MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a combination of capital growth and modest income by investing primarily in a diversified portfolio of income-producing equity and fixed-income securities from anywhere around the world.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 40% for fixed income and 60% for equities. The target weightings for each class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

To achieve its investment objective, the Fund invests up to 100% of its net assets in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM ("underlying funds"). The underlying funds invest in income-producing equity securities and fixed-income securities from around the world such as dividend-paying common shares, income trusts, preferred shares, government and corporate bonds, high yield bonds, debentures and notes, asset-backed commercial paper, mortgage-backed securities and other income-generating securities. The underlying funds may also invest in emerging-market equity securities and emerging-market government and corporate bonds.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Effective October 25, 2017, RBC GAM adopted the risk classification methodology under National Instrument 81-102 – Investment Funds (the "new risk classification methodology") in respect of the RBC Corporate Class Funds. Pursuant to the new risk classification methodology, certain RBC Corporate Class Funds' risk ratings were changed. RBC GAM reviews each fund's risk rating on an annual basis or if there has been a material change to a fund's investment objectives or investment strategies. Any changes to a fund's risk rating are the result of RBC GAM's annual review and the adoption of the new risk classification methodology.

There were no changes to the Fund's risk rating during the reporting period.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $181 million as of March 31, 2018, from $133 million as of March 31, 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A shares gained 4.0%, which underperformed the 5.6% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 rose 1.7%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while the benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global economic growth surged over the past 12 months thanks to factors including robust U.S. growth, strengthening European economies and an improving outlook for emerging markets. Growth in the Eurozone and Japan continued to impress with a persistence that would have been hard to fathom several years ago. However, concerns emerged in the final two quarters of the fiscal year that the U.S. and China would become embroiled in a trade war, with negative consequences for the world economy. The Canadian economy weakened in late 2017 and into 2018, due to a slower housing market after years of strong growth, as well as weak exports. The Bank of Canada raised interest rates three times during the period but signalled it would hold off on further increases given Canadians' high household debts and uncertainty about the future of the North American Free Trade Agreement ("NAFTA").

The Fund's overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a positive impact on performance. Returns in major government bond markets were mixed during the period. German bonds posted losses after the economic recovery in the Eurozone enabled the European Central Bank to consider scaling back policies aimed at stimulating growth and inflation. In Japan, however, returns were positive as the central bank extended its use of such policies amid more subdued growth and inflation. In North America, where economic growth was faster than elsewhere for much of the period, returns were more measured as investors had already reflected interest-rate increases into their forecasts. Returns were boosted by all four of the Fund's fixed-income investments, led by the BlueBay Global Monthly Income Bond Fund and the RBC Global Corporate Bond Fund.

Most major global equity markets posted double-digit gains amid expectations that already strong global economic growth would get a further boost from U.S. tax cuts, which were legislated as 2017 came to a close. Emerging markets were among the best-performing equity markets, benefiting disproportionately from returns generated by a small group of technology companies including Tencent and Alibaba. Canada's stock market underperformed significantly during the period undermined by the housing slowdown, as well as worries about debt, trade, petroleum-pipeline infrastructure and NAFTA. All regions contributed positively to the Fund's performance. Emerging-market equities and stocks in the developed parts of Europe and Asia performed the best.

Recent Developments

The economic backdrop is quite good by post-crisis standards and, while the aging business cycle, rising interest rates and protectionism pose challenges, the portfolio manager thinks that this year the global economy will grow at the fastest pace in eight years. As a result, central banks will likely continue dialing back monetary accommodation and the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise at a gradual pace. While rising yields could act as a drag on fixed-income returns, bonds play a critical role as ballast against market volatility in a balanced portfolio. The portfolio manager took advantage of the recent increase in yields to reduce the Fund's underweight position in fixed income by one percentage point, sourced from cash. The portfolio manager remains overweight stocks and expects them to continue outperforming bonds, but the Fund's asset mix is closer to neutral than it has been in many years given maturation in the business and market cycles and demanding valuations.

² The Fund's portfolio turnover rate gives an indication of the level of activity employed by the portfolio manager. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher the Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the Fund.

⁴ From April 8, 2015.
