

RBC Target 2030 Education Fund

Investment Objective

This fund is an asset allocation fund specifically designed to meet the changing needs of investors who are saving money for the purpose of funding a postsecondary education that commences around 2030. The fund gradually shifts its asset mix from an emphasis on equity funds, in its early years, to an emphasis on money market funds as its target date (2030) approaches. Over the life of the fund, its portfolio will shift from a focus on funds with growth potential to a focus on funds that will preserve capital.

Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2017

The global acceleration in economic growth that began last year has been largely sustained. The need for extreme monetary stimulus is fading and central banks including the U.S. Federal Reserve and the Bank of Canada (BoC) are gradually shifting toward tighter policy.

Returns on global government bonds were low to slightly negative during the period. Canadian bonds underperformed after the BoC boosted short-term interest rates given faster-than-expected economic growth. Returns were boosted by an investment in the RBC High Yield Bond Fund, offset by exposure to the RBC Bond Fund and the Phillips, Hager & North Total Return Bond Fund.

Global equities posted gains, led by emerging-market and Canadian equities, as prices for oil and other commodities strengthened. The S&P 500 finished the period at a record high, but a weaker U.S. dollar offset most of the returns when translated back into Canadian dollars. Performance was positively affected by contributions from the RBC Canadian Equity Fund, the RBC O'Shaughnessy U.S. Value Fund and the RBC European Equity Fund.

Our models continue to suggest the long-term direction for bond yields is higher, which would weigh on total returns for bond holders. Prospective returns for equities are much better than for fixed income, but the valuation tailwind from falling interest rates may be exhausted so earnings growth is now critical for the continuity of the bull market.
