Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2018

The main driver of positive relative returns this quarter was our tactical duration positioning. Bond yields pushed higher throughout the third quarter as central banks continue on their path of normalizing monetary policy. We began the quarter modestly shorter than the benchmark. We then further shortened the duration positioning as yields moved higher through July.

As interest rates tapered off through August, we reduced the relative short-duration position and moved closer to neutral relative to the benchmark. At the end of the quarter, after interest rates resumed their climb higher, we took profits. We also adjusted the Fund's duration to end the quarter slightly longer than that of the benchmark.

At the same time, we increased the Fund's exposure to provincial bonds, ending the quarter neutral. We also continue to prefer government agency bonds, specifically Canada Housing Trust bonds, which are fully guaranteed by the federal government.

We continue to have a conservative view when it comes to corporate bonds and have maintained a close-to-neutral position relative to the benchmark during the quarter, with a bias towards higher-quality, less-cyclical issuers. The reward-for-risk associated with high-yield bonds continued to look unappealing. As a result, the Fund retained a zero weight in high yield. We would like to see better valuations (i.e., wider yield spreads) in these sectors in order to take more meaningful positions. In the meantime, we are content to be patient.

We also continue to engage in out-of-benchmark strategies. These include small positions in inflation-linked bonds, U.S. Treasuries and maple bonds (non-Canadian companies that issue bonds in Canada in Canadian dollars). These strategies help diversify the Fund in sectors where we see opportunities to outperform traditional Canadian bonds.
