Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2017

The U.S. economic growth acceleration that began in the middle of last year has largely continued into Q3. Major equity indices hit record highs in Q3, shrugging off escalating geo-political tensions between the U.S. and North Korea as well as two consecutive category 4 hurricanes that ravaged the south. However, the preference for “risk off” sectors of the market has been an important theme this year and continued for the most part in Q3 as Washington’s continued lack of clarity or action on any major pro-growth fiscal policies promised by the Trump administration has weighed on the more economically sensitive areas of the market.

The Fund’s outperformance was driven by both favorable stock selection and sector allocation decisions. Strong stock selection within the Information Technology, Materials, and Industrials sectors added the most to returns, and more than offset adverse stock selection within the Health Care and Consumer Staples sectors. Overall sector allocation decisions had a positive effect as the benefit of being significantly overweight to the relatively strong performing industrials sector boosted returns.

The Fund focuses on neglected small cap companies with attractive long-term fundamentals, near-term profitability improvement potential, and low relative valuations. The strategy emphasizes market leaders with proven products or services, sustainable competitive advantages, solid balance sheets, and attractive cash flows. While sector weightings are a result of bottom-up research and stock selection, the strategy remains positioned for economic recovery with overweight positions in the economically sensitive industrials, materials, and consumer discretionary sectors. Downside protection is sought through a superior return on equity and balance sheet profile of the portfolio compared to the index and the market leadership positions of most portfolio companies.
