MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting of capital growth and current income by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. companies based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects securities on the basis of several factors, including valuation, momentum and return of capital to shareholders. Valuation is based on a variety of measures, including a company's market capitalization ratios and financial statement metrics. The Fund also selects securities based on momentum which may include six-month total return and nine-month total return. Return of capital to shareholders may include dividends and buy-backs.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on January 29, 2018, and its net asset value was $11 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;

- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting of capital growth and current income by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. companies based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects securities on the basis of several factors, including valuation, momentum and return of capital to shareholders. Valuation is based on a variety of measures, including a company's market capitalization ratios and financial statement metrics. The Fund also selects securities based on momentum which may include six-month total return and nine-month total return. Return of capital to shareholders may include dividends and buy-backs. The Fund uses currency hedges to minimize the fluctuations in the U.S. dollar versus the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $1.2 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.7 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 13.3%, which underperformed the 9.6% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Equity markets declined across the board amid global trade tensions and an environment of rising interest rates for much of the year. North American markets, buoyed by relatively strong U.S. economic growth, fell less than most other developed markets in Europe and Asia. The Canadian dollar depreciated in 2018 against most major currencies in developed and emerging markets.

An underweight allocation to stocks with the largest market capitalizations was the factor that held back returns the most, and overweight exposure to value also had a negative impact. Overweight allocations to earnings growth and momentum contributed to performance, while an overweight to financial strength hurt returns.

Sector allocation had a negative impact on returns, while security selection contributed to performance. Allocation to the Information Technology and Consumer Staples sectors contributed to performance, while security selection in the Industrials and Consumer Discretionary sectors aided returns. Underweight allocations to the Health Care and Utilities sectors had a negative impact on returns. Boeing, XL Group and Target Corp. were the main contributors to returns. Ameriprise Financial, Fifth Third Bancorp and Citigroup were the holdings that hurt returns the most.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. This policy had a negative effect on returns during the period.

Due to the Fund's investment process and market conditions over the course of 2018, the Fund decreased allocations to the Materials sector and increased allocations to the Financials sector.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in U.S. mid-cap equities and common-stock equivalents, allowing broad exposure to growth opportunities in U.S. equity markets.

The Fund diversifies across industries in the U.S. market and seeks companies with strong management, focused business models and prospects for growth in earnings and cash flow.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $867 million as of December 31, 2018, from $799 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to investment returns, partially offset by net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 7.4%, which outperformed the 3.4% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. equity markets rose over the first nine months of 2018, before declines in the fourth quarter led to losses for the year as a whole. The year-end market drop was mostly due to signs of slowing global growth, concerns about rising U.S. interest rates, and U.S.-China trade tensions. Small- and mid-cap stocks, which are more sensitive to economic-growth rates, performed significantly worse than large-cap stocks.

The Fund outperformed the benchmark during the period largely due to strong stock selection in the Health Care, Consumer Discretionary, Materials, Information Technology and Industrials sectors. An underweight allocation to the Materials sector and overweight allocation to Consumer Staples also had a positive impact on relative returns. Security selection in the Energy sector held back the Fund's overall performance.

Individual stocks that had a positive impact on performance included Abiomed, Red Hat and Zebra Technology. Stocks that had a negative impact included Affiliated Managers Group, Ingredion and LKQ.

Recent Developments

The U.S. economy continues to add jobs, and many previously idle workers are now looking for employment at companies eager to fill positions due to increased demand for products and services.

U.S. deregulation and tax cuts are providing economic tailwinds, but global economic conditions are not as attractive as they were early in 2018. The sub-advisor expects trade and political tensions with China to persist into 2019. There are several scenarios that could lead to a more negative outcome, particularly any escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration or steps by the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise interest rates faster than the economy can handle. The sub-advisor remains cautious after two significant equity-market declines in 2018, with some economic indicators suggesting stocks could fall further.

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. <sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital appreciation, primarily through investing in mid-capitalized equity securities of U.S. companies while minimizing the exposure to fluctuations between the U.S. and Canadian dollar exchange rates.

The Fund diversifies across industries and selects companies with strong management, focused business models and the potential for growth in earnings and cash flow. The Fund uses currency hedges to minimize the impact of fluctuations in the U.S. dollar versus the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $14 million as of December 31, 2018, from $13 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 2.3%, which outperformed the 6.1% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. equity markets rose over the first nine months of 2018, before declines in the fourth quarter led to losses for the year as a whole. The year-end market drop was mostly due to signs of slowing global growth, concerns about rising U.S. interest rates, and U.S.-China trade tensions. Small- and mid-cap stocks, which are more sensitive to economic-growth rates, performed significantly worse than large-cap stocks.

The Fund outperformed the benchmark during the period largely due to strong stock selection in the Health Care, Consumer Discretionary, Materials, Information Technology and Industrials sectors. An underweight allocation to the Materials sector and overweight allocation to Consumer Staples also had a positive impact on relative returns. Security selection in the Energy sector held back the Fund's overall performance.

Individual stocks that had a positive impact on performance included Abiomed, Red Hat and Zebra Technology. Stocks that had a negative impact included Affiliated Managers Group, Ingredion and LKQ.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. Given this approach, unitholders did not benefit from the U.S. dollar's rise against the Canadian dollar during the period.

Recent Developments

The U.S. economy continues to add jobs, and many previously idle workers are now looking for employment at companies eager to fill positions due to increased demand for products and services.

U.S. deregulation and tax cuts are providing economic tailwinds, but global economic conditions are not as attractive as they were early in 2018. The sub-advisor expects trade and political tensions with China to persist into 2019. There are several scenarios that could lead to a more negative outcome, particularly any escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration or steps by the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise interest rates faster than the economy can handle. The sub-advisor remains cautious after two significant equity-market declines in 2018, with some economic indicators suggesting stocks could fall further.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. mid-cap companies that are deemed to be undervalued in order to provide broad exposure to economic growth opportunities in the equity markets.

The Fund's investment process is based primarily on fundamental research, although the portfolio manager will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection decisions are ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook. The portfolio manager diversifies the Fund across industries in the U.S. market and selects companies based on strong management, focused business models and the potential for future growth in earnings and cash flow.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $604 million as of December 31, 2018, from $635 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to investment losses, partially offset by net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 11.3%, which underperformed the 4.7% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. equity markets rose over the first nine months of 2018, before declines in the fourth quarter led to losses for the year as a whole. The year-end market drop was mostly due to signs of slowing global growth, concerns about rising U.S. interest rates, and U.S.-China trade tensions. Small- and mid-cap stocks, which are more sensitive to economic-growth rates, performed significantly worse than large-cap stocks.

The Fund underperformed its benchmark during the period due primarily to stock selection. Sector-allocation decisions had a modestly negative impact on performance. The negative impact of stock selection in the Industrials, Materials and Consumer Discretionary sectors more than offset favourable stock selection in Health Care and Utilities. An underweight position in the relatively strong-performing Real Estate sector weighed on returns.

Individual stocks that had a positive impact on performance included National General Holdings, Integrated Device Technology and Microsemi. Among stocks that hurt returns the most were Mohawk Industries and Synchrony Financial.

Recent Developments

The U.S. economy continues to add jobs, and many previously idle workers are now looking for employment at companies eager to fill positions due to increased demand for products and services.

Deregulation and tax cuts are providing economic tailwinds for the U.S. economy, but global economic conditions are not as attractive as they were early in 2018. The sub-advisor expects trade and political tensions with China to persist into 2019. There are several scenarios that could lead to a more negative outcome, particularly any escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration or steps by the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise interest rates faster than the economy can handle. The sub-advisor remains cautious after two significant equity-market declines in 2018, with some economic indicators suggesting stocks could fall further.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.03%, Advisor Series – 2.07%, Series D – 1.21% and Series F – 0.93%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. small-cap companies in order to provide broad exposure to economic growth opportunities in the equity markets.

The Fund's investment process is based primarily on fundamental research, although the portfolio manager will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection decisions are ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook. The portfolio manager diversifies the Fund across industries in the U.S. market and selects companies based on strong management, focused business models and the potential for future growth in earnings and cash flow.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $143 million as of December 31, 2018, from $232 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 20.1%, which underperformed the 3.4% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. equity markets rose over the first nine months of 2018, before declines in the fourth quarter led to losses for the year as a whole. The year-end market drop was mostly due to signs of slowing global growth, concerns about rising U.S. interest rates, and U.S.-China trade tensions. Small- and mid-cap stocks, which are more sensitive to economic-growth rates, performed significantly worse than large-cap stocks.

The Fund underperformed its benchmark during the period due primarily to the negative impact of stock selection in the Industrials, Information Technology and Financials sectors. Sector-allocation decisions also weighed on returns. Stock selection in the Health Care sector had a positive impact on relative returns.

Among holdings with a negative impact on returns were Patrick Industries, NN Inc. and ACCO Brands. Individual stocks that had a positive impact on returns included Emergent BioSolutions, Grand Canyon Education and Fox Factory Holding.

Recent Developments

The U.S. economy continues to add jobs, and many previously idle workers are now looking for employment at companies eager to fill positions due to increased demand for products and services.

Deregulation and tax cuts are providing economic tailwinds for the U.S. economy, but global economic conditions are not as attractive as they were early in 2018. The sub-advisor expects trade and political tensions with China to persist into 2019. There are several scenarios that could lead to a more negative outcome, particularly any escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration or steps by the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise interest rates faster than the economy can handle. The sub-advisor remains cautious after two significant equity-market declines in 2018, with some economic indicators suggesting stocks could fall further.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.05%, Advisor Series – 2.05%, Series D – 1.21% and Series F – 0.94%.

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. small-cap companies that are deemed to be undervalued in order to provide broad exposure to economic growth opportunities in the equity markets.

The Fund's investment process is based primarily on fundamental research, although the portfolio manager will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection decisions are ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook. The portfolio manager diversifies the Fund across industries in the U.S. market and selects companies based on strong management, focused business models and the potential for future growth in earnings and cash flow.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $59 million as of December 31, 2018, from $73 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 14.5%, which underperformed the 5.4% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. equity markets rose over the first nine months of 2018, before declines in the fourth quarter led to losses for the year as a whole. The year-end market drop was mostly due to signs of slowing global growth, concerns about rising U.S. interest rates, and U.S.-China trade tensions. Small- and mid-cap stocks, which are more sensitive to economic-growth rates, performed significantly worse than large-cap stocks.

The Fund underperformed its benchmark during the period due primarily to the negative impact of stock selection in the economically sensitive Industrials, Consumer Discretionary and Financials sectors. In the Industrials sector, NN Inc. and Lydall Inc. were the worst performers. In the Consumer Discretionary sector,

Dana Inc. hurt relative returns the most. Stock selection in the Real Estate and Energy sectors aided relative returns, as did a modest underweight position in the relatively weak-performing Energy sector. Another stock that had a negative impact on relative returns was Patrick Industries.

Individual stocks that had a positive impact on returns included Novanta, Delek US Holdings and Spirit Airlines.

Recent Developments

The U.S. economy continues to add jobs, and many previously idle workers are now looking for employment at companies eager to fill positions due to increased demand for products and services.

Deregulation and tax cuts are providing economic tailwinds for the U.S. economy, but global economic conditions are not as attractive as they were early in 2018. The sub-advisor expects trade and political tensions with China to persist into 2019. There are several scenarios that could lead to a more negative outcome, particularly any escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration or steps by the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise interest rates faster than the economy can handle. The sub-advisor remains cautious after two significant equity-market declines in 2018, with some economic indicators suggesting stocks could fall further.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.00%, Advisor Series – 1.94%, Series D – 1.18% and Series F – 0.89%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. companies based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects securities on the basis of several factors including valuation, momentum and return of capital to shareholders. Valuation is based on a variety of measures, including a company's market capitalization ratios and financial statement metrics. The Fund also selects securities based on momentum which may include six-month total return and nine-month total return. Return of capital to shareholders may include dividends and buybacks. The Fund uses currency hedges to minimize the impact of fluctuations in the U.S. dollar versus the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $99 million as of December 31, 2018, from $118 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 7.2%, which outperformed the 10.6% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Equity markets declined across the board amid global trade tensions and an environment of rising interest rates for much of the year. North American markets, buoyed by relatively strong U.S. economic growth, fell less than most other developed markets in Europe and Asia. The Canadian dollar depreciated in 2018 against most major currencies in developed and emerging markets.

Overweight exposure to momentum was the largest contributor to returns, while underweight exposure to large companies and less volatile stocks also aided performance. Conversely, overweight exposure to value had a negative impact on relative returns. Overall, exposure to quality contributed to returns.

Security selection aided portfolio returns the most, and an overweight allocation to the Communication Services sector also boosted performance. Security selection in the Energy, Consumer Staples and Health Care sectors contributed to performance, while the allocation to Energy hurt returns. Security selection in the Information Technology sector held back performance. Medifast, Inogen, and Blucora were the main individual contributors to returns. Alamo Group, Xoma and Penn National Gaming were negative for returns.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. This policy had a negative effect on returns during the period.

Due to the Fund's investment process and market conditions over the course of 2018, the sub-advisor decreased allocations to the Information Technology sector and increased allocations to the Health Care sector.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A | 1.25%           | 52%                   | 48%    |
| Series D | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. companies based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects securities on the basis of several factors including valuation, momentum and return of capital to shareholders. Valuation is based on a variety of measures, including a company's market capitalization ratios and financial statement metrics. The Fund also selects securities based on momentum which may include six-month total return and nine-month total return. Return of capital to shareholders may include dividends and buybacks. The Fund uses currency hedges to minimize the impact of fluctuations in the U.S. dollar versus the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $31 million as of December 31, 2018, from $38 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 10.0%, which underperformed the 8.8% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Equity markets declined across the board amid global trade tensions and an environment of rising interest rates for much of the year. North American markets, buoyed by relatively strong U.S. economic growth, fell less than most other developed markets in Europe and Asia. The Canadian dollar depreciated in 2018 against most major currencies in developed and emerging markets.

Overweight exposure to momentum was the largest contributor to returns, while exposure to less volatile stocks, and those with greater financial strength, had a positive impact on performance. Conversely, overweight exposure to value had a negative impact on returns, while exposure to quality contributed to returns.

Sector allocation had an overall negative impact on returns, while security selection aided returns. Security selection in the Consumer Staples and Energy sectors contributed to returns. Additionally, an overweight allocation to the Communication Services sector aided performance. Security selection in the Communication Services, Information Technology and Industrials sectors hurt returns. Allocations to the Health Care, Materials and Energy sectors also hurt performance. Medifast, Haemonetics and Crocs were the main contributors to returns. Westlake Chemical, Ligand Pharmaceutical and Techtargent had a negative impact.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. This policy had a negative effect on returns during the period.

Due to the Fund's investment process and market conditions over the course of 2018, the sub-advisor decreased allocations to the Industrials sector and increased allocations to the Health Care sector.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series D       | 1.10%           | 23%                   | 77%    |
| Series F       | 0.85%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to deliver long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of U.S. companies whose businesses relate to life sciences and technology and are expected to benefit from scientific and technological advances.

The Fund invests in companies with strong management, focused business models and a competitive advantage.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $339 million as of December 31, 2018, from $253 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 8.8%, which underperformed the 11.8% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index rose 3.8%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Health care and technology outperformed during 2018, a year in which global stock markets posted broad declines. The Health Care sector recorded gains, while Information Technology had only a small decline. From April to September, global equities enjoyed a stretch of strong returns driven primarily by earnings growth. However, volatility emerged in October as rising U.S. interest rates created concern about the sustainability of the global economic expansion.

The Fund's overweight position in the Information Technology sector had a slightly negative impact on the Fund's relative returns, given the Health Care sector's outperformance. Within the Health Care sector, pharmaceutical companies and companies that provide services and equipment performed well. An overweight position in Guardant Health, which had its initial public offering in 2018, aided relative returns. Guardant Health designs technology used to detect cancer. In the Information Technology sector, stocks of companies that sell software and services performed much better than those that design and make hardware and semiconductors.

Recent Developments

While the portfolio manager's base case is for stocks to rise modestly over the next year, there are several scenarios that could lead to different outcomes. A policy mistake by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") – raising interest rates too fast, for example – or an escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration, which could increase the costs of goods, are the most likely causes of a downturn, given the potential for both to stamp out the expansion. In the upside scenario, the expansion would remain intact through 2021, perhaps because the Fed soon pauses its plan to hike rates or the Trump administration reaches a trade agreement with China.

The recent equity pullback has arguably priced in most apparent challenges. For investors, reduced stock-market valuations mean that future returns will not be entirely reliant on earnings growth, in the view of the portfolio manager.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. <sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.09%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The new benchmark (the “New benchmark”) is the S&P 500 Health Care and Information Technology Total Return Net Index (CAD).

50% S&P 500 Health Care Index (CAD)

50% S&P 500 Information Technology Index (CAD)

The change in benchmark better reflects the composition of the Fund.

The broad-based index is the S&P 500 Total Return Index (CAD).

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of major companies domiciled in developed countries outside of North America.

The Fund invests in stocks that have undergone a selection process emphasizing companies with a leading market position or lucrative niche, consistent and predictable profit growth and strong management teams.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $66 million as of December 31, 2018, from $57 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 12.0%, which underperformed the 6.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Both developed and emerging equity markets across Asia performed well in the first half of the year before retreating towards the end of 2018, while in Europe 2018 was a difficult year. Escalating trade tensions between the U.S. and China and concerns that rising U.S. interest rates would lead to capital outflows and emerging-market volatility resulted in declines for most major equity markets. In Europe, the failure of U.K. politicians to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU") continued to hamper the U.K.'s economic growth, while in Italy the populist government's commitment to higher public spending caused friction with the EU.

Within the Fund, only the Energy and Communication Services sectors posted gains. The worst-performing sectors in the Fund were Consumer Discretionary, Industrials and Information Technology. At the stock level, the biggest contributor to relative returns was the Australian company CSL, as strong demand for the company's plasma products drove the stock higher. Unilever, a provider of consumer staples, British American Tobacco and the London Stock Exchange were also among the top performers. The stock that hurt relative returns the most was the jewellery company Pandora, with Continental AG, Ryanair and Mitsubishi UFJ Financial Group also having a negative impact on performance.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor expects that market volatility will remain elevated in the near term given the risks of an escalating trade war between the U.S. and China. European parliamentary elections in May and the continued uncertainty about the U.K.'s exit from the EU are all likely to influence equity markets into 2019. Expectations that global economic growth will decline has led investors to gravitate towards more defensive sectors, such as Consumer Staples, Utilities and Communication Services, which tend to perform better when economic growth is slowing or falling.

Many economic indicators suggest that economic growth could continue to moderate in 2019, creating the potential for market volatility that could, in the view of the sub-advisor, lead to investment opportunities.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series and Series T5 units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.15%, Advisor Series – 2.09% and Series T5 – 2.15%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series T5      | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |
| Series FT5     | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund aims to provide long-term capital growth by investing in stocks of companies outside North America, providing exposure to economies that may be at different stages of the business cycle or offer growth opportunities unavailable in U.S. and Canadian markets. The Fund focuses on companies that are primarily in Europe, Australasia and the Far East.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $936 million as of December 31, 2018, from $1.1 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 12.4%, which underperformed the 6.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Both developed and emerging equity markets across Asia performed well in the first half of the year before retreating towards the end of 2018, while in Europe 2018 was a difficult year. Escalating trade tensions between the U.S. and China and concerns that rising U.S. interest rates would lead to capital outflows and emerging-market volatility resulted in declines for most major equity markets. In Europe, the failure of U.K. politicians to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU") continued to hamper the U.K.'s economic growth, while in Italy the populist government's commitment to higher public spending caused friction with the EU.

Within the Fund, all sectors recorded losses, with Communication Services and Energy having the smallest declines. The worst-performing sectors were Consumer Discretionary, Industrials, Financials and Information Technology. At the stock level, the biggest contributor to relative returns was the Australian company CSL, as strong demand for the company's plasma products drove the stock higher. Unilever, a provider of consumer staples, British American Tobacco and the London Stock Exchange were also among the top performers. The stock that hurt relative returns most was jewellery company Pandora, with Ryanair, Continental AG and Mitsubishi UFJ Financial Group also having a negative impact on relative performance.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor expects that market volatility will remain elevated in the near term given the risks of an escalating trade war between the U.S. and China. European parliamentary elections in May and the continued uncertainty about the U.K.'s exit from the EU are all likely to influence equity markets into 2019. Expectations that global economic growth will decline has led investors to gravitate towards more defensive sectors, such as Consumer Staples, Utilities and Communication Services, which tend to perform better when economic growth is slowing or falling.

Many economic indicators suggest that economic growth could continue to moderate in 2019, creating the potential for market volatility that could, in the view of the sub-advisor, lead to investment opportunities.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.15% and Advisor Series – 2.13%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series T5      | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in equity securities of companies outside of North America in order to provide exposure to economies that offer different business cycles and growth opportunities than North American markets. The Fund also seeks to minimize the exposure to currency fluctuations between foreign currencies and the Canadian dollar.

To achieve its objective, the Fund invests its assets primarily in units of the RBC International Equity Fund, or other underlying funds. Each underlying fund’s investment process is primarily based on fundamental research, although the portfolio manager will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection decisions are ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying fund. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $42 million as of December 31, 2018, from $61 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 16.0%, which underperformed the 10.1% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Both developed and emerging equity markets across Asia performed well in the first half of the year before retreating towards the end of 2018, while in Europe 2018 was a difficult year. Escalating trade tensions between the U.S. and China and concerns that rising U.S. interest rates would lead to capital outflows and emerging-market volatility resulted in declines for most major equity markets. In Europe, the failure of U.K. politicians to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the “EU”) continued to hamper the U.K.’s economic growth, while in Italy the populist government’s commitment to higher public spending caused friction with the EU.

Within the Fund, all sectors recorded losses, with Communication Services and Energy having the smallest declines. The worst-performing sectors were Consumer Discretionary, Industrials, Financials and Information Technology. At the stock level, the biggest contributor to relative returns was the Australian company CSL, as strong demand for the company’s plasma products drove the share price higher. Unilever, a provider of consumer staples, British American Tobacco and the London Stock Exchange were also among the top performers. The stock that hurt relative returns most was jewellery company Pandora, with Ryanair, Continental AG and Mitsubishi UFJ Financial Group also having a negative impact on relative performance.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the Canadian dollar and other currencies. This policy had a negative impact on the Fund in 2018, as investors did not benefit from the appreciation of currencies versus the Canadian dollar.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects that market volatility will remain elevated in the near term, given the risks of an escalating trade war between the U.S. and China. European parliamentary elections in May and continued uncertainty about the U.K.’s exit from the EU are all likely to influence equity markets into 2019. Expectations that global economic growth will decline have led investors to gravitate towards more defensive sectors, such as Consumer Staples, Utilities and Communication Services, which tend to perform better when economic growth is slowing or falling.

Many economic indicators suggest that economic growth could continue to moderate in 2019, creating the potential for market volatility that could, in the view of the portfolio manager, lead to investment opportunities.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.13% and Advisor Series – 2.17%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by tracking the performance of the FTSE Developed ex North America Index (hedged to CAD) and investing primarily in units of the RBC International Equity Index ETF (the “underlying fund”). The Fund may also use derivatives to hedge against the fluctuations in the value of foreign currencies relative to the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $374 million as of December 31, 2018, from $414 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to investment losses, partially offset by net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 10.8%, which underperformed the 10.4% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Both developed and emerging equity markets across Asia performed well in the first half of the year before retreating towards the end of 2018, while in Europe 2018 was a difficult year. Escalating trade tensions between the U.S. and China and concerns that rising U.S. interest rates would result in capital outflows and emerging-market volatility led to declines for most major equity markets. In Europe, the failure of U.K. politicians to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the “EU”) continued to hamper the U.K.’s economic growth, while in Italy the populist government’s commitment to higher public spending caused friction with the EU.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the Canadian dollar and other currencies. This policy had a negative impact on the Fund in 2018, as investors did not benefit from the appreciation of currencies versus the Canadian dollar.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects that market volatility will remain elevated in the near term, given the risks of an escalating trade war between the U.S. and China. European parliamentary elections in May and continued uncertainty about the U.K.’s exit from the EU are all likely to influence equity markets into 2019. Expectations that global economic growth will decline have led investors to gravitate towards more defensive sectors, such as Consumer Staples, Utilities and Communication Services, which tend to perform better when economic growth is slowing or falling.

RBC GAM has called and will hold a special meeting of the unitholders of the Fund on March 22, 2019. Subject to unitholder approval, the investment objective of the Fund will change to permit the Fund to invest in equity securities, in substantially the same proportion as its benchmark index, either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds. The Fund will continue to use derivatives to hedge against the fluctuations in the value of foreign currencies relative to the Canadian dollar. In addition, the benchmark index will be changed to the MSCI EAFE IMI Total Return Net Index (hedged to CAD). If the change in investment objective is approved, all changes are expected to be effective on or about April 5, 2019.

|          | Management Fees* | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|------------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                  | Distribution          | Other† |

† Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting of capital growth and current income by investing primarily in equity securities of companies outside of North America based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects securities on the basis of several factors, including valuation, momentum and return of capital to shareholders. Valuation is based on a variety of measures, including a company's market capitalization ratios and financial statement metrics. The Fund also select securities based on momentum which may include six-month total return and nine-month total return. Return of capital to shareholders may include dividends and buybacks. The Fund does not hedge currency exposure back to Canadian dollars.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $297 million as of December 31, 2018, from $379 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 13.0%, which underperformed the 6.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Equity markets declined across the board amid global trade tensions and an environment of rising interest rates for much of the year. North American markets, buoyed by relatively strong U.S. economic growth, fell less than most other developed markets in Europe and Asia. The Canadian dollar depreciated in 2018 against most major currencies in developed and emerging markets.

Overweight exposure to smaller-capitalization stocks hurt the Fund's returns the most, as the largest stocks in international markets outperformed. The Fund's allocations to stocks exhibiting high momentum, value and shareholder yield were positive for returns. Exposure to quality had a negative impact on returns, as stocks with high earnings quality and strong earnings growth underperformed.

Sector allocation contributed to returns, while security selection had a negative impact. Allocations to the Energy, Financials and Utilities sectors aided returns, while allocations to Real Estate and Information Technology hurt performance. Security selection in the Financials, Health Care and Consumer Staples sectors contributed to performance. Security selection in the Industrials, Consumer Discretionary and Information Technology sectors hurt returns. Suzuken, Sumitomo Dainippon and GN Store Nord were the largest contributors to returns. Derichebourg, Tui and Nisshinbo held back returns the most.

Sector allocation among countries aided overall performance, while security selection among countries had a negative effect. Security selection in Denmark and New Zealand was the main contributor to returns, and relative allocations to Germany and Norway also aided performance, partially offset by Italy and Switzerland. Security selection in Japan and France hurt performance.

Due to the Fund's investment process and market conditions over the course of 2018, the sub-advisor decreased allocations to the Industrials sector and increased the allocation to the Health Care sector.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor has no recent developments to report.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting of regular dividend income and modest capital growth.

To achieve its objective, the Fund invests primarily in preferred equity securities of major European companies with above-average dividend yields. The Fund's investment process is primarily based on fundamental research, although the portfolio manager will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection decisions are ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $151 million as of December 31, 2018, from $163 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to investment losses, partially offset by net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 11.9%, which underperformed the 7.2% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

It was a difficult 2018 for investors in European equities, as geopolitical concerns and faltering global economic growth resulted in declines for most major equity markets. One measure of corporate optimism – the Purchasing Managers' Index – steadily declined over the year, falling to its lowest levels since mid-2016, as GDP growth dropped. A trade conflict between the U.S. and China also worried investors, especially with regard to the European auto sector.

The failure of U.K. politicians to agree on terms by which the country would leave the European Union continued to hamper U.K. economic growth. The year ended with no resolution, as Parliament debated whether to approve a departure proposal made by Prime Minister Theresa May. In Italy, a coalition government committed to higher public spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the European Union.

The stock markets of Finland, Norway and Switzerland were the strongest performers. Austria's was Europe's worst-performing stock market, with Ireland and Belgium also performing poorly. At the sector level, Utilities and Health Care were the strongest performers, while Financials and Consumer Discretionary were the worst-performing. The Fund's underweight position in the Financials sector held back portfolio returns the most, while an overweight position in Energy was the largest contributor to relative returns.

Among individual stocks, Gaztransport Et Technigaz, the French engineering company, was the biggest contributor to the Fund's performance, and John Laing Group, the U.K. infrastructure company, was second. British American Tobacco of the U.K. held back returns the most.

Recent Developments

Investors have been gravitating since mid-year toward defensive market sectors – sectors that tend to perform better when economic growth is slowing or falling. The result is that companies such as Unilever, which makes a range of food and everyday products, and Heineken, a drinks manufacturer, have been outperforming. Many economic indicators suggest that economic growth could continue to moderate in 2019 and, in the view of the sub-advisor, market volatility is likely to continue to be a factor in 2019.

European parliamentary elections in May, Italian budgetary concerns and uncertainty about the final form of Brexit are all likely to influence financial markets in 2019. Brexit uncertainty is undermining economic growth but has led to attractive valuations for some investments.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.09%, Advisor Series – 2.12%, Series D – 1.27% and Series F – 0.99%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues long-term capital growth by investing primarily in European stocks.

The Fund provides exposure to growth opportunities in the European economy and diversification benefits beyond North America.

The portfolio manager reviews the economic outlook for Europe and then selects stocks based on fundamental, technical and quantitative inputs. The Fund is managed to limit risk by spreading investments across different industries. The Fund may also invest in debt securities issued or guaranteed by European governments and international agencies.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $6.1 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $7.0 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 12.4%, which underperformed the 7.2% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

It was a difficult 2018 for investors in European equities, as geopolitical concerns and faltering global economic growth resulted in declines for most major equity markets. One measure of corporate optimism – the Purchasing Managers' Index – steadily declined over the year, falling to its lowest levels since mid-2016, as GDP growth dropped. A trade conflict between the U.S. and China also worried investors, especially with regard to the European auto sector.

The failure of U.K. politicians to agree on terms by which the country would leave the European Union continued to hamper U.K. economic growth. The year ended with no resolution, as Parliament debated whether to approve a departure proposal made by Prime Minister Theresa May. In Italy, a coalition government committed to higher public spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the European Union.

The stock markets of Finland, Norway and Switzerland were the strongest performers. Austria's was Europe's worst-performing stock market, with Ireland and Belgium also performing poorly. At the sector level, Utilities and Health Care were the strongest performers, while Financials and Consumer Discretionary were the worst-performing. The Fund's underweight position in the Financials sector held back portfolio returns the most, while an underweight position in Energy was the largest contributor to relative returns.

Among individual stocks, Roche Holding, the Swiss pharmaceuticals company, was the biggest contributor to the Fund's performance, and Diageo was the second-biggest. Bayer, the German pharmaceuticals company, held back returns the most.

Recent Developments

Investors have been gravitating since midyear toward defensive market sectors – sectors that tend to perform better when economic growth is slowing or falling. The result is that companies such as Unilever, which makes a range of food and everyday products, and Heineken, a drinks manufacturer, have been outperforming. Many economic indicators suggest that economic growth could continue to moderate in 2019 and, in the view of the sub-advisor, market volatility is likely to continue to be a factor in 2019.

European parliamentary elections in May, Italian budgetary concerns and uncertainty about the final form of Brexit are all likely to influence financial markets in 2019. Brexit uncertainty is undermining economic growth but has led to attractive valuations for some investments.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.15% and Advisor Series – 2.06%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series T5      | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |
| Series FT5     | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of European mid-cap companies. The Fund provides exposure to growth opportunities in the European economy and diversification benefits beyond North America.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $562 million as of December 31, 2018, from $11 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 9.9%, which matched the decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

It was a difficult 2018 for investors in European equities as geopolitical concerns and faltering global economic growth resulted in declines for most major equity markets. One measure of corporate optimism – the Purchasing Managers' Index – steadily declined over the year, falling to its lowest levels since mid-2016, as GDP growth dropped. A trade conflict between the U.S. and China also worried investors, especially with regard to the European auto sector.

The failure of U.K. politicians to agree on terms by which the country would leave the European Union continued to hamper U.K. economic growth. The year ended with no resolution, as Parliament debated whether to approve a departure proposal made by Prime Minister Theresa May. In Italy, a coalition government committed to higher public spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the European Union.

The stock markets of Finland, Norway and Switzerland were the strongest performers. Austria was Europe's worst-performing stock market, with Ireland and Belgium also performing poorly. At the sector level, Consumer Staples and Energy were the strongest performers, while Consumer Discretionary and Information Technology were the worst-performing. The Fund's overweight position in the Industrials sector held back portfolio returns the most, while an overweight position in Energy was the largest contributor to returns.

Among individual stocks, Virgin Money Holdings, the U.K. financial company, was the biggest contributor to the Fund's performance, and Gaztransport Et Technigaz, the French engineering company, was the second-biggest. Jewellery company Pandora of Denmark held back returns the most.

Recent Developments

Investors have been gravitating since midyear toward defensive market sectors – sectors that tend to perform better when economic growth is slowing or falling. The result is that companies such as Unilever, which makes a range of food and everyday products, and Heineken, a drinks manufacturer, have been outperforming. Many economic indicators suggest that economic growth could continue to moderate in 2019 and, in the view of the sub-advisor, market volatility is likely to continue to be a factor in 2019.

European parliamentary elections in May, Italian budgetary concerns and uncertainty about the final form of Brexit are all likely to influence financial markets in 2019. Brexit uncertainty is undermining economic growth but has led to attractive valuations for some investments.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O — no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing in equity securities of companies located in or having a principal business interest in Asian markets such as Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan, South Korea, Singapore, China and Australia, either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called “underlying funds”).

To achieve its investment objective, the Fund selects underlying funds from the RBC Funds family or PH&N Funds family, including the RBC Asia Pacific ex-Japan Equity Fund and the RBC Japanese Equity Fund, that focus on Asian sectors and themes and diversify their holdings across the region to reduce risk.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $72 million as of December 31, 2018, from $75 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to investment losses, partially offset by net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 6.2%, which underperformed the 5.7% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The allocations to Japanese equities and to Asian equities outside Japan had a negative impact on the Fund’s performance. The segment that invests in Asia excluding Japan underperformed the Japanese portion.

Equity markets across Asia posted gains in the first half of 2018 before retreating amid escalating trade tensions between the U.S. and China and concerns that rising U.S. interest rates would lead to capital outflows and rising emerging-market volatility. For most of the year, higher energy prices had a negative impact on the many Asian countries that import oil. The significant drop in oil prices toward the end of 2018 came as a respite to these countries.

In the Fund’s Asia-Pacific holding, returns were aided by Thailand’s Fabrinet, whose shares rose on stronger-than-expected revenue growth and profitability at the maker of optical components; Metrobank, a Philippine financial institution whose shares rose on strong profit increases and steady loan growth; and CSL, given demand for the company’s plasma products. Returns were hurt by Yes Bank of India, which reported higher non-performing loans, and Baozun, a Chinese ecommerce service provider negatively affected by slower domestic growth.

In the Japanese segment, returns benefited from exposure to Sanbio, a biopharmaceutical company focused on treating brain disorders. Stock selection in the Information Technology sector contributed the most to relative performance, propelled by Nintendo, the video-game company, and BenGo4, whose online search platform provides information to lawyers and accountants. The Fund’s lack of significant exposure to the Industrials sector aided relative performance, as stocks exposed to economic growth pulled back on slowing Chinese demand.

The Fund’s holdings in Yahoo Japan, an internet search company, and Zozo, an online retailer of men’s clothing, hurt the Fund’s relative performance, as these companies reported lower-than-expected results. An underweight position in the Consumer Staples sector was also a negative for relative returns.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects financial-market volatility to remain elevated in the near term given the risks of an escalated trade war between the U.S. and China. Expectations that global economic growth will decline have led to investors’ preference for areas that are less tied to economic growth, such as the Consumer Staples and Utilities sectors and telecommunications companies, at the expense of sectors such as Information Technology. Given trade tensions, the portfolio manager of the Asia-Pacific segment is shifting its focus to investments outside China, mainly in Asian emerging markets.

The portfolio manager is mindful that higher U.S. interest rates are raising funding costs in many parts of Asia that rely on loans denominated in U.S. dollars. Japan’s economic prospects are not immune to cooling global growth and a rising tide of protectionism and slowing growth in corporate profits.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.00% and Advisor Series – 2.01%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies located or having a principal business interest in Asian markets such as Hong Kong, South Korea, China, Taiwan, Australia, New Zealand, Singapore, India, Malaysia, Thailand, the Philippines and Indonesia. The Fund does not invest in Japan.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the portfolio manager uses primarily fundamental research to assess the economic outlook for the Asian region, including expected growth, market valuations and economic trends. The portfolio manager may invest as much as 10% of the Fund's assets in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $2.2 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $2.0 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 6.7%, which underperformed the 6.2% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Equity markets across Asia, both developed and emerging, posted gains in the first half of 2018 before retreating amid escalating trade tensions between the U.S. and China as well as concerns that rising U.S. interest rates would lead to capital outflows and rising emerging-market volatility. For most of the year, higher energy prices had a negative impact on the many Asian countries that must import oil. The significant drop in oil prices toward the end of 2018 came as a respite to these countries.

The largest contributor to the Fund's returns came from the Fund's holdings in Thailand, the Philippines and Australia. In Thailand, Fabrinet shares rose on the back of stronger-than-expected revenue growth and profitability as the assembler of electronic components gained market share. In the Philippines, Metrobank shares rose on strong profit increases and steady loan growth. In Australia, strong demand for CSL's plasma products drove the shares higher.

The stock that had the most negative impact on returns was Yes Bank of India, whose shares declined on a rise in non-performing loans and uncertainty around CEO succession. Baozun, a Chinese e-commerce service provider, also hurt the Fund's performance as the domestic economy slowed. However, the decision to eliminate Alibaba, a bigger e-commerce company, from the portfolio in the third quarter allowed the Fund to avoid some of the negative impact of the broad late-year drop in technology stocks.

During the year, the Fund initiated a position in Computershare, an Australian company that operates share registries and administers employee share plans and corporate trust services. Computershare is the only global provider of share-registry administration, and has a stable and growing revenue stream.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor expects market volatility to remain elevated in the near term given the risks of an escalated trade war between the U.S. and China. Expectations that global economic growth will decline has led to investors' preference for areas that are less tied to economic growth, such as the Consumer Staples and Utilities sectors and telecommunications companies, at the expense of sectors such as Information Technology. Given Sino-U.S. trade tensions, the sub-advisor is shifting its focus to investments outside China and Japan, mainly in Asian emerging markets.

The sub-advisor believes that 2018's equity-market declines and expectations of significant market fluctuations in 2019 will provide the Fund with good investment opportunities. Certain markets and industries are trading at attractive valuations and offer the potential for attractive long-term returns.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of Japanese companies.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the portfolio manager uses primarily fundamental research to assess the economic outlook for Japan, including expected growth, market valuations and economic trends. The portfolio manager may invest as much as 10% of the Fund's assets in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $1.2 billion as of December 31, 2018, unchanged from the end of 2017.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 6.6%, which underperformed the 5.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Japanese equity markets slumped in 2018 as concerns about the deepening trade dispute between the U.S. and China lowered stock valuations even as Japanese companies reported better-than-expected earnings. Meanwhile, the Japanese economy remained sound amid strong capital expenditures and business and consumer confidence. A combination of rising wages and steady job creation resulted in healthy income increases that helped drive domestic consumption.

The Fund outperformed the benchmark, as both sector allocation and stock selection contributed to returns. Sanbio, a biopharmaceutical company focused on treating brain injuries and neurological disorders, had a significant positive impact on performance following successful U.S. clinical trials of its treatment for stroke. Stock selection in the Information Technology sector contributed the most to relative performance, propelled by Nintendo, the video-game company, and BenGo4, whose online search platform provides information to lawyers and accountants. Additionally, the Fund's lack of significant exposure to the Industrials sector aided relative performance, as stocks that are highly exposed to economic growth pulled back on slowing Chinese demand.

On the other hand, the Fund's holdings in Yahoo Japan, the internet search company, and Zozo, an online retailer of men's clothing, hurt the Fund's relative performance as the companies reported lower-than-expected results for much of the year. An underweight position in the Consumer Staples sector was also a negative for relative returns.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor remains optimistic about Japanese equities as long as positive economic trends stay intact. A tight labour market has translated into faster growth in personal incomes, and the Bank of Japan (the "BOJ") remains dedicated to fighting stubbornly low inflation. The sub-advisor expects the BOJ to keep interest rates at extremely low levels, while a boost in fiscal spending allows Japan to better cope with the sales-tax hike that takes effect in 2019. Longer-term positives, in the view of the sub-advisor, are reforms in corporate governance and related dividend increases.

The sub-advisor is mindful, however, that higher U.S. interest rates are raising funding costs in many parts of Asia that rely on loans denominated in U.S. dollars. More importantly, Japan's economic prospects are not immune to cooling global growth and a rising tide of protectionism and slowing growth in corporate profits.

The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund aims to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate, emphasizing funds that invest in equity securities of companies located or active in emerging markets.

The Fund invests up to 100% of its net assets in the RBC Emerging Markets Dividend Fund, RBC Emerging Markets Equity Fund and RBC Emerging Markets Small-Cap Equity Fund (the “underlying funds”), which are sub-advised by RBC Global Asset Management (UK) Limited. The underlying funds invest primarily in securities of companies located or active in emerging-market countries, including: China, Brazil, South Korea, Taiwan, India, South Africa, Russia, Mexico, Israel, Malaysia, Indonesia, Turkey, Chile, Thailand and Poland.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate medium-to-high investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value rose to $318 million as of December 31, 2018, from $259 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 7.0%, which underperformed the 6.9% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equity markets faced a challenging 2018 given U.S.-China trade tensions and slowing economic expansion, notably in China, which accounts for a significant portion of the world’s growth. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets, as interest-rate hikes by the U.S. Federal Reserve and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. This created negative sentiment towards emerging markets, which have historically underperformed during an environment of U.S. dollar strength.

All of the Fund’s investments held back performance, with the RBC Emerging Markets Dividend Fund having the most negative impact.

The Fund’s biggest holding was the RBC Emerging Markets Equity Fund, as stock selection was strong in China and India. In China, the Asian life-insurance company AIA Group reported expanding membership in its wellness platform, Vitality, through its partnership with the growing Chinese online health-services company WeDoctor. In India, HDFC, an Indian mortgage provider, helped returns as it recorded increased profits and market share. Tata Consultancy Services, which provides information-technology services, continued to bring in new business and also benefited from a weaker local currency, which boosted the value of earnings outside India. An underweight position in China helped relative performance, as Chinese equities were hurt by trade tensions with the U.S.

In the small-cap holding, stock selection was strong across most sectors, but particularly in Materials and Information Technology. The Brazilian company Duratex was helped by a broad rally in Brazilian equity markets towards the end of the year, after a pro-market candidate, Jair Bolsonaro, was elected president. In the Information Technology sector, the Indian services company Cyient did well on the back of strong revenue and earnings growth. It also benefited from the weak Indian currency. At the country level, stock selection was particularly strong in India, China and Thailand.

Recent Developments

The Fund’s investments continue to be driven by long-term themes. The portfolio manager is optimistic about companies having exposure to consumption in local Asian economies; deposit franchises (banks that are able to keep the cost of funding low due to their strong deposit business); health and wellness; and infrastructure and digitalization.

There have been big differences in performance among emerging markets in recent years. Countries that embrace legal and financial reforms will end up as the winners, in the view of the portfolio manager, which is particularly optimistic about the outlook for India. In addition to reforms, India offers a good choice of high-quality businesses.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series D       | 1.10%           | 23%                   | 77%    |
| Series F       | 0.85%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting of dividend income and capital growth by investing in equity securities of companies that are located or active in emerging markets and that offer above-average dividend yields.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the portfolio manager selects equity securities of companies in emerging-market countries, including, but not limited to, China, Brazil, South Korea, Taiwan, India, South Africa, Russia, Mexico, Peru, Malaysia, Indonesia, Turkey, Chile, Thailand and Poland. The Fund's investment process is based primarily on fundamental research, although the portfolio manager will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection is ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook. The portfolio manager also assesses the economic outlook in each emerging-market region, including expected growth, market valuations and economic trends. The Fund is diversified by sector and emerging-market country to help reduce risk.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $1.0 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $815 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A lost 11.6%, which underperformed the 6.9% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equity markets faced a challenging 2018 given U.S.-China trade tensions and a slowing economic expansion, notably in China, which accounts for a significant portion of the world's growth. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. This environment created negative sentiment toward emerging markets, which have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar is rising significantly.

The Fund underperformed due to how assets were allocated among countries and the negative impact of stock selection. Allocation among sectors had a positive impact on relative returns.

At the sector level, an overweight allocation to Energy helped returns, as it was the top-performing emerging-market sector during 2018, driven by a sharp rise in oil prices for most of the year. The portfolio's underweight position in the Communication Services sector also added to relative returns, as this was one of the weaker sectors. Meanwhile, stock selection in the Financials sector hurt relative returns, given holdings in Banco Macro in Argentina, a position that was eliminated towards the end of the year, and Russia's Sberbank. Banco Macro was negatively affected by a deteriorating macroeconomic picture in Argentina, while Sberbank was faced with the impact of U.S. sanctions placed on Russia.

At the country level, stock selection in China contributed to relative returns, partially reflecting a position in the Chinese real-estate developer Shimao Property Holdings, which reported strong results. Stock selection in Taiwan had an overall negative impact on relative performance, given a position in the memory-device manufacturer Macronix, whose shares declined given industrywide concerns that demand would soften.

The portfolio was negatively affected in 2018 by exposure to riskier countries and sectors and smaller-cap stocks. In the cyclical segment of the portfolio, the Fund reduced exposure to semiconductors, given that the sub-advisor expects demand to weaken. The sub-advisor also reduced exposure to pulp and paper, where prices have fallen amid slower demand growth and new supply.

Recent Developments

Emerging-market performance stabilized in recent months, helped by lower oil prices and expectations that the Fed would slow the rate of interest-rate increases. The sub-advisor is focused on attractively valued stocks that had significant declines in 2018.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective October 2, 2017, the administration fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D, Series F and Series O units of the Fund. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.22%, Advisor Series – 2.24%, Series D – 1.39%, Series F – 1.12% and Series O – 0.17%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series D       | 1.10%           | 23%                   | 77%    |
| Series F       | 0.85%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund aims to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies located or active in emerging markets.

The Fund's investment process is based primarily on fundamental research, and includes an assessment of each emerging-market region, including expected growth, market valuations and economic trends. Quantitative and technical factors may also be considered. The Fund may invest in securities of companies located or active in emerging-market countries, including, but not limited to: China, Brazil, South Korea, Taiwan, India, South Africa, Russia, Mexico, Israel, Malaysia, Indonesia, Turkey, Chile, Thailand and Poland. The portfolio is diversified by sector and emerging-market country to help reduce risk. Individual stocks are selected based on the intrinsic value of each company, liquidity and overall portfolio risk.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $4.4 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $3.8 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.8%, which outperformed the 6.9% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equity markets faced a challenging 2018, given U.S.-China trade tensions and a slowing economic expansion, notably in China, which accounts for a significant portion of the world's growth. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the U.S. Federal Reserve and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. This environment created negative sentiment toward emerging markets, which have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar is rising significantly.

The Fund outperformed its benchmark due mainly to stock selection. Allocations among countries also contributed to relative outperformance, while sector allocation was somewhat negative.

The sub-advisor's stock selection was especially strong in China and India. Stocks that had a positive impact on relative returns included AIA Group, a big Asian-centered life insurer that has a partnership with the fast-growing Chinese online health-services company WeDoctor. In India, HDFC, an Indian mortgage provider, aided returns as it recorded strong growth in profits and market share. Tata Consultancy Services, which provides information-technology services, continued to land new business while benefiting from a weakening local currency that boosts the value of revenue earned outside India. The portfolio's underweight position in China helped relative performance, as China equity markets were hurt by trade tensions with the U.S.

At the sector level, the portfolio's lack of relative exposure to Energy hurt the Fund's performance. Strong stock selection in the Information Technology and Communication Services sectors helped offset those losses.

Recent Developments

The Fund's investments continue to be driven by long-term investment trends that the sub-advisor believes are important. The sub-advisor is currently optimistic about companies having exposure to consumption in local Asian economies; deposit franchises (banks that are adept at accumulating low-cost deposits); health and wellness; infrastructure; and digitalization. In terms of sector positioning, the sub-advisor believes that areas that are less exposed to economic-growth rates will outperform owing to attractive valuations and earnings momentum. Among sectors exposed to faster economic growth, Financials is favoured by the sub-advisor.

There have been big differences in performance among emerging markets in recent years. Countries that embrace legal and financial reforms will end up as the winners, in the view of the sub-advisor, which is particularly optimistic about the outlook for India. In addition to reforms, India offers a good choice of high-quality businesses. The Fund is also maintaining overweight positions in South Africa and Chile, given a host of attractively valued companies.

Effective October 2, 2017, the administration fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series T5, Series D, Series F, Series FT5 and Series O units of the Fund. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.21%, Advisor Series – 2.21%, Series T5 – 2.26%, Series D – 1.26%, Series F – 0.99%, Series FT5 – 1.00% and Series O – 0.16%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series T5      | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |
| Series FT5     | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of small-cap companies located or active in emerging markets.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the portfolio manager selects equity securities of companies in emerging-market countries, including, but not limited to, China, Brazil, South Korea, Taiwan, India, South Africa, Russia, Mexico, Peru, Malaysia, Indonesia, Turkey, Chile, Thailand and Poland. The Fund's investment process is based primarily on fundamental research, although the portfolio manager will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection is ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook. The portfolio manager also assesses the economic outlook in each emerging-market region, including expected growth, market valuations and economic trends. The Fund is diversified by sector and emerging market country to help reduce risk.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $576 million as of December 31, 2018, from $492 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.2%, which outperformed the 11.3% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equity markets faced a challenging 2018, given U.S.-China trade tensions and a slowing economic expansion, notably in China, which accounts for a significant portion of the world's growth. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the U.S. Federal Reserve and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. This environment created negative sentiment toward emerging markets, which have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar is rising significantly.

The Fund outperformed its benchmark due mainly to strong stock selection returns. Country and sector allocations also contributed.

Stock selection was strong across most sectors, and particularly in Materials and Information Technology. In the Materials sector, the Brazilian materials company Duratex, a maker of wood products, benefited from a rally in Brazilian equity markets after the October election of business-friendly presidential candidate Bolsonaro. In the Information Technology sector, Cyient performed well on strong revenue and earnings growth. The provider of information-technology services also benefited from weakness in the Indian currency, given that it derives most of its revenue from overseas.

At the country level, stock selection was especially strong in India, China and Thailand. In China, the food and beverage company Vitasoy reported strong sales, particularly of soy milk, as Chinese consumers are gravitating towards healthier foods. In Thailand, the Financials company Aeon Thana extended its streak of strong financial results and market-share gains.

Recent Developments

The past three years have been challenging for emerging-market small-cap stocks, which had outperformed large-cap stocks for a decade. In 2016 and 2017, the underperformance was attributable to relatively low benchmark weightings in outperforming areas such as the Information Technology sector and China, while in 2018 it was due the impact of India, Brazil and Taiwan, and sectors such as Communication Services, Industrials and Information Technology.

Small-capitalization stocks in two of the markets favoured by the sub-advisor, Brazil and India, underperformed substantially in 2018, and both markets appear to now offer attractive investment opportunities. Small-cap stocks in developed markets consistently outperform larger-cap stocks, and the sub-advisor is now starting to see this trend play out in emerging markets, with emerging-market small-cap stocks outperforming their larger counterparts over longer time periods.

Effective October 2, 2017, the administration fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D, Series F and Series O units of the Fund. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.19%, Advisor Series – 2.23%, Series D – 1.38%, Series F – 1.13% and Series O – 0.16%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series D       | 1.10%           | 23%                   | 77%    |
| Series F       | 0.85%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of a diversified mix of companies operating in various countries around the world across a range of sectors that may grow their dividends over time.

The Fund invests in stocks that have undergone a selection process emphasizing companies with a sustainable competitive advantage, high and sustainable profitability and strong management teams.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $3.0 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $2.8 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 0.1%, which outperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

Top contributors to the Fund's returns included U.S. discount retailer TJX, which had a strong third quarter, as well as the U.S. software company Microsoft and U.S. health-care provider UnitedHealth, both of which posted strong financial growth.

Stocks that had a negative impact on returns included the German package-delivery company Deutsche Post DHL, whose shares declined towards the end of the year on concerns about a slowdown in global trade. Anheuser-Busch InBev, the Belgium-based brewer, hurt relative returns given concerns about volume growth and high exposure to emerging markets. Naspers, the South African media-holdings company, was hurt by emerging-market declines and reaction to the partial sale of its stake in Tencent.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world's second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debts alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

The sub-advisor is committed to minimizing the impact of the weakening macroeconomic environment on the Fund. Picking companies with consistent earnings and strong balance sheets diversified across regions and industries should drive returns.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series T5 and Series T8 units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.14%, Advisor Series – 2.10%, Series T5 – 2.09% and Series T8 – 2.07%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series T5      | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series T8      | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |
| Series FT5     | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of a diversified mix of companies operating in various countries around the world across a range of sectors that may grow their dividends over time, while minimizing the exposure to currency fluctuations between foreign currencies and the Canadian dollar. The Fund may also invest in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate.

The Fund invests in stocks that have undergone a selection process emphasizing companies with a sustainable competitive advantage, high and sustainable profitability and strong management teams. The Fund uses currency hedges to minimize the impact of fluctuations in foreign currencies versus the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $21 million as of December 31, 2018, from $26 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 6.9%, which outperformed the 7.8% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

Top contributors to the Fund's returns included U.S. discount retailer TJX, which had a strong third-quarter; as well as the U.S. software company Microsoft and U.S. health-care provider UnitedHealth, both of which posted strong financial growth.

Stocks that had a negative impact on returns included the German package-delivery company Deutsche Post DHL, whose shares declined towards the end of the year on concerns about a slowdown in global trade. Anheuser-Busch InBev, the Belgium-based brewer, hurt relative returns given concerns about volume growth and high exposure to emerging markets. Naspers, the South African media-holdings company, was hurt by emerging-market declines and reaction to the partial sale of its stake in Tencent.

The Fund's currency-hedging strategy had a negative impact on returns as unitholders did not benefit from the overall rise in global currencies versus the Canadian dollar during 2018.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world's second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debts alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

The sub-advisor is committed to minimizing the impact of the weakening macroeconomic environment on the Fund. Picking companies with consistent earnings and strong balance sheets diversified across regions and industries should drive returns.

<sup>4</sup> From May 4, 2016.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series T5      | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of a diversified mix of companies operating around the world and across a range of sectors.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the portfolio manager uses primarily fundamental research to assess the economic outlook for regions around the world, including expected growth, market valuations and economic trends. The Fund may invest in American Depositary Receipts and may invest as much as 10% of its assets in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $916 million as of December 31, 2018, from $922 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 0.1%, which outperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

Top contributors to the Fund's returns included U.S. discount retailer TJX, which had a strong third quarter; U.S. health-care provider UnitedHealth, which posted strong financial results; and U.S. medical equipment and services company Danaher.

Stocks that had a negative impact on returns included the German package-delivery company Deutsche Post DHL, whose shares declined towards the end of the year on concerns about a slowdown in global trade. Shares of U.S. flooring manufacturer Mohawk declined amid higher costs, and the position was eliminated from the portfolio. Anheuser-Busch InBev, the Belgium-based brewer, hurt relative returns given concerns about volume growth and high exposure to emerging markets.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world's second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debts alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

The sub-advisor is committed to minimizing the impact of the weakening macroeconomic environment on the Fund. Picking companies with consistent earnings and strong balance sheets diversified across regions and industries should drive returns.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.04%, Advisor Series – 2.08%, Series D – 1.28% and Series F – 0.95%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series T5      | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of a diversified mix of companies operating around the world and across a range of sectors. The Fund generally invests in fewer companies and has a more concentrated portfolio than other global equity funds.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the portfolio manager uses primarily fundamental research to assess the economic outlook for regions around the world, including expected growth, market valuations and economic trends. The Fund may invest in American Depositary Receipts and may invest as much as 10% of its assets in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $3.4 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $2.9 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units were unchanged, which outperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

Top contributors to the Fund's returns included U.S. discount retailer TJX, which had a strong third quarter; U.S. health-care provider UnitedHealth, which posted strong financial results; and U.S. medical equipment and services company Danaher.

Stocks that had a negative impact on returns included the German package-delivery company Deutsche Post DHL, whose shares declined towards the end of the year on concerns about a slowdown in global trade. Shares of U.S. flooring manufacturer Mohawk declined amid higher costs, and the position was eliminated from the portfolio. Anheuser-Busch InBev, the Belgium-based brewer, hurt relative returns given concerns about volume growth and high exposure to emerging markets.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world's second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debts alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

The sub-advisor is committed to minimizing the impact of the weakening macroeconomic environment on the Fund. Picking companies with consistent earnings and strong balance sheets diversified across regions and industries should drive returns.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.09%, Advisor Series – 2.08%, Series D – 1.25% and Series F – 1.00%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in equity securities of a diversified mix of companies operating in various countries around the world across a range of sectors, while minimizing the exposure to currency fluctuations between foreign currencies and the Canadian dollar.

The Fund invests its assets primarily in units of the RBC Global Equity Focus Fund, which is sub-advised by RBC Global Asset Management (UK) Limited, or underlying funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM. Each underlying fund’s investment process is primarily based on fundamental research, although the sub-advisor will also consider quantitative and technical factors. Stock selection decisions are ultimately based on an understanding of the company, its business and its outlook.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on January 29, 2018, and its net asset value was $5 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world’s second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debt levels alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

The portfolio manager is committed to minimizing the impact of the weakening macroeconomic environment on the Fund. Picking companies with consistent earnings and strong balance sheets diversified across regions and industries should drive returns.

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Sub-Advisor

RBC Global Asset Management (UK) Limited is the sub-advisor and provides investment advice for the Fund. The sub-advisor earns a fee which is calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. The sub-advisor is paid by the manager from the management fee paid by the Fund.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients’ investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. <sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies throughout the world using a quantitative investment approach.

The Fund is managed using a quantitative investment model designed to select individual stocks while controlling portfolio-level risk. This involves building a portfolio that maximizes exposure to factors associated with outperformance, while controlling for exposure to risk factors. The portfolio manager will diversify across industries within the global market.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $295 million as of December 31, 2018, from $294 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 3.6%, which underperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

A holding in Citigroup hurt performance during the period. Positions in the Consumer Staples sector also had a negative impact on performance. Nestlé detracted from returns for the year.

In the Industrials sector, the Fund's position in Boeing added significantly to returns. The Information Technology sector also performed well during the year, with big contributions from Intuit and Mastercard.

Portfolio turnover was high for the Fund given the portfolio manager's model-driven investment process.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. No management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MSCI World Total Return Net Index (CAD)

The returns of each series may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. The Benchmark index returns do not include any costs of investing. See Management Discussion of Fund Performance for a discussion of performance relative to the Benchmark index.

Series 0 units have been available for sale to unitholders since June 28, 2013.

Inception dates are not provided for series that have been in existence for more than 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of global companies using a quantitative approach. The Fund seeks to achieve a reduced level of volatility of returns compared with the broader global equity market.

The Fund is managed using a quantitative investment model designed to select individual stocks while controlling portfolio-level risk. This involves building a portfolio that maximizes exposure to factors associated with outperformance, while controlling for exposure to risk factors. The portfolio manager will diversify across industries within the global market.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $1.2 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.0 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 4.4%, which outperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

A holding in Magna International hurt performance during the period. Positions in the Consumer Staples sector also held back returns. A position in Pepsico had a negative impact on performance during the year.

In the Utilities sector, the Fund's position in CLP Holdings added significantly to returns. The Health Care sector also performed well during the year, with big contributions from Roche and United Health.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series T5, Series D, Series F and Series FT5 units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.06%, Advisor Series – 2.11%, Series T5 – 2.15%, Series D – 1.24%, Series F – 1.00% and Series FT5 – 1.02%.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in equity securities of companies throughout the world using a quantitative investment approach. The Fund seeks to achieve a reduced level of volatility of returns as compared to the broader global equity market while minimizing the exposure to currency fluctuations between foreign currencies and the Canadian dollar.

The Fund invests its assets primarily in units of the RBC QUBE Low Volatility Global Equity Fund or underlying funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM. Each underlying fund is managed using a quantitative investment model designed to select individual stocks while controlling portfolio-level risk. This involves building a portfolio that maximizes exposure to factors associated with outperformance while controlling exposure to risk factors.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate low-to-medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on January 29, 2018, and its net asset value was $6 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world’s second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debt levels alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients’ investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust (“RBC IS”) or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;

Inter-Fund Trading

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund provides the potential for long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies throughout the world and follows a socially responsible approach to investing. Investments that qualify for inclusion in the Fund must possess strong environmental, social and governance practices relative to industry peers, as defined by Sustainalytics Best-of-Sector™ methodology. The Fund may also use derivatives to hedge against the fluctuations in the value of foreign currencies relative to the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $348 million as of December 31, 2018, from $380 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 1.5%, which outperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

Top contributors to the Fund's returns included U.S. discount retailer TJX, which had a strong third quarter; U.S. health-care provider UnitedHealth, which posted strong financial results; and U.S. medical equipment and services company Danaher.

Stocks that had a negative impact on returns included the German package-delivery company Deutsche Post DHL, whose shares declined towards the end of the year on concerns about a slowdown in global trade. Shares of U.S. flooring manufacturer Mohawk declined amid higher costs, and the position was eliminated from the portfolio. Naspers, the South African media-holdings company, was hurt by emerging-market declines and reaction to the partial sale of its stake in Tencent.

Sustainalytics conducted one review covering the Fund's holdings in 2018. Eligibility was determined in relation to the Environmental, Social and Governance ("ESG") criteria developed by RBC GAM in consultation with Sustainalytics. In the opinion of Sustainalytics, all holdings in the Fund were eligible in the latest review, based on the above criteria. However, during the year, four companies were removed from the Fund as they no longer met certain ESG criteria.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world's second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debts alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

The sub-advisor is committed to minimizing the impact of the weakening macroeconomic environment on the Fund. Picking companies with consistent earnings and strong balance sheets diversified across regions and industries should drive returns.

Effective June 30, 2017, the administration fees were changed in respect of Series A units of the Fund. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.09%.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.13% and Advisor Series – 2.12%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund provides the potential for long-term capital growth by investing primarily in a diversified mix of companies operating in various countries around the world across a range of sectors, with the exception of issuers directly engaged in the extraction, processing and transportation of fossil fuels such as coal, oil and natural gas. The Fund may also use derivatives to hedge against the fluctuations in the value of foreign currencies relative to the Canadian dollar.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $123 million as of December 31, 2018, from $116 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 0.2%, which outperformed the 0.7% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 1.3%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

Top contributors to the Fund's returns included U.S. discount retailer TJX, which had a strong third quarter; U.S. health-care provider UnitedHealth, which posted strong financial results; and U.S. medical equipment and services company Danaher.

Stocks that had a negative impact on returns included the German package-delivery company Deutsche Post DHL, whose shares declined towards the end of the year on concerns about a slowdown in global trade. Shares of U.S. flooring manufacturer Mohawk declined amid higher costs, and the position was eliminated from the portfolio. Anheuser-Busch InBev, the Belgium-based brewer, hurt relative returns given concerns about volume growth and high exposure to emerging markets.

During 2018, the sub-advisor continued to monitor the Fund to ensure that it did not hold investments in entities involved in extracting, processing or transporting coal, oil or natural gas.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

The U.S.-China trade dispute is contributing to the uncertainty, and emerging markets, which have performed poorly since the financial crisis, do not necessarily offer a safe haven. China, the world's second-largest economy and by far the largest emerging market, has high consumer and government debts alongside a slowing economy, and other emerging markets are under pressure from a stronger U.S. dollar and rising U.S. interest rates.

The sub-advisor is committed to minimizing the impact of the weakening macroeconomic environment on the Fund. Picking companies with consistent earnings and strong balance sheets diversified across regions and industries should drive returns.

Effective June 30, 2017, the administration fees were changed in respect of Series O units of the Fund. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series O – 0.02%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting of capital growth and current income by investing primarily in equity securities of companies throughout the world based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects securities on the basis of several factors, including valuation, momentum and return of capital to shareholders. Valuation is based on a variety of measures, including a company's market capitalization ratios and financial statement metrics. The Fund also selects securities based on momentum which may include six-month total return and nine-month total return. Return of capital to shareholders may include dividends and buybacks. The Fund does not hedge currency exposure back to Canadian dollars.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $83 million as of December 31, 2018, from $99 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 7.7%, which underperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Equity markets declined across the board amid global trade tensions and an environment of rising interest rates for much of the year. North American markets, buoyed by relatively strong U.S. economic growth, fell less than most other developed markets in Europe and Asia. The Canadian dollar depreciated in 2018 against most major currencies in developed and emerging markets.

Overweight exposure to smaller-capitalization stocks held back relative returns the most, as the largest global stocks outperformed. Exposure to momentum and shareholder yield, key strategy-selection factors, aided returns. Meanwhile, exposure to stocks with discounted valuation was a detractor, as cheap stocks underperformed. Quality exposures had mixed performance but were a marginal detractor in aggregate.

Security selection had an overall negative impact on returns. An underweight allocation to the Health Care sector and an overweight in the Materials sector held back performance. An overweight allocation to the Utilities sector and an underweight in Financials aided performance. Security selection in the Consumer Staples, Health Care and Financials sectors contributed to performance, while security selection in Information Technology, Consumer Discretionary and Industrials hurt performance. Medifast, Plus500 and Intuitive Surgical were the largest contributors to returns. A lack of exposure to Microsoft and Amazon held back returns, and a position in Seagate Technology also had a negative effect on performance.

Country allocations and security selection both had an overall negative impact on performance. Overweight allocations to South Africa and South Korea and an underweight allocation to the U.S. hurt returns, and security selection in the U.S. and Japan also hurt performance. Underweight allocations to France and Germany aided returns, and so did security selection in Spain and Australia.

Due to the Fund's investment process and market conditions over the course of 2018, the sub-advisor decreased allocations to the Financials sector and increased allocations to the Communication Services sector.

The sub-advisor has no recent developments to report.

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies around the world, including companies located or active in emerging markets, using a quantitative investment approach.

To achieve the Fund's objective, the portfolio manager uses a quantitative investment model designed to select individual stocks while controlling portfolio-level risk. This involves building a portfolio that maximizes exposure to factors associated with outperformance, while controlling for exposure to risk factors.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $9 million as of December 31, 2018, unchanged from the end of 2017.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 2.5%, which underperformed the 1.3% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

A holding in Danske Bank hurt relative performance over the period. Positions in the Consumer Staples sector also held back performance. A position in Phillip Morris International had a negative impact on returns for the year.

In the Industrials sector, the Fund's position in Boeing added significantly to returns. The Information Technology sector also performed well during the year, with big contributions from Intuit and Mastercard.

Portfolio turnover was high for the Fund given the portfolio manager's model-driven investment process.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. ### Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. No management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The table shows the annual compound returns for each series of the Fund and for each of the periods indicated ended on December 31, 2018, compared with the following benchmark:

The returns of each series may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. The Benchmark index returns do not include any costs of investing. See Management Discussion of Fund Performance for a discussion of performance relative to the Benchmark index.

Series 0 units have been available for sale to unitholders since March 10, 2014.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies around the world, including companies located or active in emerging markets, using a quantitative investment approach. The Fund seeks to achieve a reduced level of volatility of returns compared to the broader global equity market.

To achieve the Fund's objective, the portfolio manager uses a quantitative investment model designed to select individual stocks while controlling portfolio-level risk. This involves building a portfolio that maximizes exposure to factors associated with outperformance, while controlling for exposure to risk factors.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $123 million as of December 31, 2018, from $130 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units gained 8.9%, which outperformed the 1.3% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

A decade-long period of investor-friendly monetary stimulus and ultralow interest rates appeared to start receding in 2018, leading to concern about the outlook for earnings and borrowing. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in particular, was clear about its plan to raise interest rates steadily and it followed through, fearful that the relatively strong U.S. economy would experience uncomfortably high inflation if rates did not increase.

Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines, with emerging markets underperforming developed markets. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU.

A holding in Walmart hurt performance during the period. Positions in the Consumer Staples sector also held back performance. A position in PepsiCo had a negative impact on returns for the year.

In the Utilities sector, the Fund's position in CLP Holdings added significantly to returns. The Health Care sector also performed well during the year, with big contributions from Intuitive Surgical and UnitedHealth.

Recent Developments

A slowdown in the global economic expansion is among the variables that will influence equity and other financial markets in 2019. Growth has been kept afloat by the U.S. in recent quarters, but stock declines have many investors questioning whether a global recession might soon unfold.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. <sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. No management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues long-term capital growth by investing in equity securities of companies throughout the world that are involved directly or indirectly in the exploration, development, production or distribution of energy and energy-related products, or activities in the Energy sector.

To achieve its goal, the Fund invests in oil and gas companies with proven management, low-cost operations, strong balance sheets, high-quality reserves and consistent growth in the production of crude oil and natural gas. The Fund diversifies holdings among large, mid-size and small oil and gas producers and providers. The Fund may also invest in income trusts.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $191 million as of December 31, 2018, from $248 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 14.1%, which underperformed the 8.3% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 0.5%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Energy equities finished 2018 with losses after a fourth-quarter collapse in crude-oil prices, with most oil and gas shares ending the year near 52-week lows. The plunge in prices was precipitated by President Trump's unexpected decision to allow countries to import oil from Iran, partially lifting sanctions in place against the world's sixth-largest oil producer. As a result, extra Saudi Arabian production designed to make up for lost Iranian output created excess supply. The price for benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude oil declined 25% for the year to US$45 per barrel. U.S. natural-gas prices were essentially unchanged from the start of the year, hovering around US$3 per million per British thermal unit.

The Fund's relative performance versus the benchmark in 2018 was held back by a large overweight position in Concho Resources, which underperformed following the company's US$9.5 billion agreement to acquire RSP Permian, which investors judged to be too expensive given the potential benefits. As well, an overweight position in Neo Lithium, which explores for and produces lithium, a metal used to manufacture batteries for electric vehicles, hurt the Fund's relative performance. These negatives were somewhat offset by the positive impact of overweight positions in ConocoPhillips and Total.

Recent Developments

President Trump's move on Iranian oil exports has temporarily disrupted the supply/demand balance in global crude-oil markets. However, OPEC's decision to cut daily production by 1.2 million barrels (about 1.2% of daily global production) for six months beginning in January 2019 should, in the view of the portfolio manager, lead to a better balance between supply and demand in the first half of 2019, assuming robust demand remains.

The portfolio manager believes that investors continue to underappreciate risks to supply that could lead to sharp price increases. These include the continued decline of Venezuela's crude output; capacity constraints limiting production growth in the southwestern U.S.; and Middle Eastern tensions involving Saudi Arabia and Iran. On the other hand, the portfolio manager believes that the biggest risk to higher prices in 2019 is the possibility of lower demand in the event that trade tensions curtail global economic growth.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O — no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies throughout the world involved directly or indirectly in the exploration, mining and production of precious metals including gold, silver and platinum. The Fund may also invest in bullion, coins, receipts and certificates.

The Fund selects companies with experienced management, strong balance sheets, proven ore bodies or excellent geological potential. The Fund may invest up to 20% of its assets in silver and platinum. The Fund diversifies by investing in senior and junior producers, as well as in pure exploration companies.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $466 million as of December 31, 2018, from $553 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 7.1%, which underperformed the 3.4% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The price of gold ended 2018 about 2% lower than at the beginning of the year, given relatively weak inflation and rising U.S. Treasury yields for most of the year. Gold traded in a narrow range in the first half and declined during the third quarter as the U.S. dollar strengthened and U.S. government-bond yields rose to their highest levels since 2011. Strong U.S. economic data and expectations that the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") would continue to raise interest rates also resulted in lower investor demand for precious-metal ETFs. The price of gold ended the year at US$1,283 per ounce, while silver fell 10% and platinum declined 16%. Palladium bucked the trend, climbing 15% on robust demand from automakers.

It was not until mid-October that gold prices began to recover amid doubts about the sustainability of U.S. economic growth. Moreover, mounting U.S.-China trade tensions and indications that the U.K.'s separation from the European Union might not go as smoothly as hoped stimulated demand for safe-haven investments such as gold and other precious metals.

Stocks that had a positive impact on the Fund's performance included Kirkland Lake Gold, Wesdome Mining and OceanaGold, which had success in finding gold or developing new mines. Returns were also boosted by the portfolio manager's decision to avoid companies such as New Gold, Eldorado Gold and Guyana Goldfields, which failed to deliver on mining projects.

Returns were held back by overweight positions in Alamos Gold and Mag Silver, as well as underweight positions in AngloGold Ashanti and Barrick Gold, which outperformed the benchmark.

Recent Developments

In the portfolio manager's view, precious-metal equities are poised to take advantage of geopolitical tensions and/or any hint of global economic weakness that disrupts the Fed's ability to raise interest rates. The portfolio manager continues to invest primarily in higher-quality companies with superior assets, good cost controls and disciplined management teams – companies that can outperform in any commodity price environment.

Precious-metals reserves and spending on exploration are in decline, which could lead to increased merger-and-acquisition activity in 2019. The recently completed Barrick-Randgold merger could spur additional takeover activity. The Fund holds junior mining companies with attractive deposits, some of which could become takeover targets as larger companies seek to increase reserves.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing in stocks of companies around the world that are directly or indirectly involved in exploring for, developing, producing or distributing natural and other resources.

The Fund pursues global companies with a leading market position, high and sustainable profitability, sound finances and attractive valuations relative to peers and the market. The Fund will focus on mid- to large-cap stocks, but will also invest in smaller companies.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $125 million as of December 31, 2018, from $163 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 11.9%, which underperformed the 8.8% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 0.5%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Stock selection in the Fund's Energy-sector segment had an overall negative impact on relative performance, as did a slight overweight allocation to the underperforming Energy sector.

Energy equities finished 2018 with losses after a fourth-quarter collapse in crude-oil prices, with most oil and gas shares ending the year near 52-week lows. The plunge in prices was precipitated by President Trump's unexpected decision to allow limited oil exports by Iran, the world's sixth-biggest oil producer, rather than impose sanctions that would ban exports outright. As a result, extra Saudi Arabian production designed to make up for lost Iranian output created excess supply. The price for benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude oil declined 25% for the year to US$45 per barrel. U.S. natural-gas prices were essentially unchanged from the start of the year, hovering around US$3 per million per British thermal unit.

The Fund's relative performance versus the benchmark in 2018 was hurt by a large overweight position in the oil and gas company Concho Resources. The stock underperformed following a

US$9.5 billion agreement to buy RSP Permian, a deal that was judged by investors as too expensive given the potential benefits. These losses were somewhat offset by the outperformance of overweight positions, including ConocoPhillips and Total S.A.

In the Materials-sector segment, iron ore, steel, lumber and copper prices all weakened into the second half of 2018, as trade disputes and rising U.S. interest rates led to concern about a recession. Steel profitability weakened in mid-2018, putting pressure on iron-ore prices, and copper prices also fell. The Fund's investment in the large mining companies Rio Tinto and BHP aided relative returns, as these companies are generating significant free cash flow and have strong balance sheets. Returns were held back by overweight positions in the copper producer First Quantum and the lithium producer Neo Lithium, as well as the lumber producers Interfor and Conifex.

Recent Developments

President Trump's move on Iranian oil exports has temporarily disrupted the supply/demand balance in global crude-oil markets. However, OPEC's decision to cut daily production by 1.2 million barrels (about 1.2% of daily global production) for six months beginning in January 2019 should, in the view of the portfolio manager, lead to a better balance between supply and demand in the first half of 2019, assuming robust demand remains.

Worsening pollution in China and falling profitability in steelmaking could reduce mills' demand for iron ore in 2019, pressuring prices of iron ore.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.14% and Advisor Series – 2.09%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

The change in benchmark better reflects the composition of the Fund.

The broad-based index is the MSCI World Total Return Net Index (CAD).

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equity securities of companies operating in various countries around the world that develop or market technology and telecommunications products and services.

The Fund invests in global companies with a leading market position, high and sustainable profitability, sound finances and attractive valuations relative to peers and the market. The Fund will focus on mid- to large-cap stocks, but will also invest in smaller companies.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $164 million as of December 31, 2018, from $99 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 4.9%, which underperformed the 6.2% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 0.5%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Technology stocks outperformed during 2018, a year in which global stock markets posted broad declines. Information Technology was the third-best-performing sector during the year, spurred by significant growth in sales and earnings. From April to September, global equities enjoyed a stretch of strong returns driven primarily by earnings growth. However, volatility emerged in October as rising U.S. interest rates created concern about the sustainability of the global economic expansion.

An underweight position in NXP Semiconductors aided relative returns in 2018 after the company's agreement to be acquired by Qualcomm fell apart amid Chinese regulator concerns. The stock was further pressured by investor worries that trade conflicts would reduce demand for the company's products. Returns were held back by an overweight position in Applied Materials, which supplies equipment, services and software necessary for manufacturing semiconductors.

Recent Developments

While the portfolio manager's base case is for stocks to rise modestly over the next year, there are several scenarios that could lead to different outcomes. A policy mistake by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") – raising interest rates too fast, for example – or an escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration, which could increase the costs of goods, are the most likely causes of a downturn, given the potential for both to stamp out the expansion. In the upside scenario, the expansion would remain intact through 2021, perhaps because the Fed soon pauses its plan to hike rates or the Trump administration reaches a trade agreement with China.

The recent equity pullback has arguably priced in most apparent challenges. For investors, reduced stock-market valuations mean that future returns will not be entirely reliant on earnings growth, in the view of the portfolio manager.

Related-Party Transactions

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.15% and Advisor Series – 2.13%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.75%           | 57%                   | 43%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a competitive level of monthly income by investing primarily in short-term, high-quality fixed-income securities issued or guaranteed by Canadian federal, provincial or municipal governments or corporations, asset-backed securities and corporate bonds.

The Fund invests no more than 40% of its assets in high-quality first mortgages on Canadian residential property insured by the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Corporate bonds have a minimum rating of BBB as rated by the Dominion Bond Rating Service or its equivalent.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $1.3 billion as of December 31, 2018, unchanged from the end of 2017.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units gained 1.8%, which underperformed the 1.9% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Canadian bond prices fell in 2018, pushing up yields, as the Canadian economy gained momentum after a slow start and the U.S. Federal Reserve tightened monetary policy amid a strengthening global economy. It was evident by mid-year that monetary policy was too loose given the pace of the domestic economic expansion. The Bank of Canada (the "BOC") raised its short-term benchmark interest rate three times during the year in the belief that a quickening economy would stoke inflation, and short-term bond yields spiked higher in reaction. Later in the year, however, the outlook soured as Canadian oil prices collapsed, financial conditions deteriorated globally, and trade tensions between the U.S. and China intensified. The BOC appeared to step back from its optimistic outlook, particularly as inflation pressures abated and markets were weighed down by fears of a global economic slowdown heading into 2019. This resulted in a retreat by short-term bond yields to levels where they began the year.

The portfolio manager traded government bonds during the period, aiding returns when the BOC was signaling higher interest rates. Exposure to non-government bonds remained stable for most of the year, as these types of securities did not offer enough extra yield to make them attractive relative to government bonds. A weaker economic outlook later in 2018 boosted the extra yield available on non-government yields somewhat, prompting the portfolio manager to slightly increase the portfolio's allocation to these types of bonds. Overall, however, the portfolio manager took fewer risks in search of higher yields because of the uncertainty facing the Canadian economy.

Recent Developments

The BOC has said it believes that more rate hikes will be necessary given Canada's economic performance this year. What has changed is the pace at which the BOC will proceed with this plan. With the global economy expected to slow next year, the urgency to tighten Canadian monetary policy has eased, particularly as inflation pressures have abated. The portfolio manager therefore expects Canadian yields to stay relatively steady through 2019, and to gradually adjust higher if and when the BOC signals that the economy is strong enough or inflation high enough to warrant additional hikes.

The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.35% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The new benchmark (the "New benchmark") is the FTSE Canada Short Term Bond Index.

The old benchmark (the "Old benchmark") is the FTSE Canada Short Term Government Bond Index.

The change in benchmark better reflects the composition of the Fund.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term returns consisting primarily of interest income and moderate capital growth. The Fund invests in investment-grade fixed-income securities issued by Canadian corporations and may hold similar securities of U.S. corporations.

The Fund uses a disciplined approach to assess opportunities based on the overall direction of interest rates, expected changes in interest rate spreads, changes in individual credit ratings or quality perceptions, foreign currency risk and corporate bond risk premium and rate change. The Fund may invest up to 30% of its assets in foreign securities and no more than 20% may be invested in securities rated below BBB by Dominion Bond Rating Service or its equivalent.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $955 million as of December 31, 2018, from $1.4 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units gained 0.6%, which underperformed the 1.1% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index rose 1.4%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Bonds issued by Canadian corporations underperformed federal bonds in 2018, as investors became concerned about the potential for slowing global economic growth, an intensifying trade dispute between the U.S. and China that resulted in each country boosting tariffs on the other, and geopolitical risks linked to Middle East tensions and the U.K.'s plan to leave the European Union. These risks led to an increase in the excess yield earned on corporate bonds over similar maturity federal bonds, resulting in smaller relative price gains for corporate bonds.

Lower-than-benchmark exposure to the Energy sector added to the Fund's performance, as oil prices fell significantly during the year, while exposure to preferred shares hurt performance, as interest rates plunged in the fourth quarter. Preferred shares, whose dividends are reset periodically, generally decline when bond yields fall because the likelihood increases that preferred dividends will decrease. Foreign-currency trading contributed to the Fund's performance.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects interest rates to rise marginally over the next 12 months because expectations for future economic growth have moderated. In the view of the portfolio manager, fixed-income markets will remain more volatile over the first few months of 2019 due to trade disputes, geopolitical risks, the sharp decline in oil prices and high levels of consumer debt. As a result, excess yields earned on corporate bonds over federal bonds, a sign of investor fear, will likely increase until some of these risks begin to recede. The portfolio manager expects corporate-bond returns in 2019 to be muted for a second year in a row. However, the underperformance of corporate bonds in late 2018 has offered the potential for gains sometime in 2019, in the view of the portfolio manager.

The Fund reduced exposure to preferred shares during the year given the decline in interest rates. However, the portfolio manager is maintaining the current allocation because valuations are now attractive and may increase exposure if conditions warrant.

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. ### Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Brokers and Dealers

The Fund has established standard brokerage and dealing agreements at market rates with related parties. These related-party commissions were $2,000 (2017 – $1,000) or 7% (2017 – 2%) of the total transaction costs paid for this Fund.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series F — 0.49%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.40% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a competitive monthly income stream through relatively tax-efficient distributions of dividend income, interest income and capital gains, and to provide the potential for modest capital growth.

The Fund invests primarily in higher-yielding Canadian fixed-income securities such as corporate bonds, debentures, notes and preferred shares, and higher-yielding Canadian common shares, real estate investment trusts, income trusts and other similar securities.

Corporate bonds in the portfolio must have a minimum rating of BBB from Dominion Bond Rating Service or its equivalent. The Fund may also invest in comparable foreign securities.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 50% for fixed income and 50% for equities. The target weightings for each asset class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $82 million as of December 31, 2018, from $93 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 4.2%, which underperformed the 3.7% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 57.50 cents per Series O unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of $7.13 per Series O unit, consisting of $3.29 per unit of interest and $3.84 of dividends. The annual payout reflects an additional year-end distribution of 23 cents per Series O unit.

The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. In the Energy sector, a number of proposed crude-oil pipelines are stalled due to regulatory delays and/or the opposition of environmental activists. In the housing market, regulatory changes to mortgage underwriting have cooled housing activity. On the trade front, protectionism fears have eased following trade renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Bonds issued by Canadian corporations underperformed federal bonds in 2018 as investors became concerned about the potential for slowing global economic growth; an intensifying trade dispute between the U.S. and China that resulted in each country boosting tariffs on the other; and geopolitical risks linked to Middle East tensions and the U.K.'s plan to leave the European Union. These risks led to an increase in the excess yield earned on corporate bonds over similar maturity federal bonds, resulting in smaller relative price gains for corporate bonds.

In the equity segment, relative performance was aided by security selection. An overweight position in Quebecor was beneficial for relative returns, as the company reported strong operating results and encouraging numbers from its new discount mobile brand Fizz Mobile. In addition, an overweight position in Loblaw aided relative performance, as the food retailer reported strong results, particularly at its retail-drug division, Shoppers Drug Mart. Overweight exposure to the Energy sector held back returns. In particular, an overweight position in ARC Resources was a negative, as the company reported disappointing earnings.

In the Fund's fixed-income segment, lower-than-benchmark exposure to the Energy sector bolstered the Fund's relative performance, as oil prices fell significantly during the year.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager's GDP growth forecast for 2019 is below consensus but nevertheless represents a slight increase from prior estimates thanks to the tentative resolution of trade negotiations. The portfolio manager expects the overall pace of interest-rate increases in Canada to lag that of the U.S. Economic competitiveness is a cause for concern because Canada's tax rates and regulatory and environmental framework are seen as less business-friendly than in the U.S. The federal government's recent decision to allow accelerated depreciation may help level the playing field.

The portfolio manager expects interest rates to rise marginally over the next 12 months because expectations for future economic growth have moderated. In the view of the portfolio manager, fixed-income markets will remain more volatile over the first few months of 2019 due to trade disputes, geopolitical risks, the sharp decline in oil prices and high levels of consumer debt. As a result, excess yields earned on corporate bonds over federal bonds, a sign of investor fear, will likely increase until some of these risks begin to recede, in the view of the portfolio manager.

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.50% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to achieve long-term returns consisting of regular dividend income, which benefits from the preferential tax treatment given to dividends from Canadian companies, and modest long-term capital growth.

The Fund invests primarily in common shares with above-average dividend yields and also invests in preferred shares of major Canadian companies. The Fund selects companies with long-term prospects of growing their dividends and tends to focus on interest-sensitive securities to achieve dividend income, primarily investing in the Financial Services, Telecommunications and Utilities sectors.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $2.4 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $2.8 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 7.2%, which outperformed the 8.5% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index lost 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. In the Energy sector, a number of proposed crude-oil pipelines are stalled due to regulatory delays and/or the opposition of environmental activists. In the housing market, regulatory changes to mortgage underwriting have cooled housing activity. On the trade front, protectionism fears have eased following trade renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Asset weighting and security selection both contributed to relative performance in 2018. An overweight position in Thomson Reuters contributed to relative returns. Shares in the company advanced after it bought back a material amount of stock and shifted its focus towards its legal and tax units following the sale of a portion of its financial-services unit to Blackstone. The Fund also benefited from an overweight position in Loblaw, as the food retailer reported strong financial results, particularly at its retail drug division, Shoppers Drug Mart.

The headwinds facing the Canadian Energy sector were reflected in the Fund through its overweight position in PrairieSky Royalty. The company's share price slid amid a tough environment for western Canadian oil exploration and production businesses, from whom the firm collects royalties for the use of its land.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager's GDP growth forecast for 2019 is below consensus but nevertheless represents a slight increase from the prior forecast thanks to the tentative resolution of trade negotiations. The portfolio manager expects the overall pace of interest-rate increases in Canada to lag that of the U.S. Economic competitiveness is a cause for concern because Canada's tax rates and regulatory and environmental framework are seen as less business-friendly than in the U.S. The federal government's recent decision to allow accelerated depreciation may help level the playing field.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. <sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.55% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The blended benchmark (the "Benchmark") is composed of:

- 66% S&P/TSX Capped Composite Total Return Index
- 26% S&P/TSX Index – Financials (CAD)
- 5% S&P/TSX Index – Telecommunication Services (CAD)
- 3% S&P/TSX Index – Utilities (CAD)

The broad-based index is the S&P/TSX Capped Composite Total Return Index.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a competitive current income stream relative to that generally available in the broad Canadian equity market, and the potential for long-term capital growth through capital appreciation.

The Fund invests in dividend-paying Canadian companies with above-average financial strength and predictable and growing levels of profitability. The Fund will have representation in at least five of the 10 S&P/TSX industry sectors.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $61 million as of December 31, 2018, from $93 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 7.7%, which outperformed the 7.8% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Equity markets were much more volatile in 2018 than in 2017. Globally, concerns about trade tariffs and higher interest rates acted as headwinds to equity prices. For Canadian energy stocks, the additional headwind of extremely low prices for Canadian oil added to the volatility. On a positive note, corporate earnings in Canada and other global markets continued to trend higher.

The portfolio performed in line with the benchmark in 2018. Stronger performance from holdings in the Energy and Industrials sectors as well as a complete absence of assets in the underperforming Consumer Discretionary sector contributed to relative performance. Holdings in the Real Estate and Information Technology sectors hurt relative performance.

From a stock perspective, Waste Connections, Allied Properties REIT and Fortis Inc. were three of the biggest contributors to relative performance. Waste Connections reported continued strength across its operations, leading to earnings and revenue surprising on the upside in the latest quarterly results. The stock continues to benefit from a large acquisition a few years ago and expectations that industry volumes and prices will continue to increase.

NFI Group, Altus Group and Manulife Financial were among the stocks that had the most negative impact on relative performance. NFI, a Winnipeg-based bus manufacturer, posted disappointing earnings in recent quarters. Concerns about the future of North American trade and demand for trucks and buses were among the concerns for the sub-advisor, which is considering eliminating the holding from the portfolio.

Recent Developments

Effective February 27, 2019, Beutel, Goodman & Company Ltd. was appointed as sub-advisor of the Fund and the name of the Fund was changed to RBC Private Fundamental Canadian Equity Pool. The investment objectives of the Fund have not changed; however, the new name more clearly identifies the Fund's investment strategy and process.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Brokers and Dealers

The Fund has established standard brokerage and dealing agreements at market rates with related parties. These related-party commissions were $5,000 (2017 – $10,000) or 18% (2017 – 23%) of the total transaction costs paid for this Fund.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.75% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance.

Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The blended benchmark (the "Benchmark") is composed of:

- 80% S&P/TSX Capped Composite Total Return Index
- 5% S&P/TSX Index – Utilities (CAD)
- 5% S&P/TSX Index – Telecommunication Services (CAD)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks long-term total returns primarily consisting of capital appreciation by investing in equity securities of major Canadian companies.

The Fund invests primarily in large-cap Canadian companies and may take advantage of opportunities in mid-cap companies. The Fund diversifies across S&P/TSX industry sectors, within minimum and maximum exposures. The Fund may use derivatives for hedging purposes and as a substitute for direct investment.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $4.5 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $4.3 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 7.9%, which outperformed the 8.9% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. In the Energy sector, a number of proposed crude-oil pipelines are stalled due to regulatory delays and/or the opposition of environmental activists. In the housing market, regulatory changes to mortgage underwriting have cooled housing activity. On the trade front, protectionism fears have eased following trade renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The relative performance of the Fund benefited from both asset weighting and security selection in 2018. An overweight position in Thomson Reuters contributed to relative returns. Shares in the company advanced after it bought back a material amount of stock and shifted focus towards its legal and tax units following the sale of a portion of its financial-services unit to Blackstone. In addition, an overweight position in Aritzia was beneficial for the Fund's returns. The Canadian retailer of women's clothes continues to post strong financial results as it expands in the U.S.

The headwinds facing the Canadian Energy sector were reflected in the Fund through its overweight position in PrairieSky Royalty. The company's share price slid amid a tough environment for western Canadian oil exploration and production businesses, from whom the firm collects royalties for the use of its land.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager's GDP growth forecast for 2019 is below consensus but nevertheless represents a slight increase from prior estimates thanks to the tentative resolution of trade negotiations. The portfolio manager expects the overall pace of interest-rate increases in Canada to lag that of the U.S. Economic competitiveness is a cause for concern because Canada's tax rates and regulatory and environmental framework are seen as less business-friendly than in the U.S. The federal government's recent decision to allow accelerated depreciation may help level the playing field.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.55% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term growth primarily through capital appreciation by investing in common stock and equivalent securities of Canadian corporations.

To achieve its objective, the Fund uses a qualitative approach to invest in larger capitalization, well-recognized and soundly managed Canadian companies. It invests in companies that have attractive earnings growth, value, quality and risk characteristics. The Fund diversifies its assets across the S&P/TSX industry sectors, with minimum and maximum exposures.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $152 million as of December 31, 2018, from $201 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 11.6%, which underperformed the 8.9% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The Fund's concentration in mid-cap stocks had a negative impact on relative performance, as these companies fell significantly more in a particularly bad fourth quarter than companies with larger market capitalizations. Another factor in the underperformance was stock selection in the Energy sector, the worst-performing sector. Shares of companies that provide oilfield services and explore for and produce crude oil were hurt by falling oil prices and relatively low prices for Canadian output given a lack of pipeline access. Encana, NuVista Energy, Trican Well Service and CES Energy Solutions were Energy-sector stocks that hurt the Fund's returns. Shares of NuVista and Encana were also negatively affected by announced acquisitions. A lack of exposure to Communication Services, Real Estate and Utilities – all sectors with attractive dividend yields – held back returns as well.

Among the stocks that contributed to returns were CGI, Mitel Networks, Waste Connections and Loblaw. The decision to hold Canadian Pacific Railway instead of Canadian National Railway also boosted returns.

During the year, the Fund added nine stocks and sold eight. The additions were Agnico Eagle Mines; Boyd Group Income Fund; Brookfield Asset Management; Canopy Growth; Constellation Software; HEXO; Jamieson Wellness; Loblaw; and Suncor Energy. The deletions were Bank of Montreal; BRP; Enbridge Inc.; IGM Financial; Mitel Networks; Seven Generations Energy; Torex Gold; and Trican Well Service.

Recent Developments

The U.S.-China trade conflict appears to be determining the direction of financial markets, in the view of the sub-advisor. Assuming the two sides can reach an agreement, the sub-advisor believes that the bull market can continue as long as valuations remain attractive and longer-term interest rates do not rise too high or too quickly.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Brokers and Dealers

The Fund has established standard brokerage and dealing agreements at market rates with related parties. These related-party commissions were $16,000 (2017 – $20,000) or 12% (2017 – 13%) of the total transaction costs paid for this Fund.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.75% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues long-term total returns consisting primarily of capital appreciation by focusing on equity securities of mid-sized Canadian companies that offer above-average prospects for growth. The Fund may also invest in smaller capitalization companies that have adequate liquidity.

The Fund focuses on companies with a history of high growth in sales and earnings, and with above-average prospects for continued growth. The Fund selects companies with strong management, focused business models and a competitive advantage. The Fund typically invests across major industry sectors within minimum and maximum exposures for each sector.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $190 million as of December 31, 2018, from $207 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to investment losses, partially offset by net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 8.6%, which outperformed the 11.1% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. In the Energy sector, a number of proposed crude-oil pipelines are stalled due to regulatory delays and/or the opposition of environmental activists. In the housing market, regulatory changes to mortgage underwriting have cooled housing activity. On the trade front, protectionism fears have eased following trade renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The portfolio benefited from both asset weighting and security selection in 2018, led by companies in the Materials sector. Kirkland Lake Gold stock gained in reaction to strong operating results and the company's willingness to return capital to shareholders. Also positive for relative returns was a position in Aurora Cannabis, which aided performance as the shares benefited in the lead-up to the legalization of cannabis in Canada. Another major contributor to returns was a significant cash position, which enabled the Fund to sidestep some of the negative impact of the market decline. The Fund also benefited from the cash position by increasing investments at more favourable valuations at the very end of the year.

Exposure to Kelt Exploration held back returns. The company, which focuses on exploration, development and production of crude oil and natural gas, reported disappointing earnings amid lower-than-expected production levels.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager's GDP growth forecast for 2019 is below consensus but nevertheless represents a slight increase from prior estimates thanks to the tentative resolution of trade negotiations. The portfolio manager expects the overall pace of interest-rate increases in Canada to lag that of the U.S. Economic competitiveness is a cause for concern because Canada's tax rates and regulatory and environmental framework are seen as less business-friendly than in the U.S. The federal government's recent decision to allow accelerated depreciation may help level the playing field.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.55% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns primarily through capital appreciation by investing in common stocks and equivalent securities of U.S. corporations trading below their intrinsic value.

The Fund typically invests in U.S. and non-U.S. companies that are constituents of the Russell 1000 or S&P 500 indices. The Fund is diversified across major industry sectors, within minimum and maximum exposures.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $328 million as of December 31, 2018, from $371 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units gained 2.2%, which underperformed the 3.4% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Stocks rose at the start of 2018, as investors celebrated legislation that boosted corporate-profit expectations. However, volatility returned as investors became concerned that robust U.S. economic growth would prompt the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise interest rates too quickly and risk snuffing out the expansion. Another headwind for growth that helped to push financial markets lower later in the year was the U.S.-China trade dispute, which intensified as the year progressed.

Relative performance was aided by strong security selection across the Utilities, Real Estate and Materials sectors. Top individual contributors included Motorola Solutions, which benefited from increasing the portion of revenue from services and software rather than equipment. Abbott Laboratories continued to benefit from recent acquisitions and its medical-device business. Booz Allen Hamilton rose on increased federal spending and growth by clients that specialize in information-technology services. Hormel Foods rallied as the company focused on branded products to help offset lower profits from commodity meats. Dr Pepper Snapple agreed to be acquired at a significant premium by Keurig Green Mountain.

Unfavourable security selection in the Information Technology, Communication Services and Consumer Discretionary sectors hurt the Fund's relative performance. Individual stocks that hurt returns included AT&T, amid investor concern regarding competition in its wireless segment and uncertainty about the company's entertainment business. FedEx shares declined on weaker-than-expected profits in the company's express segment and broader investor concerns about the impact of moderating global economic growth. General Mills shares were hurt by disappointing sales of snack foods, yogurt and cereal, but this was offset somewhat by the positive impact of cost controls. Western Alliance Bancorp shares fell after the company reported disappointing profit margins. Halliburton faced lower crude prices, which reduced demand for the company's oilfield services.

Recent Developments

Looking to 2019, corporate earnings growth remains positive, though it is decelerating, after the boost from the lower tax rate as well as the increasing wage pressures from a tight labour market. Tariff and trade uncertainty create headwinds for companies looking to make long-term commitments on capital expenditures, keeping productivity subdued. Companies with pricing power can deal better with such headwinds. The sub-advisor continues to focus on high-quality businesses that offer underappreciated growth prospects and that the sub-advisor believes would fall less than the market in the event of a downturn.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 1.00% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The new benchmark (the "New benchmark") is the Russell 1000 Total Return Net Index (CAD).

The old benchmark (the "Old benchmark") is the Russell 1000 Value Index (CAD).

The change in benchmark better reflects the composition of the Fund.

The returns of each series may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. The New benchmark and Old benchmark index returns do not include any costs of investing. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns primarily through capital appreciation by investing primarily in one or more mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate. The assets are invested in common stocks and equivalent securities of U.S. corporations trading below their potential intrinsic value. The Fund also seeks to minimize exposure to currency fluctuations between the U.S. and Canadian dollars.

To achieve its investment objective, the Fund invests most of its assets in the RBC Private U.S. Large-Cap Value Equity Pool (the “underlying fund”), and uses currency hedges to minimize currency exposure. The underlying fund typically invests in U.S. and non-U.S. companies that are constituents of the Russell 1000 or S&P 500 indices. The underlying fund is diversified across major industry sectors, within minimum and maximum exposures.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying fund. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate medium-to-high investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $16 million as of December 31, 2018, from $20 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series O units lost 7.3%, which underperformed the 6.1% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Stocks rose at the start of 2018, as investors celebrated legislation that boosted corporate-profit expectations. However, volatility returned as investors became concerned that robust U.S. economic growth would prompt the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise interest rates too quickly and risk snuffing out the expansion. Another headwind for growth that helped to push financial markets lower later in the year was the U.S.-China trade dispute, which intensified as the year progressed.

Relative performance was aided by strong security selection across the Utilities, Real Estate and Materials sectors. Top individual contributors included Motorola Solutions, which benefited from increasing the portion of revenue from services and software rather than equipment. Abbott Laboratories continued to benefit from recent acquisitions and its medical-device business. Booz Allen Hamilton rose on increased federal spending and growth by clients that specialize in information-technology services. Hormel Foods rallied as the company focused on branded products to help offset lower profits from commodity meats. Dr Pepper Snapple agreed to be acquired at a significant premium by Keurig Green Mountain.

Unfavourable security selection in the Information Technology, Communication Services and Consumer Discretionary sectors hurt the Fund’s relative performance. Individual stocks that hurt returns included AT&T, amid investor concern regarding competition in its wireless segment and uncertainty about the company’s entertainment business. FedEx shares declined on weaker-than-expected profits in the company’s express segment and broader investor concerns about the impact of moderating global economic growth. General Mills shares were hurt by disappointing sales of snack foods, yogurt and cereal, but this was offset somewhat by the positive impact of cost controls. Western Alliance Bancorp shares fell after the company reported disappointing profit margins. Halliburton faced lower crude prices, which reduced demand for the company’s oilfield services.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the Canadian dollar and the U.S. dollar. This policy had a negative impact on the Fund during 2018, as investors did not benefit from the rise in the U.S. dollar versus the Canadian dollar.

Recent Developments

Looking to 2019, corporate-earnings growth remains positive, though it is decelerating, after the boost from lower tax rates as well as increasing wage pressures from a tight labour market. Tariff and trade uncertainty create headwinds for companies looking to make long-term commitments on capital expenditures, keeping productivity subdued. Companies with pricing power can deal better with such headwinds. The sub-advisor continues to focus on high-quality businesses that offer underappreciated growth prospects and that the sub-advisor believes would fall less than the market in the event of a downturn.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The new benchmark (the "New benchmark") is the Russell 1000 Total Return Net Index (hedged to CAD).

The old benchmark (the "Old benchmark") is the Russell 1000 Value Total Return Net Index (hedged to CAD).

The change in benchmark better reflects the composition of the Fund.

The returns of each series may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. The New benchmark and Old benchmark index returns do not include any costs of investing. See Management Discussion of Fund Performance for a discussion of performance relative to the New benchmark and Old benchmark index.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks long-term growth primarily through capital appreciation by investing in common stocks and equivalent securities of U.S. corporations that offer above-average prospects for growth.

The Fund identifies opportunities using detailed, bottom-up fundamental research performed through the analysis of a company's financial statements, long-term business model and industry attractiveness. The Fund diversifies across major industry sectors. The Fund invests in companies with an attractive combination of large and sustainable market opportunities, experienced and credible management, proprietary products or services, healthy financial position and attractive valuations relative to their long-term growth opportunity.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $407 million as of December 31, 2018, from $376 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to investment returns, partially offset by net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units gained 15.8%, which outperformed the 7.0% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The portfolio outperformed its benchmark due largely to strong stock selection in the Health Care sector, given an environment of mostly rising interest rates, inflationary pressures and global trade tensions. Dexcom, which manufactures glucose-monitoring devices, was one of the best-performing stocks in the portfolio, and, in the view of the sub-advisor, has a significant opportunity to win market share. Shares of Intuitive Surgical, which has a near-monopoly on robotic instruments used in minimally invasive surgery, continued to exceed expectations.

The new Communication Services sector held back portfolio returns the most, given holdings in Electronic Arts, Charter Communications and Facebook. Electronic Arts experienced several setbacks during the year, but the Fund kept the position because the reasons for the investment remain intact and management of the gaming-software company has shown it can recover from obstacles. Charter Communications, on the other hand, was eliminated from the portfolio. The telecommunications company failed to deliver on the sub-advisor's growth expectations. The sub-advisor eliminated Facebook from the portfolio during 2018 amid slowing growth and criticism of the company's approach to user privacy.

The Fund focuses on fast-growing companies that tend to offer little or no dividend. This lack of exposure to high-dividend-yield companies was good for the Fund's relative returns during the period because these companies underperformed as interest rates rose for most of the year.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor has no recent developments to report.

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 1.00% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting primarily of capital appreciation by investing in common stocks of U.S. corporations.

The Fund typically invests in large-cap companies that belong to the Standard & Poor's 500 Index. The Fund will be diversified across industries and, in aggregate, normally will have lower price-to-earnings, price-to-book, and price-to-cash-flow ratios than the Standard & Poor's 500 Index. Equities are also selected based on expectations of improved fundamentals that could result from restructurings, management changes and new-product cycles.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $2.2 billion as of December 31, 2018, unchanged from the end of 2017.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units gained 3.8%, which matched the 3.8% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. stocks fell overall in 2018 due to a significant pullback in the fourth quarter of the year. From April to September, U.S. stocks enjoyed a stretch of strong returns driven primarily by earnings growth. However, volatility emerged in October amid concern that rising interest rates would generate headwinds for economic and earnings growth. The recent market pullback has arguably priced in most apparent challenges, in the view of the portfolio manager, as reduced stock-market valuations mean that future returns will not be entirely reliant on earnings growth.

The Fund's performance in 2018 was largely driven by the Health Care sector. The Fund's overweight position in the pharmaceuticals company Eli Lilly was a boost to relative returns after the company reported positive results in a mid-stage clinical trial for its experimental diabetes drug. Overweight exposure to the health-care equipment company Abbott Laboratories was also positive for the Fund's relative performance.

The Consumer Discretionary sector was the worst-performing sector, hurt by an overweight position in Mohawk Industries. The manufacturer of flooring products, including carpets and ceramic tile, was exposed to a slower housing market and rising costs for the raw materials used to make its products.

Recent Developments

While the portfolio manager's base case is for stocks to rise modestly over the next year, there are several scenarios that could lead to different outcomes. A policy mistake by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") – raising interest rates too fast, for example – or an escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration, which could increase the costs of goods, are the most likely causes of a downturn, given the potential for both to stamp out the expansion, in the view of the portfolio manager. In the upside scenario, the expansion would remain intact through 2021, perhaps because the Fed soon pauses its plan to hike rates or the Trump administration reaches a trade agreement with China.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Brokers and Dealers

The Fund has established standard brokerage and dealing agreements at market rates with related parties. These related-party commissions were $94,000 (2017 – $126,000) or 10% (2017 – 8%) of the total transaction costs paid for this Fund.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series F — 0.74%.

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 0.60% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns consisting primarily of capital appreciation by investing primarily in one or more mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate. The assets are invested in common stocks of U.S. corporations. The Fund also seeks to minimize the exposure of currency fluctuations between the U.S. and Canadian dollars.

To achieve its objective, the Fund invests most of its assets in the RBC Private U.S. Large-Cap Core Equity Pool (the “underlying fund”), and uses currency hedges to minimize currency exposure. The underlying fund typically invests in large-cap companies that belong to the Standard & Poor’s 500 Index. The underlying fund will be diversified across industries and, in aggregate, normally will have lower price-to-earnings, price-to-book, and price-to-cash-flow ratios than the Standard & Poor’s 500 Index. Equities are also selected based on expectations of improved fundamentals that could result from restructurings, management changes and new-product cycles.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying fund. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $49 million as of December 31, 2018, from $60 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series O units lost 5.7%, which matched the 5.7% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. stocks fell overall in 2018 due to a significant pullback in the fourth quarter of the year. From April to September, U.S. stocks enjoyed a stretch of strong returns driven primarily by earnings growth. However, volatility emerged in October amid concern that rising interest rates would generate headwinds for economic and earnings growth. The recent market pullback has arguably priced in most apparent challenges, in the view of the portfolio manager, as reduced stock-market valuations mean that future returns will not be entirely reliant on earnings growth.

The Fund’s performance in 2018 was largely driven by the Health Care sector. The Fund’s overweight position in the pharmaceuticals company Eli Lilly was a boost to relative returns after the company reported positive results in a mid-stage clinical trial for its experimental diabetes drug. Overweight exposure to the health-care equipment company Abbott Laboratories was also positive for the Fund’s relative performance.

The Consumer Discretionary sector was the worst-performing sector, hurt by an overweight position in Mohawk Industries. The manufacturer of flooring products, including carpets and ceramic tile, was exposed to a slower housing market and rising costs for the raw materials used to make its products.

It is the policy of the Fund to maintain currency hedges at all times in order to neutralize exchange-rate movements between the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar. This policy had a negative impact on the Fund in 2018.

Recent Developments

While the portfolio manager’s base case is for stocks to rise modestly over the next year, there are several scenarios that could lead to different outcomes. A policy mistake by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) – raising interest rates too fast, for example – or an escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration, which could increase the costs of goods, are the most likely causes of a downturn, given the potential for both to stamp out the expansion, in the view of the portfolio manager. In the upside scenario, the expansion would remain intact through 2021, perhaps because the Fed soon pauses its plan to hike rates or the Trump administration reaches a trade agreement with China.

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term growth, primarily through capital appreciation, by investing in a portfolio of common stocks and equivalent securities of small- to mid-capitalization U.S. companies.

The Fund typically invests in companies that trade regularly on major U.S. stock exchanges. Investments are primarily within the Russell 2000 Index and are diversified across major industry sectors within minimum and maximum exposures. The Fund may not purchase or sell derivatives instruments, including options, futures and forwards.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $167 million as of December 31, 2018, from $187 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 1.6%, which outperformed the 3.4% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. equity markets were strong through the first nine months of 2018. The last three months, however, were weak. Concerns about rising interest rates, trade disputes and other geopolitical issues took their toll on the markets. The sub-advisor takes these types of macroeconomic issues into consideration when making investment decisions, but does not specifically attempt to "trade" on them. The sub-advisor strives to stay focused on bottom-up stock selection.

Several of the Fund's holdings performed well in 2018, including BioTelemetry and Omnicell, which were the top contributors to relative performance. Both stocks are in the Health Care sector, which was the Fund's best-performing sector. The Fund's holdings in the Industrials sector also did well.

Among the stocks that had a negative impact on relative performance was Winnebago Industries, which hurt returns the most in 2018. The stock is in the Consumer Discretionary sector. On a relative basis, the Financials sector was the Fund's worst-performing area, with returns held back by investments in BrightSphere Investment, Ameris Bancorp and ConnectOne Bancorp. Consumer Discretionary was the second-worst sector in terms of relative returns.

In 2018, the sub-advisor reduced the Fund's weighting in the Industrials sector, given a belief that slowing economic growth would lead to slowing orders and lower earnings. Exposure was increased to the Health Care sector and reduced somewhat to the Real Estate sector.

Recent Developments

Two of the sub-advisor's goals at the beginning of 2018 were to tilt the portfolio toward value stocks and away from growth equities and to reduce exposure to highly indebted companies, given rising interest rates. The sub-advisor was able to achieve the second goal.

However, little progress was made toward the first goal, as the poor performance of the Fund's early value-stock purchases discouraged the sub-advisor from further increasing exposure to value stocks.

The Fund has underweight positions in the Energy, Consumer Discretionary, Real Estate and Commercial Services sectors, and overweight positions in Health Care and Information Technology.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. ### Registrars

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 1.25% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term growth primarily through capital appreciation by investing in a portfolio of common stocks, American Depositary Receipts ("ADRs") and equivalent securities of major companies domiciled in the developed countries of Europe, Australasia and the Far East ("EAFE").

The Fund selects medium- to large-capitalization companies which, in aggregate, normally exhibit lower price/earnings and price/cash flow ratios than the Morgan Stanley Capital International ("MSCI") EAFE Index. The Fund diversifies by region and sector within certain minimum and maximum exposures and may use derivatives for currency hedging purposes. The Fund may invest up to 20% of its assets in securities of companies not domiciled in EAFE countries, which may include emerging markets.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $281 million as of December 31, 2018, from $278 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 6.7%, which underperformed the 6.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equity markets recorded losses in 2018, with most of the declines coming in the fourth quarter, as concern about the sustainability of economic growth was among the main factors leading to the biggest stock drops in more than a decade. The S&P 500 Index, a broad measure for U.S. large-cap companies, fell 6.3%, and international equity markets, represented by the MSCI EAFE Index, lost 13.3%. Emerging markets outperformed developed markets by about 2 percentage points, so an allocation of just below 20% to emerging markets aided returns versus the benchmark.

The Fund underperformed given a lack of relative exposure to the Consumer Staples and Utilities sectors as well as telecommunications companies – all of which have relatively predictable earnings, higher dividend yields and less exposure to revenue derived outside the U.S. The Fund had outperformed its benchmark through the first 11 months of the year given its preference for faster-growing companies in the Financials and Health Care sectors.

There were no material changes in the portfolio's composition during the period.

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Brokers and Dealers

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. <sup>1</sup> Net assets and distributions are based on the actual number of units outstanding at the relevant time. The increase/decrease from operations is based on the weighted average number of units outstanding over the financial period. This table is not intended to be a reconciliation of beginning to ending net assets per unit.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 1.00% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term total returns through capital appreciation by investing in equity securities of companies domiciled primarily in the developed nations of Europe, Australasia and the Far East. It may also invest in equity securities of companies domiciled in other parts of the world, excluding Canada and the U.S.

The Fund diversifies its holdings by region and sector within certain minimum and maximum exposures and may use derivatives for currency hedging purposes. It may invest no more than 20% of its assets in securities of companies domiciled in emerging markets.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $187 million as of December 31, 2018, from $223 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series O units lost 5.8%, which outperformed the 6.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The year marked the start of a global transition away from the policy of quantitative easing, led by the U.S. Federal Reserve, as central banks began to curtail the bond purchases that had helped hold down longer-term interest rates. Europe and Japan were behind the U.S. in this transition, but a preference for reduced central-bank intervention looked clear. The prospect of rising interest rates and the risks to economic growth from an escalating trade dispute between the U.S. and China led to global stock-market declines during 2018.

The Fund's best-performing sector during the year was Information Technology, due to recoveries in the valuations of Lenovo and Nokia. The Fund's underweight position in the poorly performing Energy sector also contributed to returns. The Health Care sector had a negative impact on relative returns as strong performances from AstraZeneca, Roche and Novartis were offset by the negative impact of Bayer and Shanghai Fosun Pharma. Economically sensitive areas such as banks and industrial companies had the most significant negative impact on returns.

Portfolio activity remained at a relatively low level during the year. The sub-advisor sold the Fund's holdings in NTT, Baidu and Takashimaya after their valuations rose, whereas the sale of RBS was driven by increased political risk linked to Brexit. The sub-advisor replaced the French bank BNP with Netherlands-based ING, due to what the sub-advisor considers its better risk profile. Additions to the portfolio included food retailer Ahold Delhaize and telecommunications operators Singtel, China Mobile and Vodafone. These changes reduced the Fund's exposure to the potential for slowing economic growth. Also as a result, the Fund's allocation to Japan was reduced, and increased to Europe. The Fund's overall exposure to banks declined because of weakness in European banks such as Commerzbank and the sale of U.K.-based RBS. Exposure to telecommunications companies increased.

Recent Developments

It is increasingly clear that the U.S. administration is focused on containing what it considers to be China's unfair trade advantages. President Trump continues to put pressure on China to lower its trade tariffs and reduce the amount of technology that must be shared by Western companies. The ripple effects of these disputes are being felt globally, reducing growth expectations and damaging investor confidence, especially in industrial and financial stocks. Against this backdrop, the sub-advisor believes that a cautious approach is merited.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 1.00% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide long-term growth primarily through capital appreciation by investing in a portfolio of common stocks, American Depositary Receipts (“ADRs”) and equivalent securities of companies domiciled in the U.S. and the developed countries of Europe, Australasia and the Far East (“EAFE”).

The Fund invests in companies considered to have superior management, superior prospects for earnings growth or cash flow, long-term value in a competitive market position, asset value, new product potential and global market expansion. The Fund diversifies by region and sector within minimum and maximum exposures. The Fund will usually not invest more than 10% of the market value of the Fund in emerging markets, defined as those markets not in the MSCI World Equity Index.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $290 million as of December 31, 2018, from $323 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series O units gained 1.4%, which outperformed the 0.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equities weakened in 2018 as a round of selling in the final quarter of the year blunted earlier gains. Equity weakness was most pronounced in non-U.S. stocks, as softer economic conditions in Europe and Asia were aggravated by a simmering trade dispute between the U.S. and China. European stocks were hamstrung by currency trends, economic sluggishness and political flare-ups, while Chinese stocks fell more than 20% amid slowing economic growth. U.S. shares were clipped by fears that problems elsewhere would spread and offset low U.S. unemployment and vibrant consumer confidence.

CME Group, which operates securities exchanges, benefited from increased volatility in financial markets as well as expanding demand for data and analytical services. GoDaddy, an Internet domain registrar and web-hosting company, experienced heavy demand for its web-design and management services. Safran, a French maker of aircraft engines and biometric security systems, benefited from plane sales boosted by a global travel boom. Shares of AES Corp. advanced as the electric-power distribution company posted strong financial results with accelerating growth in renewable energy projects. Shares of Telefonaktiebolaget LM Ericsson were boosted by investor optimism about the next generation of cellular services and corporate restructuring.

On the downside, the portfolio was negatively impacted by Schlumberger, as the oilfield-services company was burdened by the reluctance of large energy companies to boost infrastructure spending. Shares of Naspers, a global internet and entertainment company, declined amid a sell-off in Tencent, in which Naspers holds a majority position. Las Vegas Sands suffered as strong results at the casino company’s Macau operations were outweighed by fear of potential slowing in China. State Street, the financial-services company, reported lower-than-expected earnings, while the cigarette maker British American Tobacco was hurt by falling demand for cigarettes and increased U.S. regulations.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor favours companies that can offer a relative measure of protection if equity markets weaken significantly. One appealing area is health-care services, where spending is expected to rise as the world’s population ages. Another area of interest is subscription-based businesses, a trend that cuts across industries as companies are drawn to the steady revenue and customer loyalty inherent in this business model. Subscriptions provide key revenue in businesses as diverse as streaming video providers, securities exchanges and warehouse-retail stores.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Brokers and Dealers

The Fund has established standard brokerage and dealing agreements at market rates with related parties. These related-party commissions were $1,000 (2017 – $0) or 1% (2017 – 0%) of the total transaction costs paid for this Fund.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The management fee with respect to Series F units is 1.00% and is payable by the Fund on a monthly basis and calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of Series F units of the Fund. The management fee in respect of Series F units is for management, investment advisory services, general administration and profit. No amount is paid out of the management fee for distribution services.

The management fee with respect to Series O units is payable directly to RBC GAM by unitholders or distributors, and therefore is not charged to the Fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, or optional charges, or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)
