Quarterly Commentary as at June 30, 2017

European equities delivered positive returns during Q2 although these were muted by a negative June. One interpretation of June's market movement is that it is the beginning of the second wave of a value rally and, as such, the quality/growth styles will be retreating versus more value/cyclical names. The other is that the dip in the last week of June was a sympathy move with bond markets. The economic backdrop in the Eurozone, nevertheless, remains robust with sentiment nearly back at 2007 peak levels and GDP growth on the rise. In contrast, economic figures reported from the UK showed a potential slowdown as the manufacturing, services and construction sub-sectors stalled due to increasing business uncertainty.

Security selection was the main driver of performance as asset allocation was a small positive. From an asset allocation perspective, the largest contributor to performance was our underweight position in Materials. The underweight position in Financials was the biggest detractor as the sector was positive over the quarter.

At the security selection level, our holdings in the Utilities and Materials sectors contributed the most to relative performance. The largest contributor was our overweight position in French oil giant, Rubis. The second largest contributor was British-Dutch provider of information and analytics, RELX. The largest detractor was stock selection within the Consumer Staples and Consumer Discretionary sectors. The most significant detractor was British multinational tobacco company, Imperial Brands.

While we are, as always, cognizant of the wider macro environment, our focus remains on the discipline of long-term investing in companies with strong competitive positions, low capital intensity, sustainable and/or improving profitability and the right management strategy and governance structures.
