MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The ETF seeks to provide income for a limited period of time ending on its termination date by replicating, to the extent possible, the investment results that correspond generally to the performance, before fees and expenses, of the FTSE Canada 2025 Maturity Corporate Bond Index*. The FTSE Canada 2025 Maturity Corporate Bond Index is designed to represent the performance of a held-to-maturity portfolio consisting of, primarily, Canadian dollar-denominated investment grade corporate bonds with effective maturities in 2025.

The ETF intends to invest at least 90% of its assets in and hold the securities that comprise the FTSE Canada 2025 Maturity Corporate Bond Index and/or securities that have economic characteristics that are substantially similar to those that comprise the index.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the ETF that materially affected the ETF's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the ETF and the suitability of the ETF for investors remain as discussed in the Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The ETF's net asset value rose to $113 million as of September 30, 2022, from $69 million on September 30, 2021. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past financial year, the ETF's units lost 6.8%, which underperformed the 6.6% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 10.5%. The ETF's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of the ETF.

Canadian fixed-income securities recorded losses during the 12-month period, as government bond yields climbed to their highest levels since the global financial crisis in 2008. Bond yields, which move in the opposite direction of prices, rose as the Bank of Canada (the "BOC") raised its benchmark interest rate to 3.25% to fight inflation, which climbed at the fastest pace in decades. Yields on shorter-term bonds rose more than those on longer-dated securities to reflect the BOC's multiple rate hikes. However, long-term bonds recorded bigger losses because they are more sensitive to the negative impact of rising interest rates.

Corporate bonds with maturities between one year and five years underperformed federal and provincial bonds. Bonds issued by financial companies had the biggest losses, while fixed-income securities issued by infrastructure and industrial businesses had the smallest. Returns in corporate bonds were also hurt by an increase in the premium required by investors to hold them, due in part to the Russia-Ukraine war and its impact on inflation, plus fears that rising interest rates could ignite a global recession.

Recent Developments

Interest rates are likely headed still higher as the BOC and the U.S. Federal Reserve continue raising rates into territory that slows growth enough to drive inflation back to the 2% target. Investors do not expect the BOC to stop raising the benchmark overnight interest rate until it reaches at least 4%, and rates could remain elevated indefinitely. This environment leads the portfolio manager to conclude that fixed-income returns will be limited until central-bank actions succeed in bringing down inflation. However, any fixed-income losses are unlikely to be as significant as they were over the past 12 months.

The portfolio manager notes that bond-default rates remain low and that yields to maturity for corporate and non-federal bonds are attractive on a historical basis. As well, a high percentage of bonds with between one and five years till maturity are trading at discounts to par, which can have positive tax implications for investors. Finally, investors may be able to benefit from the fact that the ETF makes payments on a monthly basis rather than the twice-a-year schedule followed by most bonds, allowing unitholders to re-invest payments sooner at higher yields.

Effective September 20, 2022, Brenda Eaton was appointed as Vice Chair of the Independent Review Committee (the "IRC") following the death of Paul K. Bates, who had served as a dedicated member of the IRC since December 2014.

To the extent the ETF may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the ETF's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the ETF and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the ETF relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

¹ The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on the direct expenses charged to the ETF and the ETF's proportionate share of the expenses of underlying funds, if any, for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

² The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs of the ETF and the ETF's proportionate share of such costs of underlying funds expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period. The trading expense ratio is not applicable to fixed-income transactions.

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the ETF.
