for Q2. Underweight allocations to Health Care and Energy detracted from returns while an underweight allocation to Consumer Discretionary aided returns. Security selection within Energy and Consumer Staples contributed to performance while security selection within Information Technology and Financials detracted from performance.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. This policy had a positive effect on returns during the period.

We believe long term success comes from building a portfolio around proven stock selection factors. Based on these key themes, the Fund is very well positioned versus its benchmark and relative to the overall market. The Fund's companies have higher momentum, lower debt ratios, and trade at deep discounts across a number of valuation factors. They are also returning capital to shareholders by buying back shares instead of diluting shareholders like the average company in the index.
