Quarterly Commentary as at December 31, 2017

U.K. listed hotel franchise operator InterContinental Hotels was the biggest contributor to returns. The company performed strongly on the back of robust franchise fees and the perception that the company stands to benefit from U.S. tax reform. U.S. producer of nitrogen fertiliser CF Industries performed well at the end of the quarter due to a supportive environment for materials. U.S. cosmetics producer Estee Lauder was also positive for returns and has posted some very healthy numbers in 2017 with the business performing especially well in Asia.

The biggest detractor from returns over the quarter was U.S. bank First Republic which has seen costs and competition rise, having a detrimental effect on 2017 earnings. Global brewer AB InBev has seen a slight fall in U.S. beer volumes and also suffered supply disruptions in its largest market, the U.S., after the summer's storms. U.S. alternative asset manager Blackstone fell in concert with U.S.-listed private equity companies over concerns about the tax treatment of offshore insurance subsidiaries.

All the major economies performed strongly with growth and inflation returning. The Trump regime in the U.S. appears to have settled and the first pieces of meaningful legislation have emerged. Despite signs of discontent, the political unrest predicted at the end of 2016 has failed to materialise. Technical factors are also in the frame and, with so much of the market now held passively, there is little price discovery and concomitant volatility in equity prices. A weak U.S. dollar has also helped.

As always the RBC Global Equity team remains committed to the discovery of companies that we deem to be future success stories. We are constantly searching for compelling long-term opportunities at the right valuations whilst avoiding those businesses that are overvalued or optically cheap but fundamentally flawed.
