Quarterly Commentary as at September 30, 2018

U.S. equity markets generally outperformed the rest of the world again in the third quarter. The U.S. economy recorded impressive gains. Soaring business and consumer confidence, and strong corporate profit growth fueled the ascent.

Bolstered by large-scale tax cuts and increased government spending, the U.S. economy has accelerated to its fastest growth rate in four years. We continue to believe that the speed limit for developed-world growth has increased since the global financial crisis. Confidence among businesses and consumers has been restored.

Security selection was a positive driver this quarter. The Consumer Discretionary and Technology sectors led the way. An overweight position in Amazon Inc. continues to add value. The company is capturing a large amount of retail growth, with approximately 40 percent of its revenue from recurring sources. Amazon is also leading the growing cloud computing space with Amazon Web Services.

Eli Lilly and Company and Abbott Laboratories were also strong performers in the third quarter. This was partly due to optimism surrounding Abbott's high-profile device, MitraClip, used to treat mitral valve regurgitation. Mohawk Industries Inc., the largest player in global flooring, was a detractor for the portfolio. Mohawk has faced stronger-than-expected headwinds this year, but appears to be well positioned when these headwinds begin to subside.

Our analysis of a variety of scenarios suggests that stocks can deliver decent upside with reasonable assumptions, as long as earnings continue to come through as analysts expect. We recognize, however, that earnings growth is now critical to sustain the bull market in stocks. This is particularly true in light of the late stage in the business cycle and the fact that valuations are above equilibrium.
