MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a combination of capital growth and modest income by investing primarily in a diversified portfolio of income-producing equity and fixed-income securities anywhere in the world, either directly or indirectly, through investments in other funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”). The Fund may also invest in emerging-market equity securities and emerging-market government and corporate bonds.

The Fund’s target weightings for each asset class are 80% for fixed-income and 20% for equities. The target weightings for each class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class. The actual allocation to each class will be no more than 15% above or below its target weighting.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value rose to $243 million as of December 31, 2020, from $208 million at the end of 2019. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units gained 8.3%, which underperformed the 9.5% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 8.7% and the broad-based index 2 rose 5.6%. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Financial markets and global economic activity in 2020 were overshadowed by the emergence of COVID-19 in the first quarter of the year. Economic activity collapsed in March after the spread of the virus from China to the rest of the world led to government-mandated lockdowns and quarantines, particularly in developed markets. In November, word that there would be at least two highly effective COVID-19 vaccines bolstered consumers and investors, and by the end of the year inoculations were underway in North America, Europe and Asia.

The Fund’s overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a neutral impact on performance. Government bonds posted solid gains in 2020, as fear of the pandemic’s impact on the economy prompted investors to gravitate to the safety of fixed-income investments issued by sovereign governments, especially in the first half of the year. Bond yields were already relatively low in late February, when it became clear that the spread of the virus might lead to disruptions. The U.S. and Canada then joined Japan and Germany as countries where government-bond yields were near zero after major central banks steadied financial markets with interest-rate cuts and trillions of dollars in new asset purchases. By the end of 2020, government-bond yields had risen somewhat given optimism about COVID-19 vaccines, and non-government bonds generally finished 2020 with healthy gains as growth was more robust than was expected early in the crisis. Canadian fixed-income returns were among the best in developed markets. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the portfolio were boosted by the Phillips, Hager & North Total Return Bond Fund and the RBC Bond Fund.

Global equity markets rebounded from pandemic-related losses in early 2020 to finish the year with gains that came mostly in the last few months. Stocks climbed steadily during the second half of 2020, extending a recovery from the significant losses recorded in February and March. Stocks were buoyed by central banks’ continued efforts to prop up financial markets and by a global economy faring much better than initially expected given widespread lockdowns and work-from-home measures. In the fourth quarter, vaccine approvals amplified the sense of optimism. Emerging-market stocks outperformed developed markets, and major U.S. markets outperformed other developed markets given strong returns from large technology companies. Returns were bolstered by the RBC U.S. Dividend Fund and the RBC Emerging Markets Dividend Fund.

At the end of the second quarter, the Fund’s strategic asset mix was changed, resulting in an increase in the Fund’s neutral weight in equities, sourced from fixed income.

Recent Developments

The pandemic remains the key challenge for economies in the New Year, with case counts and fatalities reaching near-record levels. Tighter restrictions to combat the virus may lead to some economic slippage in early 2021, but there are reasons to be optimistic. The economic recovery has been exceeding expectations, vaccine developments are promising and markets have responded positively to the outcome of the U.S. presidential election. Although the economy may encounter hurdles in the very near term, the portfolio manager’s economic-growth forecasts for 2021 have featured more upgrades than downgrades and they are now modestly above the consensus.

Looking beyond the crisis, the portfolio manager's longer-term view is that stocks will outperform bonds, and that the current low yields on government bonds will not provide the income or risk-diversifying properties of the past 40 years. The new asset-mix targets referenced above reflect the portfolio manager's view that stocks will provide superior returns over the long term and that results for sovereign bonds will be unappealing for an extended period. At the end of the year, the Fund's asset mix was overweight the new stock benchmark and underweight the new bond benchmark, with a small allocation to cash.

Effective June 26, 2020, Advisor Series and Advisor T5 Series units were capped and were re-designated as Series A and Series T5 units, respectively, effective August 4, 2020.

² The Fund's portfolio turnover rate gives an indication of the level of activity employed by the portfolio manager. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher the Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the Fund. The portfolio turnover rate is not applicable to money market funds.

³ The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period. The trading expense ratio is not applicable to fixed-income transactions.

Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year.
