Quarterly Commentary as at June 30, 2018

During the quarter, an overweight exposure to lower-beta names detracted while greater exposure to smaller-cap names aided performance. An overweight allocation to the Value factor detracted from performance for the quarter. Momentum exposures were a slight positive. The strategy screens out the most poorly ranked names through Earnings Quality, Financial Strength and Earnings Growth. The performance of these quality themes was marginally positive in aggregate for the quarter.

Overall allocation and selection contributed to returns for the quarter. Security selection within the Information Technology, Health Care and Consumer Staples sectors contributed to performance while selection in the Consumer Discretionary and Real Estate sectors were a negative. An underweight allocation to Real Estate and Information Technology also detracted from returns.

It is the Fund's policy to maintain currency hedges at all times to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. This policy had a negative effect on returns during the period.

Above all else, we believe that long-term success comes from building a portfolio around proven stock-selection factors, measured using key selection criteria like quality, valuation and momentum. Based on these key themes, the strategy is very well positioned versus its benchmark and relative to the overall market. The portfolio's companies have higher momentum and lower debt ratios and they trade at deep discounts across a number of valuation factors. They are also less dilutive and returning capital to shareholders by buying back shares instead of diluting shareholders like the average company in the index.

These combined advantages can only be delivered by a portfolio which is distinct from the benchmark. Our active share of 85% means that the portfolio continues to represent a unique take on its opportunity set versus the benchmark.
