Quarterly Commentary as at June 30, 2017

European equities delivered positive returns during Q2 although these were muted by a negative June. One interpretation of June's market movement is that it is the beginning of the second wave of a value rally and, as such, the quality/growth styles will be retreating versus more value/cyclical names. The other is that the dip in the last week of June was a sympathy move with bond markets. The economic backdrop in the Eurozone, nevertheless, remains robust with sentiment nearly back at 2007 peak levels and GDP growth on the rise. In contrast, economic figures reported from the UK showed a potential slowdown as the manufacturing, services and construction sub-sectors stalled due to increasing business uncertainty.

Security selection was the main driver of outperformance as asset allocation was flat. From an asset allocation perspective, our underweight position in Energy was the biggest contributor as the sector ended the quarter on a weakness. The overweight position in Materials and underweight position in Financials both detracted from relative performance.

At the security selection level, our holdings in the Industrials and Materials sectors contributed the most to relative performance. The largest contributor was our overweight position in the Irish budget airline, Ryanair. The second largest contributor was Christian Dior, the French luxury fashion house. The largest detractor was stock selection within the Consumer Discretionary sector. The most significant detractor was a zero position in Nestlé.

While we are, as always, cognizant of the wider macro environment, our focus remains on the discipline of long-term investing in companies with strong competitive positions, low capital intensity, sustainable and/or improving profitability and the right management strategy and governance structures.
