MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and some capital growth by investing primarily in units of other funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing funds that invest in high-quality fixed-income securities issued internationally by Canadian and foreign governments and in emerging-market currencies. The Fund may also invest in fixed-income securities issued by Canadian and foreign corporations and supranational agencies such as the World Bank.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects underlying funds from the RBC Funds family or PH&N Funds family, including the RBC Global Bond Fund, a portion of which is sub-advised by RBC Global Asset Management (UK) Limited and the RBC Emerging Markets Foreign Exchange Fund, which primarily invests in investment-grade fixed-income securities issued internationally by the Canadian government and corporations or foreign governments and corporations, or provides exposure to emerging-market currencies.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among underlying funds based on the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its investment objectives.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $4 million as of December 31, 2020, from $5 million at the end of 2019. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units gained 2.0%, which underperformed the 2.8% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index fell 0.3%. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Government bonds in major developed markets recorded above-average returns in 2020, as fears of a pandemic-driven global economic recession prompted major central banks to support financial markets via drastic rate cuts and unprecedented monetary stimulus. Stocks and corporate-bond prices had plummeted in March and government-bond yields touched historic lows. Only the extraordinary stimulus measures, both monetary and fiscal, led to a rebound in riskier assets and reversed some of the first-quarter gains for government bonds.

By the end of the year, the Bank of Canada (the “BOC”) had shelved many of its market-calming measures as macroeconomic stability continued to improve, and bond purchases were scaled back. The U.S. Federal Reserve followed a similarly generous monetary policy of asset purchases and promises to keep interest rates low until the economy was back on track. While approvals of COVID-19 vaccines late in the period and the specter of additional fiscal stimulus lifted bond yields slightly, major central banks will likely be successful at keeping them from rising too much for some time. The BOC, for example, said it did not anticipate raising its short-term benchmark rate before 2023, based on the bank’s current economic forecast.

Emerging-market currencies ended 2020 having appreciated against the U.S. dollar, bouncing back from significant declines earlier in the year due to the COVID-19 pandemic. However, the rebound in emerging-market currencies lagged other “risky” assets amid investor concern that the rising number of COVID-19 cases would overwhelm strained health-care systems, and given a relative lack of financial resources to combat the pandemic-related economic slowdown. Emerging-market currencies as a whole ended the year relatively flat against the Canadian dollar, the currency in which the Fund’s performance is measured.

The fixed-income segment of the Fund contributed significantly to the Fund’s performance, offset by the slightly negative impact of the foreign-currency portion.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects that major central banks will hold interest rates steady for at least the next 12 months on concern that the recovery in labour markets will likely stretch over several years and involve only a gradual removal of monetary stimulus. In the near term, the rise in COVID-19 cases and related business restrictions are slowing the economic recovery and holding down bond yields. Over the next year, the portfolio manager anticipates that the economic recovery will likely lead to only modestly higher bond yields. The portfolio manager will continue to manage exposure to non-government bonds through credit analysis and adjustments to holdings across different maturities.

The portfolio manager expects emerging-market currencies to perform well in 2021 versus those in developed markets, owing to a number of factors. Broad U.S.-dollar weakness is likely to continue in 2021, and, as investors return to bonds and equities in developing countries, emerging-market currencies would benefit disproportionately. Greater optimism about global economic growth should help, too, as investors embrace the idea that COVID-19 vaccines will temper the need for sustained lockdowns and as global monetary and fiscal policies remain accommodative. Finally, valuations remain supportive, with the majority of emerging-market currencies registering as cheap relative to their fair values on a number of measures.

Effective June 26, 2020, Advisor Series units were capped and were re-designated as Series A units effective August 4, 2020.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on the direct expenses charged to the Fund and the Fund's proportionate share of the expenses of underlying funds, if any, for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

<sup>2</sup> The Fund's portfolio turnover rate gives an indication of the level of activity employed by the portfolio manager. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher the Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the Fund. The portfolio turnover rate is not applicable to money market funds.

<sup>3</sup> The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period. The trading expense ratio is not applicable to fixed-income transactions.

Management Fees and Administration Fees

Management fees and administration fees of each series of the Fund are payable to RBC GAM and calculated at the following annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The management fee, breakdown of services received in consideration of the management fee, as a percentage of the management fee, and the administration fee for each series are as follows:

	Management Fees	Breakdown of Services		Administration Fees

Series D	0.95%	26%	74%	0.05%
Series F	0.70%	—	100%	0.05%
Series O	n/a	n/a	n/a	0.02%

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.
