Quarterly Commentary as at March 31, 2018

Global corporate-bond spreads widened slightly in the quarter, weathering the increased market volatility, higher U.S. interest rates and equity sell-off fairly well. Corporate bonds with higher U.S. interest-rate sensitivity underperformed on a relative basis. Strong investor demand, stable corporate health and an improving economic environment benefited corporate bonds.

The Fund outperformed its benchmark in the quarter, mostly due to our holdings in emerging-market (EM) investments. Our overweight position in Canadian investment-grade bonds also added value. Hurting the Fund's performance were our investments in U.S. high-quality corporate bonds, U.S. high-yield bonds as well as our underweight in the Asia-Pacific region.

The global macro environment remains positive for corporate bonds; however, an aging business cycle, rising U.S. interest rates and protectionism are key risks. In the U.S., improving corporate fundamentals, low defaults and receptive capital markets are expected to be supportive of valuations and the U.S. fiscal stimulus should provide a tailwind to an already solid economic outlook.

Uncertainty around the outcome of NAFTA negotiations remains a potential headwind for the Canadian economy while escalation in trade tariffs between the U.S. and China could hamper global growth. Fear of a hard Brexit is a headline risk in Europe and could add to increased volatility in the markets.

The Fund's investments currently deviate modestly relative to benchmark with a bias toward quality. The Fund continued to lower its exposure to U.S. high-yield bonds while adding to our overweight position in Canadian and U.S. investment-grade bonds. Tactically, the Fund remains underweight high-quality corporate bonds in Asia Pacific while holdings in EM and European investment-grade bonds are close to a normal weight.
