MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation.

To achieve its objective, the Fund invests primarily in sovereign and quasi-sovereign fixed-income securities in emerging market countries in local currencies. The Fund may also invest in fixed-income securities issued by corporations based in emerging market countries in local currencies. The sub-advisor conducts a detailed analysis of each relevant country's economic growth, inflation and fiscal and monetary policies and, for corporate bonds, a detailed company credit and industry analysis to identify opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $178 million as of June 30, 2025.

Over the past six months, the Fund's Series F units gained 12.3%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Emerging-market bonds performed well in the first half of 2025 as investors became more optimistic that U.S. President Donald Trump's plan to impose high tariffs would not have as dire an impact on the global economy as had been feared. Following a tariff-related sell-off in April, financial markets posted strong returns, with European and emerging markets leading the way. Emerging-market assets denominated in local currencies performed particularly well as the U.S. dollar fell across the board.

The first half of 2025 was exceptionally strong for local-currency assets given the U.S. dollar's decline and investors' desire to diversify away from U.S. amid concern that Trump's approach to trade would ultimately hurt the U.S. economy.

The Fund's relative returns were aided by the positive impact of foreign-exchange positions, including overweight allocations to the Egyptian pound, Chilean peso and South Korean won. Additional contributors to the Fund's returns were the South African rand and the Brazilian real, which rebounded from a weak end to 2024, and the Fund sold some holdings in both at a profit. On the other hand, portfolio underweight allocations to the Colombian peso and Thai baht were negative.

The Fund's investments including local-currency bonds and interest-rate swaps – contracts that let investors exchange cash flows to modify exposure to certain assets – had a mixed impact on returns. These investments aided performance in Brazil, Peru, China and South Africa but had a negative impact in Turkey, India and Malaysia.

Recent Developments

Some near-term risks are beginning to ease, with tensions in the Middle East calming and meaningful progress being made on negotiations regarding tariffs. As a result, investors have shifted their attention back to economic data, which has so far proven more resilient than initially expected. Policymakers at the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") have signalled the likelihood of two interest-rate cuts this year, and investors appear to believe that the Fed is more likely than not to cut rates. The main risks remain signs of a continued economic slowdown, higher-than-expected inflation and renewed geopolitical tensions. Against this backdrop, the sub-advisor expects a favourable environment for emerging-market fixed income in the months ahead.

The decline in the U.S. dollar in recent months is particularly helpful for emerging-market borrowers because it helps to moderate inflation and provides room for emerging-market central banks to lower interest rates. These rate cuts, in turn, improve growth prospects by lowering local borrowing costs.

Related-Party Transactions

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on the direct expenses charged to the Fund and the Fund's proportionate share of the expenses of underlying funds, if any, for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

<sup>2</sup> The Fund's portfolio turnover rate gives an indication of the level of activity employed by the portfolio manager. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher the Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the Fund. The portfolio turnover rate is not applicable to money market funds.

Effective January 1, 2023, the administration fees for Series O units were reduced to 0.05% from 0.10%. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout the financial year ended December 31, 2022, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series O – 0.06%.
