Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2018

During the quarter, a large overweight exposure to Momentum was the largest contributor to returns while an overweight allocation to the Value factor and an underweight allocation to the Size factor detracted from performance. The Fund's strategy screens out the most poorly ranked names through Earnings Quality, Financial Strength, and Earnings Growth. The performance of these quality themes was marginally positive in aggregate for the quarter.

Overall allocation effects contributed to returns while security-selection effects detracted in the first quarter. Within security selection, holdings in Information Technology (IT), Industrials and Financials detracted from performance while Real Estate and Materials were positive contributors. An underweight allocation to Real Estate and an overweight allocation to IT also contributed to returns while an overweight allocation to Consumer Discretionary detracted.

Above all else, we believe that long-term success comes from building a portfolio around proven stock selection factors, measured using key selection criteria such as quality, valuation and momentum. Based on these key themes, the strategy is very well positioned versus its benchmark and relative to the overall market. The portfolio's companies have higher momentum as well as lower debt ratios, and trade at deep discounts across a number of valuation factors. They are also less dilutive, returning capital to shareholders by buying back shares instead of diluting shareholders like the average company in the Index.

These combined advantages can only be delivered by a portfolio which is distinct from the benchmark. Our active share of 85% means that the portfolio continues to represent a unique take on its opportunity set versus the benchmark.
