

RBC Emerging Markets Bond Fund (CAD Hedged)

Investment Objective

To provide total returns comprised of interest income and capital growth while minimizing the exposure to currency fluctuations between foreign currencies and the Canadian dollar. The fund invests primarily in government debt securities of emerging market countries and may also invest in emerging market corporate bonds and government debt securities of developed countries. The fund may do so either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate. The fund will also use derivatives to hedge against the fluctuations in the value of foreign currencies relative to the Canadian dollar.

Quarterly Commentary as at June 30, 2018

Emerging-market (EM) bonds came under pressure during the second quarter as mounting trade tensions between the U.S. and China dented sentiment toward EM countries and raised concerns that economic growth would slow. However, losses on the bonds were partially offset by strength in the U.S. dollar relative to the Canadian dollar.

A stronger U.S. dollar, higher treasury yields and the increasing likelihood of a trade war between the U.S. and China all conspired to drive risk premiums on EM bonds higher. Argentina, Turkey and other countries that rely heavily on foreign investors to finance high debt levels and large trade imbalances bore the brunt of the sell-off in EM debt.

The Fund benefited from a lower-than-benchmark allocation to some of the more vulnerable countries such as Argentina, Turkey and Lebanon. An underweight allocation to longer-maturity bonds also contributed positively to performance.

In our view, much of the shock from the Treasury yield rise has already been absorbed by the asset class and we feel that the scope for further yield-related declines is likely limited. At the same time, EM currencies' nominal valuations remain nearly 30% below their 2011 peak, indicating that the possibility of further dollar strength is also likely limited.

The biggest risks for EM are increasing trade tensions between the U.S. and China, which notably would be negative for most of the world, not solely EM; materially slower growth in China; and rising concerns about sovereign risk in Italy and the Eurozone.

Overall, we believe that the structural, long-term EM story remains strong: the fundamental picture of sovereign and corporate balance sheets remains positive and the sell-off in EM debt this year is creating value and opportunities.
