MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues long-term capital growth by investing primarily in European stocks.

The Fund provides exposure to growth opportunities in the European economy and diversification benefits beyond North America.

The portfolio manager reviews the economic outlook for Europe and then selects stocks based on fundamental, technical and quantitative inputs. The Fund is managed to limit risk by spreading investments across different industries. The Fund may also invest in debt securities issued or guaranteed by European governments and international agencies.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $6.5 billion as of June 30, 2022.

Over the past six months, the Fund's Series A units lost 23.4%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

European equities recorded significant declines during the first half of 2022, as the highest inflation in four decades and Russia's invasion of Ukraine called into question the sustainability of global economic growth. Central banks in major markets came under increasing scrutiny on concern that they were too complacent on combatting inflation.

European stocks, like many other global markets, began plunging in early 2022, after it became clear that major central banks including the Bank of England (the "BOE") and the U.S. Federal Reserve would have no choice but to begin boosting interest rates, and in some cases quickly. The BOE raised interest rates four times in the first half of the year, while the European Central Bank (the "ECB") held off to account for the varying economic conditions present in the 19 countries that use the euro.

Toward the end of May, ECB President Christine Lagarde signaled that interest rates would be raised in July as European inflation was running at four times the ECB's 2% target. European equity markets performed better than other developed markets and emerging markets, as European valuations had been lower at the start of the year. Moreover, European exchanges have fewer of the large technology companies present in the U.S., and the companies' valuations had reached extreme levels last year before falling back. Stocks fell further in June, resulting in the worst first-half performance for European equities since 2008.

The stock markets of Portugal, Norway and the U.K. were the strongest performers. Ireland was Europe's worst-performing stock market, with Austria and the Netherlands also lagging their peers. At the sector level, Energy and Communication Services were the strongest performers, while Information Technology and Real Estate were the worst performing.

The Fund's overweight position in the Industrials sector held back portfolio returns the most, while an underweight position in Information Technology was the largest contributor to relative returns.

Among individual stocks, Sanofi, a French health-care company, was the biggest contributor to the Fund's performance, and British American Tobacco was second. Barratt Developments, a U.K. housebuilder, held back returns the most.

Recent Developments

European equities have held up comparatively well in 2022, but investors must contend with a number of risks over the remainder of the year. The main concern for investors appears to be whether central banks are equipped to tackle high levels of inflation without sending the economy into recession, which would likely have a negative impact on equity markets. The war in Ukraine and global supply-chain issues cannot be ignored. As a result, the sub-advisor remains focused on investing in companies with strong competitive positions, relatively low levels of required capital spending, and sustainable and/or improving profitability.

Effective June 17, 2022, the RBC European Dividend Fund was merged into the Fund and unitholders of the RBC European Dividend Fund received units of the Fund on a tax-deferred basis.

Effective April 11, 2022, all Advisor Series units with a deferred sales charge option were re-designated as Series A units. Any redemption fees associated with such re-designations were waived by RBC GAM.

Effective April 8, 2022, the RBC European Equity Class was merged into the Fund and shareholders of the RBC European Equity Class received units of the Fund on a tax-deferred basis.

¹ The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on the direct expenses charged to the Fund and the Fund's proportionate share of the expenses of underlying funds, if any, for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

² The Fund's portfolio turnover rate gives an indication of the level of activity employed by the portfolio manager. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher the Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the Fund. The portfolio turnover rate is not applicable to money market funds.

⁴ From February 27, 2017.

Effective March 1, 2020, the administration fees for Series A units were reduced to 0.15% from 0.20%. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout the financial year ended December 31, 2020, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.10%.

Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.
