MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide current income and liquidity consistent with short-term money-market interest rates while preserving the value of the investment.

The Fund is invested primarily in short-term government debt securities with a maximum term of 365 days. Investments include Government of Canada Treasury bills, notes guaranteed by the federal government, provincial Treasury bills, floating-rate notes and short-term bank deposits.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $296 million as of December 31, 2018, from $325 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

As of December 31, 2018, the current yields were 1.5% for Series A units and 1.5% for Series D units.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units returned 1.07%, compared with the 1.38% rise in the FTSE Canada 91-Day T-Bill Index. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. In response to an extremely low interest rate environment and to support the yield to unitholders, the management fees of some series of the Fund have been maintained at reduced levels by RBC GAM. The decision to reduce management fees is determined at the discretion of RBC GAM.

Yields on government fixed-income securities of less than one year rose for most of 2018, reflecting interest-rate increases by the Bank of Canada (the "BOC") amid faster global economic growth, recovering domestic business investment and a resilient housing market. Trade worries persisted as discussions with the U.S. to replace the North American Free Trade Agreement moved forward sporadically, but the talks concluded with an accord that many investors believe will allow the Canadian economy to avoid an extended trade conflict with the U.S.

Given the positive backdrop, the BOC raised its short-term benchmark interest rate three times during the year – the final hike coming in October – in the belief that inflation was expected to stir as a result of the strong domestic economy. However, oil prices began to quickly decline soon thereafter, while financial conditions deteriorated globally and trade tensions between the U.S. and China escalated. As a result, short-term yields declined into year-end, principally on the view that the BOC would slow the pace of any further rate increases.

The portfolio manager maintained a defensive stance in the Fund for most of the year, when it was clear that the BOC believed that interest-rate hikes would be appropriate, and then adopted a balanced approach when the BOC signalled a pause in the speed at which it would tighten monetary policy. Specifically, the portfolio manager concentrated more of the Fund's holdings around the BOC's policy announcement dates to capture the impact of rate hikes as they occurred. The portfolio manager relied heavily on provincial securities during 2018, particularly later in the year, as the BOC's pause in tightening caused yields on federal paper to fall more than provincial yields.

Recent Developments

The BOC has said it believes that more rate hikes will be necessary, given Canada's economic performance this year. What has changed is the pace at which the BOC will proceed with this plan. With the global economy expected to slow next year, the urgency to tighten Canadian monetary policy has eased, particularly as inflation pressures have abated. The portfolio manager therefore expects Canadian yields to stay relatively steady through 2019, and would gradually adjust higher only if and when the BOC signals that the economy is strong enough or inflation high enough to warrant additional hikes.

The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A | 0.75%           | 33%                   | 67%    |
| Series D | 0.60%           | 17%                   | 83%    |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Inception dates are not provided for series that have been in existence for more than 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide current income and liquidity consistent with short-term money-market interest rates while preserving the value of the investment.

The Fund is invested primarily in high-quality short-term government- and corporate-debt securities with a maximum term of 365 days. The Fund's corporate-debt holdings are deemed by major debt-rating agencies to be suitable for conservative investors. The Fund also includes short-term debt issued by Canadian chartered banks and promissory notes issued or guaranteed by Canadian governments or their agencies.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $1.9 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.6 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

As of December 31, 2018, the current yields were 1.6% for Series A units, 1.5% for Advisor Series units, 1.6% for Series D units, 1.6% for Series F units and 2.1% for Series O units.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units returned 1.15%, compared with the 1.38% rise in the FTSE Canada 91-Day T-Bill Index. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. In response to an extremely low interest rate environment and to support the yield to unitholders, the management fees of some series of the Fund have been maintained at reduced levels by RBC GAM. The decision to reduce management fees is determined at the discretion of RBC GAM.

Yields on Canadian money-market securities of less than one year rose for most of 2018, reflecting interest-rate increases by the Bank of Canada (the "BOC") amid faster global economic growth, recovering domestic business investment and a resilient housing market. Trade worries persisted as discussions with the U.S. to replace the North American Free Trade Agreement moved forward sporadically, but the talks concluded with an accord that many investors believe will allow the Canadian economy to avoid an extended trade conflict with the U.S.

Given the positive backdrop, the BOC raised its short-term benchmark interest rate three times during the year – the final hike coming in October – in the belief that inflation was expected to stir as a result of the strong domestic economy. However, oil prices began to quickly decline soon thereafter, while financial conditions deteriorated globally and trade tensions between the U.S. and China escalated. As a result, short-term yields declined into year-end, principally on the view that the BOC would slow the pace of any further rate increases.

The portfolio manager maintained a defensive stance in the Fund for most of the year, when it was clear that the BOC believed that interest-rate hikes would be appropriate, and then adopted a balanced approach when the BOC signalled a pause in the speed at which it would tighten monetary policy. Specifically, the portfolio manager concentrated more of the Fund's holdings in longer-dated maturities to lock in higher yields, especially when yields on non-government securities continued to climb for temporary reasons unrelated to the BOC's decision to pause.

The fulfillment of regulatory liquidity was exercised through the active management of maturities, as well as through holdings of government securities.

Recent Developments

The BOC has said it believes that more rate hikes will be necessary, given Canada's economic performance this year. What has changed is the pace at which the BOC will proceed with this plan. With the global economy expected to slow next year, the urgency to tighten Canadian monetary policy has eased, particularly as inflation pressures have abated. The portfolio manager therefore expects Canadian yields to stay relatively steady through 2019, and would gradually adjust higher only if and when the BOC signals that the economy is strong enough or inflation high enough to warrant additional hikes.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide current income and liquidity consistent with short-term money market rates for investors who have at least $100,000 to invest.

To preserve the value of the investment, the Fund is invested primarily in high-quality, short-term (one year or less) debt securities, including Treasury bills, bankers acceptances and commercial paper.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $1.3 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.2 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

As of December 31, 2018, the current yields were 1.8% for Series A units and 1.9% for Series F units.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units returned 1.41%, compared with the 1.38% rise in the FTSE Canada 91-Day T-Bill Index. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Yields on Canadian money-market securities of less than one year rose for most of 2018, reflecting interest-rate increases by the Bank of Canada (the "BOC") amid faster global economic growth, recovering domestic business investment and a resilient housing market. Trade worries persisted as discussions with the U.S. to replace the North American Free Trade Agreement moved forward sporadically, but the talks concluded with an accord that many investors believe will allow the Canadian economy to avoid an extended trade conflict with the U.S.

Given the positive backdrop, the BOC raised its short-term benchmark interest rate three times during the year – the final hike coming in October – in the belief that inflation was expected to stir as a result of the strong domestic economy. However, oil prices began to quickly decline soon thereafter, while financial conditions deteriorated globally and trade tensions between the U.S. and China escalated. As a result, short-term yields declined into year-end, principally on the view that the BOC would slow the pace of any further rate increases.

The portfolio manager maintained a defensive stance in the Fund for most of the year, when it was clear that the BOC believed that interest-rate hikes would be appropriate, and then adopted a balanced approach when the BOC signalled a pause in the speed at which it would tighten monetary policy. Specifically, the portfolio manager concentrated more of the Fund's holdings in longer-dated maturities to lock in higher yields, especially when yields on non-government securities continued to climb for temporary reasons unrelated to the BOC's decision to pause.

The fulfillment of regulatory liquidity was exercised through the active management of maturities, as well as the holding of government securities.

Recent Developments

The BOC has said it believes that more rate hikes will be necessary, given Canada's economic performance this year. What has changed is the pace at which the bank will proceed with this plan. With the global economy expected to slow next year, the urgency to tighten Canadian monetary policy has eased, particularly as inflation pressures have abated. The portfolio manager therefore expects Canadian yields to stay relatively steady through 2019, and would gradually adjust higher only if and when the BOC signals that the economy is strong enough or inflation high enough to warrant additional hikes.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A | 0.30%           | 83%                   | 17%    |
| Series F | 0.20%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Inception dates are not provided for series that have been in existence for more than 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide U.S. dollar current income and liquidity consistent with short-term U.S. money-market rates.

To preserve the value of the investment, the Fund is invested primarily in high-quality short-term (one year or less) debt securities including Treasury bills, bankers acceptances and commercial paper.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $290 million as of December 31, 2018, from $240 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

As of December 31, 2018, the current yields were 2.4% for Series A units, 2.4% for Series D units, 2.5% for Series F unit and 2.8% for Series O units.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units returned 1.90%, compared with the 1.86% rise in the Citigroup 3-Month T-Bill Index. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. In response to an extremely low interest rate environment and to support the yield to unitholders, the management fees of some series of the Fund have been maintained at reduced levels by RBC GAM. The decision to reduce management fees is determined at the discretion of RBC GAM.

Economic growth in the U.S. outpaced that in virtually all other countries in 2018, accelerating on the strength of increased government spending and tax cuts, reduced regulatory burdens and solid employment growth. Consequently, money-market rates climbed steadily throughout the year, as the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed"), under new Chairman Jay Powell, raised the benchmark federal funds rate four times in response to inflation pressures and signalled further tightening ahead. However, the economic outlook soured later in the year as oil prices fell sharply, global financial conditions deteriorated and trade tensions between the U.S. and China intensified. By year-end, doubts about the sustainability of U.S. economic growth had seeped into market sentiment.

The portfolio manager managed the Fund's average term to maturity around the Fed's policy announcement dates in order to capture the impact of higher market yields that followed each rate hike. Once a rate hike took place, the bulk of maturities was centred on the next expected hike date, with occasional longer-term investments when yields were higher than expected. The Fund's holdings were largely in asset-backed commercial paper, as corporate paper issuance was thin. Provincial holdings were also relatively high at year-end, as they offered compelling yields relative to bank paper. Regulatory liquidity was satisfied through the holding of a position in provincial and federal paper.

Recent Developments

As 2019 got underway, the Fed was signalling two more rate hikes for the year and the continued shrinking of its balance sheet, but its commitment appears tempered by signs that the U.S. economy is losing momentum. Assuming inflation pressures remain muted, the Fed could put off monetary tightening, particularly if the global economy continues to slow or if trade tensions with China boil over. In this environment, the portfolio manager expects to increase the Fund's exposure to longer-dated and higher-yielding investments.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A | 0.85%           | 29%                   | 71%    |
| Series D | 0.60%           | 17%                   | 83%    |
| Series F | 0.50%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE (in USD)

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

Series F units have been available for sale to unitholders since August 20, 2018.

Inception dates are not provided for series that have been in existence for more than 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide current income and liquidity consistent with short-term money market rates for investors who have at least US$100,000 to invest.

To preserve the value of the investment, the Fund is invested primarily in high-quality, short-term (one year or less) debt securities denominated in U.S. dollars. These include treasury bills issued or guaranteed by Canadian or foreign governments, bankers acceptances and commercial paper issued by Canadian or foreign corporations and agencies such as the World Bank.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $602 million as of December 31, 2018, from $512 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

As of December 31, 2018, the current yields were 2.4% for Series A units and 2.5% for Series F units.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units returned 2.43%, compared with the 1.86% rise in the Citigroup 3-Month T-Bill Index. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses. In response to an extremely low interest rate environment and to support the yield to unitholders, the management fees of some series of the Fund have been maintained at reduced levels by RBC GAM. The decision to reduce management fees is determined at the discretion of RBC GAM.

Economic growth in the U.S. outpaced that in virtually all other countries in 2018, accelerating on the strength of increased government spending and tax cuts, reduced regulatory burdens and solid employment growth. Consequently, money-market rates climbed steadily throughout the year, as the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed"), under new Chairman Jay Powell, raised the benchmark federal funds rate four times in response to inflation pressures and signalled further tightening ahead. However, the economic outlook soured later in the year as oil prices fell sharply, global financial conditions deteriorated and trade tensions between the U.S. and China intensified. By year-end, doubts about the sustainability of U.S. economic growth had seeped into market sentiment.

The portfolio manager managed the Fund's average term to maturity around the Fed's policy announcement dates in order to capture the impact of higher market yields that followed each rate hike. Once a rate hike took place, the bulk of maturities was centred on the next expected hike date, with occasional longer-term investments when yields were higher than expected. The Fund's holdings were largely in asset-backed commercial paper, as corporate paper issuance was thin. Provincial holdings were also relatively high at year-end, as they offered compelling yields relative to bank paper. Regulatory liquidity was satisfied through the holding of a position in provincial and federal paper.

Recent Developments

As 2019 got underway, the Fed was signalling two more rate hikes for the year and the continued shrinking of its balance sheet, but its commitment appears tempered by signs that the U.S. economy is losing momentum. Assuming inflation pressures remain muted, the Fed could put off monetary tightening, particularly if the global economy continues to slow or if trade tensions with China boil over. In this environment, the portfolio manager expects to increase the Fund's exposure to longer-dated and higher-yielding investments.

Related-Party Transactions

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A | 0.35%           | 71%                   | 29%    |
| Series F | 0.25%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE (in USD)

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Inception dates are not provided for series that have been in existence for more than 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a competitive level of monthly income by investing primarily in short-term, high-quality fixed-income securities issued or guaranteed by Canadian federal, provincial or municipal governments or corporations. The Fund may also invest in high-quality first mortgages on Canadian residential property.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $5.6 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $5.5 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 0.8%, which underperformed the 1.9% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Canadian bond prices fell in 2018, pushing up yields, as the Canadian economy gained momentum after a slow start and the U.S. Federal Reserve tightened monetary policy amid a strengthening global economy. It was evident by mid-year that monetary policy was too loose given the pace of the domestic economic expansion. The Bank of Canada (the "BOC") raised its short-term benchmark interest rate three times during the year in the belief that a quickening economy would stoke inflation, and short-term bond yields spiked higher in reaction. Later in the year, however, the outlook soured as Canadian oil prices collapsed, financial conditions deteriorated globally, and trade tensions between the U.S. and China intensified. The BOC appeared to step back from its optimistic outlook, particularly as inflation pressures abated, and markets were weighed down by fears of a global economic slowdown heading into 2019. This resulted in a retreat by short-term bond yields to levels where they began the year.

The portfolio manager traded government bonds during the period, aiding returns when the BOC was signalling higher interest rates. Exposure to non-government bonds remained stable for most of the year, as these types of securities did not offer enough extra yield to make them attractive relative to government bonds. A weaker economic outlook later in 2018 boosted the extra yield available on non-government yields somewhat, prompting the portfolio manager to slightly increase the portfolio's allocation to these types of bonds. Overall, however, the portfolio manager took fewer risks in search of higher yields because of the uncertainty facing the Canadian economy.

Recent Developments

The BOC has said it believes that more rate hikes will be necessary, given Canada's economic performance this year. What has changed is the pace at which the BOC will proceed with this plan. With the global economy expected to slow next year, the urgency to tighten Canadian monetary policy has eased, particularly as inflation pressures have abated. The portfolio manager therefore expects Canadian yields to stay relatively steady through 2019, and would gradually adjust higher only if and when the BOC signals that the economy is strong enough or inflation high enough to warrant additional hikes.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.05%, Advisor Series – 1.04%, Series D – 0.66% and Series F – 0.49%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Advisor Series | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Series D       | 0.55%           | 27%                   | 73%    |
| Series F       | 0.40%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular monthly income with the potential for modest capital growth by investing primarily in a well-diversified portfolio of short-term fixed-income securities issued in the U.S. market by U.S. and foreign corporations either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM.

The Fund invests up to 100% of its assets in units of the RBC Short Term U.S. Corporate Bond ETF (the “underlying fund”), which is sub-advised by RBC Global Asset Management (U.S.) Inc. The underlying fund invests primarily in investment-grade short-duration fixed-income securities issued in the U.S. market by U.S. and foreign corporations rated BBB(-) and above by Standard & Poor’s (or equivalent rating agency).

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying fund. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the short-to-medium term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on January 29, 2018, and its net asset value was $94 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor expects economic growth to decelerate in 2019. Corporate profits should remain relatively strong but likely won’t achieve the levels of 2018 as tailwinds from U.S. tax reform fade and trade tensions mount.

The sub-advisor continues to favour large companies with stable or improving credit profiles, and that generate consistent cash flow and are in the process of reducing debt. The Fund has overweight positions in banks and the Utilities sector, given the sub-advisor’s view that credit profiles will improve in these areas. The Fund is underweight the two consumer sectors as well as sectors that are likely to increase debt and are less capable of generating consistent cash flows if the economy weakens.

In the view of the sub-advisor, the Fund is positioned such that changes in interest rates should not have a significant impact on relative returns.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular monthly income with the potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of fixed-income funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate (called the “underlying funds”). To achieve its objective, the Fund invests in underlying funds from the RBC Funds family or the PH&N Funds family.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among underlying funds based on the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its investment objectives.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the short-to-medium term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $902 million as of December 31, 2018, from $1.2 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units gained 0.6%, which underperformed the 1.6% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index rose 1.4%. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 2.25 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 27 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 18 cents per unit of interest and 9 cents return of capital.

Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. In this environment of slowing growth, long-term Canadian federal bonds outperformed their short- and mid-term counterparts, and corporate and provincial bonds of all maturities.

The U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank (the “ECB”) began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates.

Returns were bolstered by exposure to the Phillips, Hager & North Short Term Bond & Mortgage Fund, the Phillips, Hager & North Total Return Bond Fund and the RBC Emerging Markets Bond Fund. The RBC Global Corporate Bond Fund had a negative impact on performance.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the Fed will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019, relative to earlier expectations. The ECB has ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates this year. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, so long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, the bulk of the Fed rate increases is likely behind us, in the view of the portfolio manager, and trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.09%, Advisor Series – 1.10%, Series D – 0.70% and Series F – 0.54%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Advisor Series | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Series D       | 0.55%           | 27%                   | 73%    |
| Series F       | 0.40%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund currently seeks to provide a total return consisting of income and modest capital gains by tracking the performance of the FTSE Canada Universe + Maple Bond Index and investing primarily in units of the RBC Canadian Bond Index ETF (the “underlying fund”).

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $31 million as of December 31, 2018, from $36 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units gained 0.7%, which underperformed the 1.4% rise in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada (the “BOC”), in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. In this environment of slowing growth, long-term Canadian federal bonds outperformed their short- and mid-term counterparts, and corporate and provincial bonds of all maturities.

The U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond portfolio. The European Central Bank (the “ECB”) began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the Fed will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019. The ECB has now ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates later this year. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue to rise faster than those on longer-term bonds, as long as central banks appear committed to higher benchmark rates. However, the bulk of the Fed rate increases is likely behind us, in the view of the portfolio manager, while trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

The portfolio manager expects the pace of interest-rate increases to slow, as the BOC’s tone has turned more cautious amid weakening Canadian economic growth. One indicator of the weakness is that shorter-term interest rates have risen more quickly than longer-term rates – this is known as “yield-curve flattening.”

RBC GAM has called and will hold a special meeting of the unitholders of the Fund on March 22, 2019. Subject to unitholder approval, the investment objective of the Fund will change to permit the Fund to invest in fixed-income securities, in substantially the same proportion as its benchmark index, either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds. In addition, the benchmark index will be changed to the FTSE Canada Universe Bond Index. If the change in investment objective is approved, all changes are expected to be effective on or about April 5, 2019.

Effective on or about April 5, 2019, the management fee of the Series F units of the Fund will be reduced from 0.10% to 0.09% per annum.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees* | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|------------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                  | Distribution          | Other† |
| Series A | 0.50%            | 83%                   | 17%    |
| Series F | 0.00%            | —                     | 100%   |

* Effective September 21, 2017, the management fees for Series A units were waived to 0.50% from 0.60%; and for Series F units were waived to 0.00% from 0.10% to account for the management fee charged by the underlying fund. Effective June 30, 2017, the management fees for Series A units were reduced to 0.60% from 0.80%; and for Series F units were reduced to 0.10% from 0.50%.

† Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a total return consisting of income and moderate capital growth by tracking the performance of the FTSE Canada Federal Bond Index.

The Fund invests primarily in fixed-income securities issued or guaranteed by Canadian governments in substantially the same proportion as the index, either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $153 million as of December 31, 2018, from $175 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 1.9%, which underperformed the 2.4% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index rose 1.4%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. In this environment of slowing growth, long-term Canadian federal bonds outperformed their short- and mid-term counterparts, and corporate and provincial bonds of all maturities. The outperformance was not in line with investors' expectations.

Mortgage bonds, which are backed by the federal government, underperformed Government of Canada bonds but still managed to post modest gains. The recent financial-market declines have made valuations of these bonds more attractive, in the view of the portfolio manager.

Recent Developments

Reduced economic growth suggests that the U.S. Federal Reserve will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019, relative to earlier expectations. The European Central Bank has ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates this year. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, so long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, the portfolio manager believes that the bulk of central-bank rate increases is likely behind us, and that trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

Further significant financial-market volatility could lead to declines in government-bond yields. The Fund will continue to hold an overweight position in Canadian government-backed mortgage bonds, as the higher income that they offer will help offset capital losses if yields rise further.

RBC GAM has called and will hold a special meeting of the unitholders of the Fund on March 22, 2019. Subject to unitholder approval, the investment objective of the Fund will change to permit the Fund to invest in fixed-income securities, in substantially the same proportion as its benchmark index, either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds. If approved, this change is expected to be effective on or about April 5, 2019.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2017, the management fees were changed in respect of Series F units of the Fund and the administration fees were changed in respect of Series A units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees and administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 0.61% and Series F – 0.28%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|          | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|          |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A | 0.50%           | 20%                   | 80%    |
| Series F | 0.20%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Annual Compound Returns (%)

The table shows the annual compound returns for each series of the Fund and for each of the periods indicated ended on December 31, 2018, compared with the following benchmarks:

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues above-average long-term returns consisting of interest income and moderate capital growth by investing mainly in high-quality fixed-income securities issued by Canadian governments and corporations. Holdings within the portfolio in non-investment grade bonds are limited to 30% of assets.

The Fund may invest in similar securities outside of Canada.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $19.9 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $18.6 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 0.1%, which underperformed the 1.4% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. In this environment of slowing growth, long-term Canadian federal bonds outperformed their short- and mid-term counterparts, and corporate and provincial bonds of all maturities. The outperformance was not in line with investors' expectations.

The U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back the bond purchases that had helped hold down longer-term yields. The European Central Bank (the "ECB") began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates.

In another sign of investor concern, the extra yield required to own bonds issued by provinces and corporations increased relative to Government of Canada bonds, mostly in the fourth quarter.

The Fund's returns were hurt by exposure to non-federal bonds. However, the portfolio manager's decision to reduce exposure to corporate and provincial bonds earlier in 2018 helped mitigate losses. Foreign-currency trading was the major contributor to the Fund's performance.

Recent Developments

Reduced economic growth suggests that the Fed will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019, relative to earlier expectations. The ECB has ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates this year. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, so long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, the portfolio manager believes that the bulk of central-bank rate increases is likely behind us, and that trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

The portfolio manager is likely to accumulate corporate and provincial bonds, as their valuations are more attractive than at any time in the past two years. The portfolio manager can be more selective with its investments, given muted revenue growth, trade uncertainty and weak oil prices. The portfolio manager expects higher-than-normal financial-market volatility in the first half of 2019.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.11%, Advisor Series – 1.06%, Series D – 0.66% and Series F – 0.50%.

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Advisor Series | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Series D       | 0.55%           | 27%                   | 73%    |
| Series F       | 0.40%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide relatively high yields and stability of capital by investing primarily in a well-diversified portfolio of fixed-income securities issued by Canadian governments and corporations. The Fund follows a socially responsible approach to investing. Investments that qualify for inclusion in the Fund must possess strong environmental, social and governance practices relative to industry peers, as defined by Sustainalytics Best-of-Sector™ methodology.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $237 million as of December 31, 2018, from $226 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 0.4%, which underperformed the 1.4% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Domestic bond yields rose for most of 2018 in response to interest-rate hikes from the Bank of Canada (the "BOC") and faster global economic growth, but yields fell toward the end of the year as investors flocked to the relative safety of government fixed income amid declines in equity markets. Canadian bonds outperformed U.S. bonds on expectations that relatively fast U.S. growth would prompt the U.S. Federal Reserve to raise benchmark interest rates at a quicker pace than the BOC.

The portfolio manager's preference for bonds of higher-quality companies that were less sensitive to changes in economic growth had a significantly positive impact on relative returns. This approach was due to the portfolio manager's view that the extra yields available on lower-quality corporate bonds weren't sufficient to compensate for the risk of higher exposure. The portfolio manager was also able to take advantage of the short-term price fluctuations over the year by adjusting the Fund's overall maturity, adding to relative returns.

During 2018, the Fund maintained underweight exposure to provincial bonds in favour of federally guaranteed mortgage bonds, which offer higher yields than Government of Canada bonds without undue risk.

Portfolio turnover can be high for the Fund, as the portfolio manager attempts to generate better returns through active security selection and optimal term exposure.

Sustainalytics conducted one review covering the Fund's holdings in 2018. Eligibility was determined in relation to the Environmental, Social and Governance ("ESG") criteria developed by RBC GAM in consultation with Sustainalytics. In the opinion of Sustainalytics, all holdings in the Fund were eligible in the latest review, based on the above criteria.

Recent Developments

A commitment from central banks in Canada and the U.S. to raise benchmark interest rates helped drive bond yields higher for much of 2018. However, concerns about Canadian competitiveness, trade uncertainty, falling energy prices and high household-debt levels have prompted the BOC to reassess the pace of rate increases from the current rate of 1.75%. It is even possible that the BOC does not raise rates at all in 2019.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2017, the administration fees were changed in respect of Series O units of the Fund. If the changes to the administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series O – 0.02%.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.03%, Advisor Series – 1.03% and Series F – 0.50%.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Advisor Series | 0.90%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Series D       | 0.50%           | 30%                   | 70%    |
| Series F       | 0.40%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues above-average long-term total returns, consisting of interest income and some capital growth in world fixed-income markets.

The Fund invests principally in high-quality, fixed-income securities denominated in foreign currencies and issued by foreign and Canadian governments. The Fund may use derivative contracts extensively to manage currency risk and to protect against losses. The Fund may also invest in debt issued by foreign corporations and international agencies like the World Bank.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $7.7 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $6.8 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 1.1%, which underperformed the 1.9% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Major government-bond markets posted gains in 2018, with December accounting for most of the increases, as trade tensions and slowing global economic growth prompted investors to seek assets perceived as offering the most safety. U.S. Treasury bonds underperformed German and Japanese federal bonds by a wide margin, given faster U.S. inflation and growth, prompting four interest-rate increases during 2018 by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed"). Meanwhile, the European Central Bank (the "ECB") and the Bank of Japan (the "BOJ") left interest rates unchanged.

The Fed's rate hikes put the benchmark federal funds rate at its highest level since 2008, and the U.S. central bank also continued to scale back bond purchases that had helped to hold down longer-term yields. The ECB wound up its bond-buying program at the end of 2018 and began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising its benchmark interest rate. Italian government bonds were Europe's worst-performing, as Italy's ruling coalition sought to challenge EU limits on government spending.

Japanese yields remained near zero – supporting bond prices – as the BOJ judged that inflation would not be problematic, given the sluggish domestic economy.

The Fund's overall preference for longer-maturity bonds and underweight position in intermediate-term securities added to performance. In Europe, an allocation to longer-term German bonds was good for relative performance, while an overweight position in Italian fixed-income bonds had a negative impact. Returns were also held back by the Fund's overweight position in emerging-market debt and corporate fixed income, which performed poorly amid the search for safe havens. However, the Fund's exposure to foreign currencies during 2018 was positive for returns in a year when the Canadian dollar was the worst-performing currency in the developed world.

Recent Developments

Reduced economic growth suggests that the Fed will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019, relative to earlier expectations. The ECB has ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates this year. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, so long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, the portfolio manager believes that the bulk of central-bank rate increases is likely behind us, and that trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

The portfolio manager is likely to accumulate corporate and emerging-market bonds, as their valuations are more attractive than at any time in the past two years. The portfolio manager can be more selective with its investments, given muted revenue growth, trade uncertainty and weak oil prices. The portfolio manager expects higher-than-normal financial-market volatility in the first half of 2019.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.61%, Advisor Series – 1.59%, Series D – 0.89% and Series F – 0.73%.

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

| Series D       | 0.75%           | 20%                   | 80%    |
| Series F       | 0.60%           | —                     | 100%   |
| Series I       | 0.50%           | —                     | 100%   |

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and some capital growth by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in high-quality fixed-income securities issued internationally by Canadian and foreign governments and in emerging-market currencies. The Fund may also invest in fixed-income securities issued by Canadian and foreign corporations and supranational agencies such as the World Bank.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects underlying funds from the RBC Funds family or PH&N Funds family, including the RBC Global Bond Fund, a portion of which is sub-advised by RBC Global Asset Management (UK) Limited and the RBC Emerging Markets Foreign Exchange Fund, which primarily invests in investment-grade fixed-income securities issued internationally by the Canadian government and corporations or foreign governments and corporations, or provides exposure to emerging-market currencies.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among underlying funds based on the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its investment objectives.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on January 29, 2018, and its net asset value was $9 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019, relative to earlier expectations. The European Central Bank has ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates in 2019. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, as long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, in the view of the portfolio manager, the bulk of Fed rate increases is likely behind us, and trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

The portfolio manager expects emerging-market currencies to continue recovering in the near term, given indications that the Fed is likely to start slowing the pace of interest-rate increases from the four hikes recorded in 2018. Growth for most emerging economies will remain subdued in the first half of 2019, and the portfolio manager will continue to favour currencies with faster expected economic growth, lower vulnerability to U.S.-dollar funding and governments willing to enact structural reforms.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients’ investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust (“RBC IS”) or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;

- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide interest income with the potential for modest capital growth by investing primarily in a portfolio of diversified investment-grade fixed-income securities issued by U.S. corporations.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the portfolio manager invests primarily in bonds issued by U.S. corporations rated BBB- and above by Standard & Poor's or an equivalent rating agency. The portfolio manager employs a value-focused philosophy that emphasizes quality companies having stable to improving credit profiles, and which are considered to be undervalued given current market sentiment. The portfolio manager conducts fundamental company credit and industry analysis and diversifies the portfolio so that it is not concentrated in any one issuer, industry, country or credit rating.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $146 million as of December 31, 2018, from $246 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.8%, which underperformed the 2.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Expectations of slower global economic growth, escalating U.S.-China trade tensions and lower oil prices led to the underperformance of riskier assets, such as corporate bonds, relative to the "risk-free" government benchmark in 2018. Investor concern was reflected in the widening gap between yields on corporate bonds and comparable government securities, and this preference for safety was highlighted by the outperformance of highly rated AAA securities versus lower-rated BBB bonds, while shorter-maturity fixed income performed better than longer maturities. Within the Fund, overweight exposure to larger BBB-rated issuers hurt relative performance but was partially offset by positioning in longer-term securities.

From a sector perspective, the Fund's overweight position in Utilities held back performance. The Fund benefited from lower-than-benchmark exposure to the two consumer sectors and from positioning in auto-related companies and tobacco. The elimination of positions in Ford and General Electric aided relative returns, as it enabled the Fund to avoid some of the losses associated with securities of these companies during the year.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor expects economic growth to decelerate in 2019. Corporate profits should remain relatively strong but likely won't achieve the levels of 2018, as tailwinds from U.S. tax reform fade and trade tensions mount.

The sub-advisor continues to favour large companies with stable or improving credit profiles, and that generate consistent cash flows and are in the process of reducing debt. The Fund has overweight positions in banks and the Utilities sector, given the sub-advisor's view that credit profiles will improve in these areas. The Fund is underweight the consumer sectors as well as sectors that are likely to increase debt and are less capable of generating consistent cash flows if the economy weakens.

In the view of the sub-advisor, the Fund is positioned such that changes in interest rates should not have a significant impact on relative returns.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.26%, Advisor Series – 1.30%, Series D – 0.86% and Series F – 0.72%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.10%           | 45%                   | 55%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.10%           | 45%                   | 55%    |
| Series D       | 0.75%           | 20%                   | 80%    |
| Series F       | 0.60%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE (in USD)

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a high level of interest income with the potential for modest capital growth by investing primarily in global corporate bonds.

The majority of the Fund's holdings will consist of corporate debt rated by major credit-rating agencies as investment grade. The Fund may also invest up to 30% in non-investment grade corporate debt and emerging-market sovereign and corporate bonds.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $10.7 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $9.9 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 2.6%, which underperformed the 1.7% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index declined 3.3%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Corporate bonds underperformed similar-maturity government bonds in 2018, as investors became concerned about the potential for slowing economic growth; an intensifying trade dispute between the U.S. and China; geopolitical risks linked to Middle East tensions; and the U.K.'s plan to leave the European Union. These risks led to an increase in the excess yield earned on corporate bonds over sovereign securities, resulting in smaller relative price gains or outright declines for corporate bonds.

The Fund benefited from its preference for higher-quality companies, which cushioned losses amid declines in the riskier parts of the corporate-bond market. Similarly, returns in the Fund's emerging-market bond holdings benefited from less exposure to weaker economies, such as Argentina and Turkey. Currency management also added to the Fund's performance.

High-yield holdings in industries such as autos and homebuilding hurt relative returns, given concern about a slowing global economy. Returns were also held back by exposure to Canadian preferred shares, whose prices fell significantly in the fourth quarter.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager believes that the Fund is positioned to withstand a slowdown in economic growth, with overweight allocations to higher-quality Canadian and U.S. bonds, and to capitalize on attractive investment opportunities in the event of further underperformance in corporate bonds. The Fund recently increased its allocation to emerging markets as valuations improved. High-yield corporate-bond weightings are lower than in previous years, while the average maturity of the Fund is similar to the benchmark. European bonds are being kept at benchmark levels.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a high level of income with the potential for modest capital growth by investing primarily in higher-yielding corporate debt securities issued by Canadian and U.S. corporations.

To achieve its objectives, the portfolio manager invests primarily in debt securities rated from BBB to B by Standard & Poor's or an equivalent credit-rating company. The portfolio manager employs a value-focused philosophy, striving to invest in quality companies having stable to improving credit profiles, and which are considered undervalued.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $1.7 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.9 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 4.2%, which underperformed the 1.4% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The Fund's relative returns were held back by the underperformance of U.S. high-yield corporate bonds, which made up most of the Fund's assets. U.S. high-yield bonds were negatively affected by a general rise in U.S. interest rates during the period and an increase in the premium required by investors to invest in lower-rated corporate bonds, known as the credit spread. U.S. high-yield bonds had outperformed Canadian investment-grade-rated bonds until October, as credit spreads narrowed for most of the year to their lowest levels since 2007. However, spreads widened significantly during the final quarter of 2018.

The lowest-rated corporate bonds, which had outperformed for most of the year, reversed course late in the fourth quarter and were the worst-performing part of the corporate-bond market by year-end. Factors that held back returns included lower oil prices; fears of slowing global growth and an increase in global trade tensions; and the U.S. Federal Reserve's steps to shrink its balance sheet and raise short-term interest rates. These concerns resulted in falling equity prices and rising credit spreads for non-government bonds.

Even so, measures of the health of the corporate-bond market improved slightly, and defaults fell, and remain, at low levels.

The Fund was negatively affected by its exposure to U.S. high-yield bonds in general, and by its exposure to specific automotive issuers and the technology industry. The Fund benefited from its significant cash holdings and exposure to higher-quality Canadian corporate bonds.

Recent Developments

Valuations of high-yield bonds have improved, as credit spreads widened, although they remain below long-term averages and the portfolio manager anticipates more volatility if central banks continue tightening monetary policy. While modest returns are expected in the near term, credit defaults remain low and some corporate bonds have fallen to valuations that offer the potential for more attractive returns.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital growth by investing primarily in higher-yielding corporate debt securities issued by U.S. corporations.

To achieve its objectives, the portfolio manager invests primarily in debt securities issued by U.S. corporations that are rated below BBB- by Standard & Poor's or an equivalent rating agency. The portfolio manager employs a value-focused philosophy for corporate bonds, striving to invest in quality companies having stable to improving credit profiles, and which are considered to be undervalued given the current market sentiment.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $114 million as of December 31, 2018, from $195 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 4.1%, which underperformed the 2.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

U.S. high-yield bonds, which are particularly sensitive to the pace of economic growth, recorded losses in 2018 as concern emerged late in the year about the sustainability of the global expansion, the negative impact of U.S.-China trade tensions and U.S. policymakers' commitment to raising interest rates. The late-2018 swoon in high-yield bonds, stocks and other "risky" assets resulted in their ceding gains built up over the first three quarters of the year. Credit spreads – the premium required by investors to invest in lower-rated debt such as high-yield bonds – narrowed for most of the year to their lowest levels since 2007 in October before widening late in the year.

The lowest-rated corporate bonds, which had outperformed for most of the year, sharply reversed course late in the fourth quarter and were the worst-performing part of the corporate-bond market by year-end. Even so, measures of the health of the corporate-bond market improved slightly, and defaults fell, and remain, at low levels. The Fund's returns were held back on a relative basis by exposure to bonds issued by automotive suppliers, such as Adient, and technology companies, including Western Digital. The Fund benefited from its cash holdings and lower exposure to the telecommunications industry.

Recent Developments

Valuations of high-yield bonds have improved, as credit spreads widened, although they remain below long-term averages, and the portfolio manager anticipates more volatility if central banks continue tightening monetary policy. While modest returns are expected in the near term, credit defaults remain low and some corporate bonds have fallen to valuations that offer the potential for more attractive returns.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.25%           | 40%                   | 60%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.25%           | 40%                   | 60%    |
| Series D       | 0.90%           | 17%                   | 83%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE (in USD)

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues above-average total returns comprised of interest income and capital growth by investing in higher-yielding corporate or government debt securities available in international markets.

The Fund manages risks by limiting its holdings in any single industry, issuer or country. The Fund may use derivatives to protect against losses from changes in interest rates, credit quality and currency fluctuations.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $3.6 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $3.7 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to investment losses, partially offset by net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 4.5%, which underperformed the 4.0% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 declined 2.9% and the broad-based index 2 declined 5.1%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Emerging-market bonds denominated in U.S. dollars and U.S. high-yield corporate bonds recorded losses in 2018, but U.S. high-yield outperformed for the year as a whole after outperforming for the first three quarters of the year. Rising yields on U.S. Treasury bonds weighed on emerging-market bonds at the beginning of 2018, while solid U.S. economic growth boosted U.S. high-yield bonds. U.S. high-yield bonds stumbled badly in the final quarter of 2018 as protectionism threatened to derail the economic expansion and profit growth. U.S. automotive bonds came under significant pressure in 2019 due to costs related to tariffs imposed by Chinese goods, while Energy-sector bonds were hurt by a fall in oil prices of about 40% from the year's peak.

In emerging markets, the Fund benefited from holding bonds issued by Rwanda and Bahrain. Currency trading also aided relative returns. More generally, the Fund's overweight allocation to emerging-market bonds held back relative returns, although this reversed somewhat in December, when concern about the sustainability of global economic growth hit corporate fixed income. Security selection in U.S. high yield also weighed on returns, particularly those issued by auto-related companies.

Recent Developments

Bond yields are coming down as recent signs of a U.S. growth slowdown and the negative impact of protectionism make it likely that the U.S. Federal Reserve will slow its pace of interest-rate increases. Lower oil prices will make it harder for oil companies and oil-producing countries to balance their books.

More generally, investors are uneasy, in the view of the portfolio manager, about attacks on the legitimacy of institutions such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and central banks and the continuing appeal of Western-style democracy.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada ("Royal Bank") and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund's day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund's property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients' investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust ("RBC IS") or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Brokers and Dealers

The Fund has established standard brokerage and dealing agreements at market rates with related parties. These related-party commissions were $0 (2017 – $1,000) or 0% (2017 – 2%) of the total transaction costs paid for this Fund.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;

- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Series D       | 0.90%           | 17%                   | 83%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular monthly income with a potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in higher-yielding fixed-income securities.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects underlying funds from the RBC Funds family or PH&N Funds family that primarily invest in investment-grade and high-yield corporate and emerging-market sovereign and corporate fixed-income securities for inclusion in the Fund.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among underlying funds based on the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its investment objectives.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value rose to $935 million as of December 31, 2018, from $849 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 0.5%, which underperformed the 1.4% rise in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 3.20 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 38 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 33 cents of interest, 3 cents return of capital and 2 cents of capital gains.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the “EU”), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Corporate bonds and other non-government fixed-income securities underperformed similar-maturity government bonds in 2018, as investors became concerned about the potential for slowing economic growth; an intensifying trade dispute between the U.S. and China; geopolitical risks linked to Middle East tensions; and the U.K.’s plan to leave the EU. These risks led to an increase in the excess yield earned on corporate bonds over sovereign securities, resulting in smaller relative price gains or outright declines for corporate bonds.

The Fund’s performance was bolstered by allocations to the RBC Emerging Markets Bond Fund, the RBC Emerging Markets Foreign Exchange Fund and the BlueBay Emerging Markets Corporate Bond Fund. Returns were held back by the RBC Global High Yield Bond Fund.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019, relative to earlier expectations. The European Central Bank has ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates this year. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, as long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, in the view of the portfolio manager, the bulk of the Fed rate increases is likely behind us, and trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular monthly income with a potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in higher-yielding fixed-income securities.

To achieve its objective, the Fund selects underlying funds from the RBC Funds family or the PH&N Funds family that primarily invest in investment-grade and high-yield corporate and emerging-market sovereign and corporate fixed-income securities for inclusion in the Fund.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among underlying funds based on the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its investment objectives.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying fund. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low-to-medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on January 29, 2018, and its net asset value was $29 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019, relative to earlier expectations. The European Central Bank has ended its bond-buying program and may begin raising rates this year. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, as long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, in the view of the portfolio manager, the bulk of the Fed rate increases is likely behind us, and trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients’ investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust (“RBC IS”) or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns associated with those of emerging-market currencies and short-term interest rates.

To achieve the objective, the Fund uses derivatives such as foreign-exchange forward contracts that give investors exposure to currencies in emerging market countries including China, Russia, Singapore, Mexico, India, Brazil, Poland, Thailand, Turkey, Indonesia, Malaysia, South Africa, the Philippines, Colombia and Peru. The Fund invests most of its assets in Canadian money-market instruments.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $1.0 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $765 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to a combination of net inflows and investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 3.1%, which underperformed the 5.0% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index rose 1.4%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Emerging-market currencies declined overall versus the U.S. dollar during the year, as deteriorating economic growth in emerging markets and the increase in U.S.-dollar borrowing costs weighed on their assets. The near-term growth outlook for most emerging economies was negatively affected by a slowdown in the Chinese economy. China is by far the largest emerging-market economy and exerts direct influence over a significant number of other emerging markets. Trade tensions between China and the U.S. also heightened worries that less robust global economic growth would spread to emerging economies.

The increase in U.S.-dollar financing costs resulting from higher U.S. bond yields affected countries with large borrowings in U.S. dollars, such as Argentina and Turkey. However, the decline in emerging-market assets in the first half of 2018 resulted in yields on many currencies becoming more attractive. Rising yields in Turkey, India and Indonesia, in particular, set the stage for a partial recovery in the second half of the year. For 2018 as a whole, the Turkish and Indian currencies declined 28% and 8%, respectively, versus the U.S. dollar, while the currency of Argentina, whose economic problems are perceived by many investors to be more deep-seated, fell 51%.

Thailand and Mexico were among a small group of countries whose currencies posted only minor losses. Mexico's peso benefited during the first part of the year from a positive view of the new government, although the policies of President Lopez Obrador have since disappointed investors.

Weakness in the Canadian dollar versus the U.S. dollar and emerging-market currencies in recent months aided the Fund's returns significantly. The emerging-market currency index lost 3% versus the U.S. dollar in 2018 but rose 5% versus the Canadian dollar.

Given the more attractive valuations that surfaced after the weakness in emerging-market currencies during the first nine months of the year, the portfolio manager increased exposure to more volatile currencies, such as the Russian ruble, the South African rand and the Brazilian real.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects emerging-market currencies to continue recovering in the near term, given indications that the U.S. Federal Reserve will start to slow the pace of interest-rate increases from the four hikes recorded in 2018. The portfolio manager expects that growth in most emerging economies will remain subdued in the first half of 2019, and the portfolio manager will continue to favour currencies with faster expected economic growth, lower vulnerability to U.S.-dollar funding and governments willing to enact structural reforms.

The portfolio manager is hopeful that China-U.S. trade relations will improve. However, macroeconomic threats have led the portfolio manager to limit exposure to the riskiest currencies. While the Fund has overweight positions in Turkey and Indonesia, exposure to Argentina is set at neutral.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O — no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $824 million as of December 31, 2018, from $826 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions, partially offset by investment returns.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 3.8%, which underperformed the 4.0% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Emerging-market bonds posted losses in 2018 given rising U.S. government-bond yields and a slowdown in economic growth caused in part by China-U.S. trade tensions. Investors were concerned that U.S. tariffs imposed on Chinese goods would curtail China's growth and reverberate in other emerging markets that supply Chinese manufacturers. Falling oil prices were a boon for energy importers, such as Turkey and South Africa, and a headwind for producers, such as Russia and Mexico. The North American benchmark oil price strengthened above US$75 in early October before retreating to as low as US$42 in December on expectations that economic growth would slow and sanctions against Iran would be loosened.

The yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury bond rose for much of the year and peaked at 3.24% in November, up from 2.41% at the beginning of 2018. The rise in U.S. yields increased loan costs for the many emerging-market countries and companies that borrow in U.S. dollars. The extra income required by investors to invest in emerging-market bonds instead of benchmark U.S. Treasuries also rose, and this was a further negative for emerging-market bonds.

Below-benchmark exposure to Lebanese and Zambian bonds aided the Fund's relative performance, as these markets performed poorly. Enormous declines in Argentina's peso and Bahrain's U.S.-dollar denominated bonds presented the Fund with excellent opportunities to purchase short-term positions in these areas and then sell them at a profit. The portfolio manager built up investments in U.S. Treasuries as rates increased, protecting the portfolio, and an allocation to highly rated Qatar also aided returns as investors sought safe havens in the fourth quarter. The portfolio manager's preference for Venezuelan federal bonds at the expense of bonds issued by the government-backed oil company had a significant positive impact on returns.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager believes that the fiscal condition of emerging-market oil producers will likely weaken over the next year, given the fall in oil prices. Many forecasters expect a global economic slowdown, most notably in the U.S. and China, as trade tensions continue to simmer. However, the addition of highly rated Persian Gulf states, such as Saudi Arabia and Qatar, to the benchmark index in 2019 will raise the average credit quality of the index while also making it more sensitive to oil-price changes.

The benchmark yield (excluding in-default Venezuela) increased to 6.34% at the end of 2018 from 4.78% at the beginning of 2018, and this increase makes emerging-market bonds more attractive, as long as macroeconomic conditions do not deteriorate significantly.

Effective January 1, 2019, administration fees will be reduced as follows: from 0.10% to 0.05% for Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units; and from 0.10% to 0.02% for Series O units.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and capital growth by investing primarily in government debt securities of emerging-market countries, while minimizing the exposure to currency fluctuations between foreign currencies and the Canadian dollar.

The Fund invests up to 100% of its net assets in units of the RBC Emerging Markets Bond Fund (the “underlying fund”). The underlying fund invests mainly in U.S. dollar-denominated bonds issued by the governments of Brazil, Russia, Mexico, Turkey, Philippines, China, Indonesia, Malaysia, Venezuela, Colombia, South Africa, Poland, Panama, Lebanon and Peru. The underlying fund may also invest in bonds of these countries denominated in another G7 currency or in the local currencies of these countries. The Fund uses currency hedges to minimize the impact of fluctuations in foreign currencies versus the Canadian dollar.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying fund. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the long term and can tolerate low-to-medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value rose to $9 million as of December 31, 2018, from $5 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 5.1%, which matched the 5.1% decline in the benchmark. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Emerging-market bonds posted losses in 2018, given rising U.S. government-bond yields and a slowdown in economic growth caused in part by China-U.S. trade tensions. Investors were concerned that U.S. tariffs imposed on Chinese goods would curtail China’s growth and reverberate in other emerging markets that supply Chinese manufacturers. Falling oil prices were a boon for energy importers, such as Turkey and South Africa, and a headwind for producers, such as Russia and Mexico. The North American benchmark oil price strengthened above US$75 in early October before retreating to as low as US$42 in December on expectations that economic growth would slow and sanctions against Iran would be loosened.

The yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury bond rose for much of the year and peaked at 3.24% in November, up from 2.41% at the beginning of 2018. The rise in U.S. yields increased loan costs for the many emerging-market countries and companies that borrow in U.S. dollars. The extra income required by investors to invest in emerging-market bonds instead of benchmark U.S. Treasuries also rose, and this was a further negative for emerging-market bonds.

Below-benchmark exposure to Lebanese and Zambian bonds aided the Fund’s relative performance, as these markets performed poorly. Enormous declines in Argentina’s peso and Bahrain’s U.S.-dollar denominated bonds presented the Fund with excellent opportunities to purchase short-term positions in these areas and then sell them at a profit. The portfolio manager built up investments in U.S. Treasuries as rates increased, protecting the portfolio, and an allocation to highly rated Qatar also aided returns as investors sought safe havens in the fourth quarter. The portfolio manager’s preference for Venezuelan federal bonds at the expense of bonds issued by the government-backed oil company had a significant positive impact on returns.

Unitholders did not benefit from the Fund’s currency-hedging policy in the first half of 2018, given the rise in the U.S. dollar versus the Canadian dollar.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager believes that the fiscal condition of emerging-market oil producers will likely weaken over the next year, given the fall in oil prices. Many forecasters expect a global economic slowdown, most notably in the U.S. and China, as trade tensions continue to simmer. However, the addition of highly rated Persian Gulf states, such as Saudi Arabia and Qatar, to the benchmark index in 2019 will raise the average credit quality of the index while also making it more sensitive to oil-price changes.

The benchmark yield (excluding in-default Venezuela) increased to 6.34% at the end of 2018 from 4.78% at the beginning of 2018, and this increase makes emerging-market bonds more attractive, as long as macroeconomic conditions do not deteriorate significantly.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide high regular monthly income and total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation. To achieve the Fund's objectives, the sub-advisor invests primarily in global high-yield debt securities, emerging market government and corporate debt securities, and global convertible bonds either directly or indirectly through investments in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate.

Global high-yield debt includes securities of companies rated below investment grade, which can be domiciled or carry out business anywhere in the world. Emerging market debt includes bonds issued by emerging market issuers or entities domiciled in an emerging market country, and which can be denominated in U.S. dollars, the currency of another G7 country or in the local currency of an emerging market country. Global convertible bonds include securities issued by entities that can be domiciled or carry out business anywhere in the world.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $1.7 billion as of December 31, 2018, unchanged from the end of 2017.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.3%, which underperformed the 2.6% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 3.35 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 40 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 37 cents per unit of interest and 3 cents of return of capital.

Non-government bonds and equities generated losses in 2018 amid trade disputes between the U.S. and its major trade partners; weakening economic growth in many parts of the world; and generally higher interest rates for much of the year. Central banks, led by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed"), tightened monetary policies or took steps in that direction, culminating in the Fed's fourth rate hike of the year in December.

In Canadian-dollar terms, the high-yield market posted a loss of 2.8%; the financial-capital bond market lost 3.5%; the convertible bond market lost 3.6%; the emerging-market sovereign hard-currency debt market lost 5.1%; the emerging-market sovereign local-currency debt market gained 2.2%; the emerging-market corporate market lost 2.5%; and the emerging-market corporate local-currency market gained 6.9%.

Emerging markets had an overall negative impact on the Fund's performance; emerging-market local-currency bonds in both the sovereign and corporate areas held back returns during the period. The allocation to convertible bonds contributed to returns.

Overall, asset allocation aided relative returns over the period, with the underweight position in emerging markets proving the correct positioning as these assets declined. Security selection was negative overall, primarily because of underperformance in the emerging-market local-currency segment. Security selection was positive in high-yield and convertible bonds, as both areas outperformed.

Portfolio turnover is normally high for this Fund, as the sub-advisor attempts to generate better returns through active security selection.

Recent Developments

The financial-market calm of recent years is gradually giving way to a more volatile era in which investors may need to place a greater emphasis on asset diversification and capital preservation. However, in the sub-advisor's view, healthy global economic growth, relatively low inflation and broadly accommodative monetary policies should support assets such as corporate bonds.

As of December 31, 2018, 33% of the Fund was invested in high-yield fixed income; 18% in emerging-market securities denominated in developed-market currencies; 13% in emerging-market local currency; 9% in emerging-market local-currency corporate fixed income; 11% in convertible bonds; 9% in financial-capital bonds; and 7% elsewhere.

Effective January 1, 2018, management fees were reduced as follows: from 1.65% to 1.50% for Series A and Advisor Series units; from 1.05% to 0.90% for Series D units; and from 0.90% to 0.75% for Series F and Series I units.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in fixed-income securities issued by sovereign governments and entities (including emerging-market countries) anywhere in the world. The Fund may also invest in corporate debt securities globally.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the sub-advisor conducts detailed analysis examining economic growth, inflation, and the fiscal and monetary policy of each country to identify investment opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $1.4 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.2 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units gained 0.6%, which underperformed the 1.9% rise in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global government bonds were mixed in 2018, with short-maturity U.S. Treasuries recording losses while German bonds rose and Japanese bonds were generally flat. The U.S. Treasury market underperformed other developed markets on central-bank monetary tightening attributable to higher relative economic growth and inflation. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") raised short-term interest rates four times during the period and scaled back bond purchases aimed at holding down longer-term rates, in line with a strengthening economy. Short-term interest rates climbed relative to longer-term rates in most major markets, a sign that investors are expecting less generous central banks going forward.

In Europe, exposure to Italian government bonds was the primary contributor to returns, as the Fund took advantage of what the sub-advisor considered to be attractive valuations. Allocations to Portugal and France also added to outperformance. The Fund's returns were also helped by positions in short-term U.S. Treasuries, as well as trading in German government bonds. On the negative side, exposure to Chile held back performance, as emerging-market assets came under pressure during the period, and exposure to Netherlands was also a negative.

Portfolio turnover is normally high for this Fund, as the sub-advisor attempts to generate better returns through active security selection.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor expects the U.S. economy to continue expanding in 2019, with consumers in particular driving the growth. The Fed is likely to continue raising short-term interest rates in 2019, although at a slower pace than in 2018. In Europe, the sub-advisor expects the European Central Bank (the "ECB") to lower its economic-growth forecasts and extend monetary measures to facilitate borrowing. The failure of economic growth to strengthen this year will likely mean that ECB President Mario Draghi won't raise interest rates. He hasn't raised them once in his eight-year tenure, which expires in October 2019.

In Italy, the coalition government is starting to realize that it must be prudent about boosting fiscal spending, given that higher Italian borrowing costs are starting to curtail economic growth. The sub-advisor expects Italian bonds to offer the potential for attractive returns once Italy and the EU work out their differences.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.35%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.35%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Series D       | 0.85%           | 29%                   | 71%    |
| Series F       | 0.60%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in investment-grade corporate debt securities from anywhere in the world. It may also invest in high-yield debt securities and emerging-market sovereign and corporate bonds globally.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the sub-advisor conducts detailed company credit and industry analysis to identify investment opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $2.1 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.8 billion at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.4%, which underperformed the 1.8% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Most corporate-bond markets underperformed government fixed income in 2018, as a worsening macroeconomic and geopolitical backdrop prompted many investors to seek safe-haven investments. The risks included heightened U.S.-China trade tensions, worries about Brexit and efforts by Italy's coalition government to skirt European Union (the "EU") budgetary rules. Widening current-account deficits in Turkey and Argentina were also on investors' radar. As a result, the extra yield required by investors to invest in corporate bonds instead of "risk-free" government bonds increased, especially in the fourth quarter of the year.

The Fund's returns were hurt by an overall preference for bonds issued by European corporations. At the sector level, Financials accounted for the bulk of the underperformance, with banks such as Santander, Intesa Sanpaolo and HSBC sustaining losses. The sub-advisor reduced the Fund's exposure in this area during the latter part of the period, especially in low-ranking debt. The Energy sector also held back the Fund's performance, with positions in Cenovus Energy and Petrobras hurting returns. Telecom Italia underperformed considerably amid the departure of the chief executive and a worsening financial outlook.

On the positive side, the Fund benefited from bond holdings in the automaker Ford Motor and sandwich chain Jimmy John's. Also aiding performance was a position in futures contracts that bet on an increase in U.S. interest rates.

Portfolio turnover is normally high for this Fund, as the sub-advisor attempts to generate better returns through active security selection.

Recent Developments

Financial-market volatility is on the rise across the world. While corporate earnings remain robust and the U.S. economy shows little sign of slowing, cracks are appearing. U.S.-China trade tensions and EU fiscal and political conflicts are two of the factors complicating the economic outlook, compounded by tighter monetary policy and higher borrowing costs. While the backdrop for corporate bonds remains positive, the sub-advisor has concerns about the impact of increased hedging costs on returns.

The sub-advisor remains somewhat optimistic about the outlook for European corporations but believes that returns will likely be limited as long as political uncertainty persists about Brexit and Italy's coalition government.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

| Advisor Series | 1.35%           | 56%                   | 44%    |
| Series D       | 0.85%           | 29%                   | 71%    |
| Series F       | 0.60%           | —                     | 100%   |

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in high-yield debt securities issued by entities domiciled in or carrying out the majority of their business activities in Europe.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the sub-advisor conducts detailed company credit and industry analysis to identify investment opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $578 million as of December 31, 2018, from $569 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 1.3%, which outperformed the 1.5% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

European high-yield bonds recorded modest losses in 2018 as rising U.S. interest rates and political stress in Europe offset the positive impact of strong corporate earnings. Toward the end of 2018, a clear loss of momentum in economic growth led to a doubling in the extra yield required to own European high-yield bonds relative to benchmarks.

The Fund's relative performance benefited from security selection. The sub-advisor avoided companies involved in credit restructurings, as well as the worst-performing companies in the benchmark. Exposure to Telecom Italia had a positive impact on relative performance. From a sector perspective, underweight allocations to auto-related companies and other businesses sensitive to the pace of economic expansion aided relative returns as growth began to waver late in the year.

Relative returns were also hampered by exposure to the banking industry, which was one of the Fund's favoured areas of investment in early 2018. Italy's banking industry was hard-hit by concern that the Italian government would increase government spending to levels inconsistent with the country's already high debt levels. As a result, holdings in the Italian bank Monte De Paschi held back the Fund's performance.

Exposure to European high-yield bank loans helped shelter the portfolio from market stress, as this area of Europe's credit market significantly outperformed the high-yield bond market. Regionally, U.K. bonds in 2018 offered good returns, as they benefited from yields that more than compensated for the risks represented by the U.K.'s plan to leave the European Union.

Portfolio turnover is normally high for the Fund, as the sub-advisor attempts to generate better returns through active security selection and optimal term exposure.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor believes that high-yield bonds continue to offer attractive returns after the sell-off that occurred in the latter stages of 2018. The likelihood of a recessionary environment in 2019 is low, in the view of the sub-advisor, given that earnings are still rising. In the high-yield market, leverage levels continue to decline and credit quality remains healthy. However, the recent investor pessimism clearly cannot be ignored, and the sub-advisor realizes that issues such as slowing Chinese economic growth, trade conflicts and European politics could destabilize financial markets.

Effective January 1, 2018, management fees were reduced as follows: from 1.65% to 1.50% for Series A and Advisor Series units; from 1.05% to 0.90% for Series D units; and from 0.90% to 0.75% for Series F units.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Series D       | 0.90%           | 17%                   | 83%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation.

To achieve its objective, the Fund invests primarily in sovereign and quasi-sovereign fixed-income securities in emerging-market countries. The Fund may also invest in fixed-income securities issued by corporations based in emerging market countries. The sub-advisor conducts a detailed analysis of each relevant country's economic growth, inflation and fiscal and monetary policies and, for corporate bonds, a detailed company credit and industry analysis to identify opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on September 24, 2018, and its net asset value was $32 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor believes that financial-market volatility could increase in 2019, given that many investors expect central banks to continue raising short-term interest rates, albeit gradually, while reducing the asset purchases that have been used to keep long-term interest rates in check. Such an environment is likely to present investors with opportunities to find undervalued assets, in the view of the sub-advisor, as some would decline to more attractive levels.

Recent comments from the U.S. Federal Reserve suggest a slower path of interest-rate hikes in 2019 than had been expected in 2018. This backdrop is likely to reinvigorate interest in emerging-market assets, in the view of the sub-advisor. Among the market risks that appear to be receding is the U.S.-China trade dispute, which has reached a point where negotiations can begin. A reduction in trade tensions would provide some respite to the market.

The sub-advisor remains optimistic regarding the prospects for emerging-market corporate bonds in the near term, although volatility is to be expected. As things stand, the sub-advisor is inclined to increase exposure to riskier assets.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation.

To achieve its objective, the Fund invests primarily in sovereign and quasi-sovereign fixed-income securities in emerging-market countries in local currencies. The Fund may also invest in fixed-income securities issued by corporations based in emerging market countries in local currencies. The sub-advisor conducts a detailed analysis of each relevant country's economic growth, inflation and fiscal and monetary policies and, for corporate bonds, a detailed company credit and industry analysis to identify opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on December 6, 2018, and its net asset value was $23 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor believes that financial-market volatility could increase in 2019, given that many investors expect central banks to continue raising short-term interest rates, albeit gradually, while reducing the asset purchases that have been used to keep long-term interest rates in check. Such an environment is likely to present investors with opportunities to find undervalued assets, in the view of the sub-advisor, as some would decline to more attractive levels.

Recent comments from the U.S. Federal Reserve suggest a slower path of interest-rate hikes in 2019 than had been expected in 2018. This backdrop is likely to reinvigorate interest in emerging-market assets, in the view of the sub-advisor. Among the market risks that appear to be receding is the U.S.-China trade dispute, which has reached a point where negotiations can begin. A reduction in trade tensions would provide some respite to the market.

The sub-advisor remains optimistic regarding the prospects for emerging-market corporate bonds in the near term, although volatility is to be expected. As things stand, the sub-advisor is inclined to increase exposure to riskier assets.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns comprised of interest income and modest capital appreciation.

To achieve its objective, the Fund invests primarily in U.S. dollar denominated debt securities of corporations based in emerging market countries. The Fund may also invest in government debt securities of emerging market and developed countries, as well as emerging market sovereign bonds and government debt securities of developed countries in local currencies or in another G7 currency. The sub-advisor conducts detailed company credit and industry analysis to identify opportunities offering a higher probabilities of superior rates of return, while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $706 million as of December 31, 2018, from $717 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to investment losses, partially offset by net inflows.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 5.6%, which underperformed the 1.7% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Emerging-market bonds and other "risk" assets got off to a strong start in 2018, although much of the gains were ceded in February and March as market volatility increased. Equity markets, in particular, felt the brunt of the turn in sentiment. The big news on the first quarter for emerging markets was the deterioration of relations between Russia and the West, culminating in the poisoning of an ex-Russian spy on U.K. soil.

The market environment turned even more difficult in the second quarter as a combination of U.S.-dollar strength, a move higher in U.S. interest rates and heightened U.S.-China trade tensions led to negative investor sentiment towards emerging markets. The sell-off manifested itself most severely in countries with budget and trade deficits, and where investor positioning was heaviest. Although Turkey and Argentina were the two countries in the eye of the storm, the negative sentiment spilled over into other markets.

The big change affecting emerging markets towards the end of the year was the pullback in oil prices, which was a notable negative for emerging-market oil exporters and fuelled investor concerns regarding global growth and the potential for too-low inflation. Turkey and Argentina were the worst-performing emerging markets, and the Fund's overweight position in Argentina had a negative impact on relative returns. In Turkey, escalating tensions in the U.S. and continued unorthodox policymaking led to weakness in the lira, which put pressure on even the highest-quality, systemically important banks held in the portfolio.

Holdings in China, Brazil and Ecuador also had a negative impact on performance, while India, Qatar and Russia aided returns. Security selection had an overall negative impact on portfolio performance.

The Fund's avoidance of Rusal, a troubled Russian aluminum miner, and a holding in Samarco, a Brazilian mining company, aided the Fund's relative performance. Exposure to the distressed Brazilian telecommunications company Oi had a negative impact on returns, as did exposure to Turkey's Akbank. Holdings in paper companies aided returns, as did oil and gas, which benefited from rising oil prices during the first three quarters of the year.

Portfolio turnover is normally high for this Fund, as the sub-advisor attempts to generate better returns through active security selection.

Recent Developments

The sub-advisor believes that financial-market volatility could increase in 2019, given that many investors expect central banks to continue raising short-term interest rates, albeit gradually, while reducing the asset purchases that have been used to keep long-term interest rates in check. Such an environment is likely to present investors with opportunities to find undervalued assets, in the view of the sub-advisor, as some would decline to more attractive levels.

Recent comments from the U.S. Federal Reserve suggest a slower path of interest-rate hikes in 2019 than had been expected in 2018. This backdrop is likely to reinvigorate interest in emerging-market assets, in the view of the sub-advisor. Among the market risks that appear to be receding is the U.S.-China trade dispute, which has reached a point where negotiations can begin. A reduction in trade tensions would provide some respite to the market.

The sub-advisor remains optimistic regarding the prospects for emerging-market corporate bonds in the near term, although volatility is to be expected. As things stand, the sub-advisor is inclined to increase exposure to riskier assets.

Effective January 1, 2018, management fees were reduced as follows: from 1.65% to 1.50% for Series A and Advisor Series units; from 1.05% to 0.90% for Series D units; and from 0.90% to 0.75% for Series F units.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.02%, Advisor Series – 2.04%, Series D – 1.33% and Series F – 1.19%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.50%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Series D       | 0.90%           | 17%                   | 83%    |
| Series F       | 0.75%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE (in USD)

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. ## MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide total returns consisting of interest income and modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in global convertible bonds issued by entities domiciled or carrying out business activities anywhere in the world.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the sub-advisor conducts detailed credit and equity analysis to identify investment opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $831 million as of December 31, 2018, from $1.1 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 4.0%, which underperformed the 3.6% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equity markets and other "risk" assets, such as convertible bonds, got off to a strong start in 2018, with the S&P 500 Index setting records in January on investor optimism that U.S. tax cuts would boost corporate profitability. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in Jerome Powell's first meeting as chairman, raised interest rates by 25 basis points in March. Emerging markets came into focus in August amid currency plunges in Argentina and Turkey, and the outlook worsened as a trade dispute between the U.S. and China led to market declines.

Italian politics were a big concern for investors in 2018, especially in the second half of the year, after the formation of a ruling coalition committed to higher government spending by a country that is already debt-laden. As a result, tension increased between Italy and the European Union (the "EU"), leading to a plunge in Italian bonds as the gap between yields on Italian bonds widened relative to the benchmark.

As the year drew towards a close, falling crude-oil prices put pressure on emerging-market and high-yield debt, much of which is issued by energy producers. In the U.K., Brexit negotiations continued with the U.K. and the EU struggling to find common ground as Prime Minister Theresa May's EU withdrawal agreement had failed to make it through Parliament as of year-end.

Holdings that had a positive impact on the Fund's performance included Sarepta Therapeutics, which rose to a record after initial results of the company's experimental gene-therapy treatment surpassed investors' expectations; Herbalife, whose shares benefited from U.S. tax reform; and U.K. oil explorer Premier Oil, which rallied given its sensitivity to rising oil prices earlier in the year.

Holdings that had a negative impact on the Fund's performance included Dish Network, which reported disappointing revenues and earnings due to costs associated with reactivating hurricane-hit regions; chipmaker Microchip, whose shares plunged after the semiconductor company predicted lower-than-expected results given an industry slowdown; and telecommunications contractor Dycom, whose stock fell due primarily to permitting delays.

Recent Developments

The recent financial-market weakness has resulted in lower valuations and created some attractive investment opportunities. However, the sub-advisor believes that equity markets are likely to remain volatile, which could lead to price declines in securities that are sensitive to macroeconomic uncertainty. Convertible bonds can offer attractive, risk-adjusted returns against this backdrop.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Advisor T5 Series, Series T5, Series D, Series F and Series FT5 units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.03%, Advisor Series – 2.05%, Advisor T5 Series – 2.02%, Series T5 – 2.06%, Series D – 1.35%, Series F – 1.22% and Series FT5 – 1.21%.

Management Fees

|                   | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|-------------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                   |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide U.S. dollar total returns consisting of interest income and modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in global convertible bonds issued by entities domiciled or carrying out business activities anywhere in the world.

To achieve the Fund's objectives, the sub-advisor conducts detailed credit and equity analysis to identify investment opportunities offering higher probabilities of superior rates of return while minimizing the prospect of default.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $26 million as of December 31, 2018, from $56 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.9%, which underperformed the 3.0% decline in the benchmark. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Global equity markets and other "risk" assets, such as convertible bonds, got off to a strong start in 2018, with the S&P 500 Index setting records in January on investor optimism that U.S. tax cuts would boost corporate profitability. The U.S. Federal Reserve, in Jerome Powell's first meeting as chairman, raised interest rates by 25 basis points in March. Emerging markets came into focus in August amid currency plunges in Argentina and Turkey, and the outlook worsened as a trade dispute between the U.S. and China led to market declines.

Italian politics were a big concern for investors in 2018, especially in the second half of the year, after the formation of a ruling coalition committed to higher government spending by a country that is already debt-laden. As a result, tension increased between Italy and the European Union (the "EU"), leading to a plunge in Italian bonds as the gap between yields on Italian bonds widened relative to the benchmark.

As the year drew towards a close, falling crude-oil prices put pressure on emerging-market and high-yield debt, much of which is issued by energy producers. In the U.K., Brexit negotiations continued with the U.K. and the EU struggling to find common ground as Prime Minister Theresa May's EU withdrawal agreement had failed to make it through Parliament as of year-end.

Holdings that had a positive impact on the Fund's performance included Herbalife, whose shares benefited from U.S. tax reform; Citrix Systems, a software company that reported three quarters of strong growth; and ON Semiconductor, whose image sensor is a key component for autonomous-driving systems.

Holdings that had a negative impact on the Fund's performance included Dish Network, which reported disappointing revenues and earnings due to costs associated with reactivating hurricane-hit regions; chipmaker Microchip, whose shares plunged after the semiconductor company predicted lower-than-expected results given an industry slowdown; and Chinese online travel agency Ctrip.com, whose stock plunged in 2018 after the company announced disappointing financial forecasts.

Recent Developments

The recent financial-market weakness has resulted in lower valuations and created some attractive investment opportunities. However, the sub-advisor believes that equity markets are likely to remain volatile, which could lead to price declines in securities that are sensitive to macroeconomic uncertainty. Convertible bonds can offer attractive, risk-adjusted returns against this backdrop.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Advisor T5 Series, Series T5, Series D, Series F and Series FT5 units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.97%, Advisor Series – 1.99%, Advisor T5 Series – 1.94%, Series T5 – 1.94%, Series D – 1.41%, Series F – 1.20% and Series FT5 – 1.16%.

Management Fees

|                   | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|-------------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                   |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A          | 1.65%           | 45%                   | 55%    |
| Advisor Series    | 1.65%           | 45%                   | 55%    |
| Advisor T5 Series | 1.65%           | 45%                   | 55%    |
| Series T5         | 1.65%           | 45%                   | 55%    |
| Series D          | 1.05%           | 14%                   | 86%    |
| Series F          | 0.90%           | —                     | 100%   |
| Series FT5        | 0.90%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE (in USD)

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular income with a potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in fixed-income securities.

To achieve the Fund’s objectives, the Fund selects underlying funds that primarily invest in fixed-income securities for inclusion in the Fund to construct a portfolio of fixed-income securities diversified by sector, geography, credit quality, duration, currency and other relevant factors, and which may invest in fixed-income securities rated below investment grade, such as high-yield corporate bonds and certain emerging-market sovereign bonds, with the allocation to these issues typically ranging between 5% and 15%.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among the underlying funds based on the portfolio manager’s assessment of the fixed-income markets and the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its stated investment objectives.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on August 20, 2018, and its net asset value was $121 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, as long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, in the view of the portfolio manager, the bulk of the Fed rate increases is likely behind us, while trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

The portfolio manager expects the pace of interest-rate increases to slow, as the Bank of Canada’s tone has turned more cautious amid weakening Canadian economic growth. One indicator of the weakness is that shorter-term interest rates have risen more quickly than longer-term rates – this is known as “yield-curve flattening.”

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular income with a potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in fixed-income securities.

To achieve the Fund’s objectives, the Fund selects underlying funds that primarily invest in fixed-income securities for inclusion in the Fund to construct a portfolio of fixed-income securities diversified by sector, geography, credit quality, duration, currency and other relevant factors, and which may invest in fixed-income securities rated below investment grade, such as high-yield corporate bonds and certain emerging-market sovereign bonds, with the allocation to these issues typically ranging between 10% and 20%.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among the underlying funds based on the portfolio manager’s assessment of the fixed-income markets and the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its stated investment objectives.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on August 20, 2018, and its net asset value was $315 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, as long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, in the view of the portfolio manager, the bulk of the Fed rate increases is likely behind us, while trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

The portfolio manager expects the pace of interest-rate increases to slow, as the Bank of Canada’s tone has turned more cautious amid weakening Canadian economic growth. One indicator of the weakness is that shorter-term interest rates have risen more quickly than longer-term rates – this is known as “yield-curve flattening.”

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients’ investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust (“RBC IS”) or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

Inter-Fund Trading

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular income with a potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called the “underlying funds”), emphasizing mutual funds that invest in fixed-income securities.

To achieve the Fund’s objectives, the Fund selects underlying funds that primarily invest in fixed-income securities for inclusion in the Fund to construct a portfolio of fixed-income securities diversified by sector, geography, credit quality, duration, currency and other relevant factors, and which may invest in fixed-income securities rated below investment grade, such as high-yield corporate bonds and certain emerging-market sovereign bonds, with the allocation to these issues typically ranging between 15% and 25%.

The portfolio manager allocates and rebalances the Fund’s assets among the underlying funds based on the portfolio manager’s assessment of the fixed-income markets and the underlying funds’ ability to help the Fund meet its stated investment objectives.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks, which are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund was launched on August 20, 2018, and its net asset value was $679 million as of December 31, 2018. Investment performance is not provided for a fund that has been available for less than one year.

Recent Developments

Lower economic growth suggests that the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) will slow its pace of rate increases in 2019. Against this backdrop, the portfolio manager expects bond yields to rise marginally over the next 12 months. Short-term yields might continue rising faster than those on longer-term bonds, as long as central banks seem committed to higher benchmark rates. However, in the view of the portfolio manager, the bulk of the Fed rate increases is likely behind us, while trade tensions and slowing economic growth could keep bond yields within the recent range.

The portfolio manager expects the pace of interest-rate increases to slow, as the Bank of Canada’s tone has turned more cautious amid weakening Canadian economic growth. One indicator of the weakness is that shorter-term interest rates have risen more quickly than longer-term rates – this is known as “yield-curve flattening.”

Related-Party Transactions

Manager, Trustee and Portfolio Manager

RBC GAM is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Royal Bank of Canada (“Royal Bank”) and is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. RBC GAM is responsible for the Fund’s day-to-day operations, holds title to the Fund’s property on behalf of its unitholders, provides investment advice and portfolio management services to the Fund and appoints distributors for the Fund. RBC GAM is paid a management fee by the Fund as compensation for its services. The Fund pays a fixed administration fee to RBC GAM, which, in turn, pays certain operating expenses of the Fund. Both the management fee and fixed administration fee are calculated and accrued daily as a percentage of the net asset value of each series of units of the Fund. RBC GAM, as trustee, earns a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn fees and spreads in connection with various services provided to, or transactions with, the Fund, such as banking, brokerage, securities lending, foreign exchange and derivatives transactions. RBC GAM or its affiliates may earn a foreign exchange spread when unitholders switch between series of funds denominated in different currencies. The Fund also maintains bank accounts and overdraft provisions with Royal Bank for which Royal Bank may earn a fee. Affiliates of RBC GAM that provide services to the Fund in the course of their normal businesses are discussed below.

Distributors

RBC GAM, Royal Mutual Funds Inc., RBC Direct Investing Inc., RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Phillips, Hager & North Investment Funds Ltd. are principal distributors of, or may distribute certain series of units of, the Fund. Dealers may receive an ongoing commission based on the total value of their clients’ investment in certain series of units of the Fund.

Registrars

RBC GAM, RBC Investor Services Trust (“RBC IS”) or Royal Bank (or a combination thereof) are the registrars of the Fund and keep records of who owns units of the Fund. The registrars earn a fee, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Custodian

RBC IS is the custodian and holds the assets of the Fund. RBC IS earns a fee as the custodian, which is paid by the manager from the fixed administration fee paid by the Fund.

Securities Lending Agent

To the extent the Fund may engage in securities lending transactions, RBC IS may act as the Fund's securities lending agent. Any revenue earned on such securities lending is split between the Fund and the securities lending agent.

Other Related-Party Transactions

Pursuant to applicable securities legislation, the Fund relied on the standing instructions from the Independent Review Committee with respect to one or more of the following transactions:

Related-Party Trading Activities

- (a) trades in securities of Royal Bank;
- (b) investments in the securities of issuers for which a related-party dealer acted as an underwriter during the distribution of such securities and the 60-day period following the conclusion of such distribution of the underwritten securities to the public;
- (c) purchases of equity and debt securities from or sales of equity or debt securities to a related-party dealer, where it acted as principal; and

- (d) purchases or sales of securities of an issuer from or to another investment fund or managed account managed by RBC GAM.

The applicable standing instructions require that Related-Party Trading Activities and Inter-Fund Trading be conducted in accordance with RBC GAM policy and that RBC GAM advise the Independent Review Committee of a material breach of any standing instruction. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Related-Party Trading Activities (i) is made free from any influence of Royal Bank or its associates or affiliates and without taking into account any consideration relevant to Royal Bank or its affiliates or associates, (ii) represents the business judgment of the portfolio manager, uninfluenced by considerations other than the best interests of the Fund, (iii) is in compliance with RBC GAM policies and procedures, and (iv) achieves a fair and reasonable result for the Fund. RBC GAM policy requires that an investment decision in respect of Inter-Fund Trading is in the best interests of each Fund.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide relatively high, regular monthly distributions that are comparatively tax efficient with a potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of other funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called “underlying funds”).

The decision to invest in an underlying fund is based on the portfolio manager’s assessment of the market outlook and the underlying fund’s ability to help the Fund meet its stated investment objectives. Distributions should come primarily from interest income but will also consist of dividends, capital gains and return of capital.

The Fund’s target weightings for each asset class are 75% for fixed income and 25% for equities. The actual allocation to each asset class will not be more than 15% above or below its target weighting.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks associated with investing in various asset classes. These risks are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $3.3 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $3.8 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to net redemptions.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 2.5%, which underperformed the 0.7% fall in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 fell 8.9%. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 3.75 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 45 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 6 cents per unit of interest, 6 cents of dividends, 13 cents of capital gains and 20 cents of return of capital.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the “EU”), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Fund’s overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a positive impact on performance. Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the portfolio were boosted by the RBC Canadian Short-Term Income Fund and the RBC Bond Fund.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe early in 2018, and U.S. equities, which were quite resilient for most of the year, joined the sell-off in the fourth quarter. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada’s equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. Returns were held back by the Phillips, Hager & North Canadian Income Fund and the RBC Canadian Dividend Fund.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year's rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.

Management Fees

The management fee payable in respect of each of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund is a variable fee and is determined on a basis such that all fees and expenses that comprise the management expense ratio ("MER"), other than the additional cost of the GST/HST, will be equal to a specified percentage of the average net asset value of each of these series of the Fund ("Specified Percentage"). The Specified Percentage includes the management fee, administration fee, taxes (other than the additional cost of the GST/HST), other fund costs and any fees and expenses of the underlying funds. The Specified Percentage for Series A and Advisor Series units is 1.55%.

The management fee payable to RBC GAM in respect of Series F units of the Fund is a fixed fee and the MER of Series F units comprises the management fee, administration fee, taxes, other fund costs and any fees and expenses of the underlying funds.

The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fee component of the MER for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees* | Breakdown of Services |                    |
|----------------|------------------|-----------------------|--------------------|
|                |                  | Distribution          | Other † |
| Series A       | 1.40%            | 54%                   | 46%                |
| Advisor Series | 1.39%            | 54%                   | 46%                |
| Series F       | 0.60%            | —                     | 100%               |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide relatively high, regular monthly distributions that are comparatively tax efficient with a potential for modest capital appreciation by investing primarily in units of other funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called “underlying funds”).

The decision to invest in an underlying fund is based on the portfolio manager’s assessment of the market outlook and the underlying fund’s ability to help the Fund meet its stated investment objectives. Distributions will include interest income, dividends, capital gains and may also consist of return of capital.

The Fund’s target weightings for each asset class are 65% for fixed income and 35% for equities. The actual allocation to each asset class will not be more than 15% above or below its target weighting.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks associated with investing in various asset classes. These risks are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $2.4 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $2.6 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 3.3%, which underperformed the 1.6% fall in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 fell 8.9%. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 4.25 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 51 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 5 cents per unit of interest, 9 cents of dividends, 10 cents of capital gains and 27 cents of return of capital.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the “EU”), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Fund’s overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a positive impact on performance. Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the portfolio were boosted by the RBC Bond Fund and the RBC Canadian Short-Term Income Fund.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe early in 2018, and U.S. equities, which were quite resilient for most of the year, joined the sell-off in the fourth quarter. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada’s equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. Returns were held back by the RBC Canadian Dividend Fund and the Phillips, Hager & North Canadian Income Fund.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year’s rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.

Management Fees

The management fee payable in respect of each of Series A and Advisor Series units of the Fund is a variable fee and is determined on a basis such that all fees and expenses that comprise the management expense ratio ("MER"), other than the additional cost of the GST/HST, will be equal to a specified percentage of the average net asset value of each of these series of the Fund ("Specified Percentage"). The Specified Percentage includes the management fee, administration fee, taxes (other than the additional cost of the GST/HST), other fund costs and any fees and expenses of the underlying funds. The Specified Percentage for Series A and Advisor Series units is 1.75%.

The management fee payable to RBC GAM in respect of Series F units of the Fund is a fixed fee and the MER of Series F units comprises the management fee, administration fee, taxes, other fund costs and any fees and expenses of the underlying funds.

The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fee component of the MER for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees* | Breakdown of Services |                    |
|----------------|------------------|-----------------------|--------------------|
|                |                  | Distribution          | Other † |
| Series A       | 1.59%            | 53%                   | 47%                |
| Advisor Series | 1.58%            | 54%                   | 46%                |
| Series F       | 0.65%            | —                     | 100%               |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Management fees for Series A and Advisor Series units represent the actual average management fee rate for the period ended December 31, 2018.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide high, regular monthly distributions, including dividends, realized capital gains, other income and a return of capital, without significant erosion of the net asset value of the Fund and providing for the potential of modest capital growth. The Fund invests primarily in units of other funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM (called “underlying funds”). The decision to invest in an underlying fund is based on the portfolio manager’s assessment of the market outlook and the underlying fund’s ability to help the Fund meet its stated investment objectives. Distributions will include interest income, dividends, capital gains and may also consist of return of capital.

The Fund’s target weightings for each asset class are 45% for fixed income and 55% for equities. The actual allocation to each asset class will not be more than 15% above or below its target weighting.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks associated with investing in various asset classes. These risks are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low-to-medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund’s overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund’s net asset value fell to $1.8 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $2.1 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund’s Series A units lost 4.3%, which underperformed the 2.8% fall in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 fell 8.9%. The Fund’s return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 3.80 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 46 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 9 cents per unit of dividends, 13 cents of capital gains and 24 cents of return of capital.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the “EU”), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Fund’s overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a positive impact on performance. Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the portfolio were boosted by the RBC Bond Fund and the RBC Canadian Short-Term Income Fund.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe early in 2018, and U.S. equities, which were quite resilient for most of the year, joined the sell-off in the fourth quarter. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada’s equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. Returns were held back by the RBC Canadian Dividend Fund and the Phillips, Hager & North Canadian Income Fund.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year’s rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.70%           | 59%                   | 41%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.70%           | 59%                   | 41%    |
| Series D       | 0.95%           | 26%                   | 74%    |
| Series F       | 0.70%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a tax-efficient monthly distribution consisting of dividend income, interest income and capital gains along with providing the potential for modest capital growth.

The Fund invests primarily in Canadian fixed-income securities, common shares, income trusts and similar higher-yielding investments. For fixed-income securities, the Fund targets a duration similar to the FTSE Canada Universe Bond Index. Stocks that qualify as investments will generally carry above-average dividend yields and offer the potential for increases in their payouts.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 60% for fixed income and 40% for equities. The target weightings for each asset class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $7.2 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $8.3 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.2%, which underperformed the 3.0% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of 4.25 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 51 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 14 cents per unit of interest, 17 cents of dividends, 3 cents per unit of capital gains and 17 cents of return of capital.

The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. In the Energy sector, a number of proposed crude-oil pipelines are stalled due to regulatory delays and/or the opposition of environmental activists. In the housing market, regulatory changes to mortgage underwriting have cooled housing activity. On the trade front, protectionism fears have eased following trade renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. In this environment of slowing growth, long-term Canadian federal bonds outperformed their short- and mid-term counterparts and corporate and provincial bonds of all maturities. The outperformance was not in line with investors' expectations.

In the equity portion of the Fund, relative performance was driven by security selection, led by the Fund's overweight position in Aritzia. The Canadian women's clothes retailer continued to post strong operating and sales results as it expands its presence in the U.S. Additionally, the Fund benefited from its overweight position in Loblaw. The food retailer reported strong results, particularly at its retail-drug division, Shoppers Drug Mart.

The headwinds facing the Canadian Energy sector were reflected in the Fund through its overweight position in PrairieSky Royalty. The company's share price slid amid a tough environment for western Canadian oil exploration and production businesses, from whom the firm collects royalties for the use of its land.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager's GDP growth for 2019 is below consensus but nevertheless represents a slight increase from the prior forecast thanks to the tentative resolution of trade negotiations. The portfolio manager expects the overall pace of interest-rate increases in Canada to lag that of the U.S. Economic competitiveness is a cause for concern because Canada's tax rates and regulatory and environmental framework are seen as less business-friendly than in the U.S. The federal government's recent decision to allow accelerated depreciation may help level the playing field.

The portfolio manager expects interest rates to rise marginally over the next 12 months because expectations for future economic growth have moderated. In the view of the portfolio manager, fixed-income markets will remain more volatile over the first few months of 2019 due to trade disputes, geopolitical risks, the sharp decline in oil prices and high levels of consumer debt. As a result, excess yields earned on corporate bonds over federal bonds, a sign of investor fear, will likely increase, in the view of the portfolio manager, until some of these risks begin to recede.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.00%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.00%           | 50%                   | 50%    |
| Series D       | 0.75%           | 20%                   | 80%    |
| Series F       | 0.60%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE (in USD)

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide regular U.S. dollar monthly income and modest capital growth.

The Fund invests primarily in U.S. government bonds, corporate fixed-income securities, asset-backed bonds and equity securities of U.S. companies. Investments may also include high-yield debt and U.S. dollar-denominated debt issued in emerging markets.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 60% for fixed income and 40% for equities. The target weightings for each asset class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $1.2 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $1.3 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.5%, which underperformed the 1.7% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 was unchanged, while the broad-based index 2 fell 4.4%.

The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

In 2018, the Fund made monthly distributions of approximately 2.90 cents per Series A unit. For the year, the Fund made total distributions of approximately 39 cents per Series A unit, consisting of 4 cents per unit of interest, 10 cents of dividend income and 25 cents of capital gains. The annual payout reflects an additional year-end distribution of 3.8 cents per Series A unit.

U.S. stocks fell overall in 2018 due to a significant pullback in the fourth quarter of the year. From April to September, U.S. stocks enjoyed a stretch of strong returns driven primarily by earnings growth. However, volatility emerged in October amid concern that rising interest rates would generate headwinds for economic and earnings growth. The recent market pullback has arguably priced in most apparent challenges, in the view of the portfolio manager, as reduced stock-market valuations mean that future returns will not be entirely reliant on earnings growth.

The equity portion of the Fund underperformed in 2018 given that the Fund is not permitted to invest in companies that do not pay dividends. During the year, it was non-dividend-paying companies such as Amazon, Netflix, Berkshire Hathaway and Adobe that generally outperformed. Overweight positions in the tobacco companies Altria Group and Philip Morris International also hurt performance. Philip Morris fell early in the year on weak earnings, largely driven by lower-than-expected sales of its smokeless product in Japan. Altria Group serves an entirely different market but was dragged down by Philip Morris's poor results.

The Fund's equity segment held up relatively well in the fourth quarter amid volatile markets. Exposure to companies and sectors that tend to fall less in a down market aided relative returns late in the year.

U.S. fixed-income assets struggled in 2018 as the combination of rising interest rates and uncertainty over global economic growth resulted in negative returns. The fixed-income portion of the Fund outperformed. Exposure to higher-quality companies helped offset the poor performance of the broader U.S. investment-grade market. Returns in emerging markets were also weak, but the Fund's limited exposure to weaker countries such as Argentina and Turkey helped results. Allocations to auto-parts companies and homebuilders hurt the performance of the high-yield bond holdings. Also holding back performance was an underweight position in mortgage-backed securities.

Recent Developments

While the portfolio manager's base case is for stocks to rise modestly over the next year, there are several scenarios that could lead to different outcomes. A policy mistake by the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") – raising interest rates too fast, for example – or an escalation of protectionist moves by the Trump administration, which could increase the costs of goods, are the most likely causes of a downturn, given the potential for both to stamp out the expansion, in the view of the portfolio manager. In the upside scenario, the expansion would remain intact through 2021, perhaps because the Fed soon pauses its plan to hike rates or the Trump administration reaches a trade agreement with China.

The Fed may slow the pace of interest-rate increases in 2019, given slower global economic growth and the impact of protectionism on the expansion. The Fund is currently overweight U.S. investment-grade bonds and U.S. Treasuries, while underweight in mortgage-backed securities. The Fund continues to favour high-quality non-government bonds to enhance the yield of the portfolio while keeping the Fund's overall maturity close to neutral.

Effective June 30, 2016, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees would have been in effect throughout 2016, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 1.65%, Advisor Series – 1.61%, Series D – 0.94% and Series F – 0.77%.

Management Fees

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.40%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.40%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series D       | 0.80%           | 19%                   | 81%    |
| Series F       | 0.65%           | —                     | 100%   |
| Series I       | 0.60%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE (in USD)

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide capital growth and modest income by investing in a mix of Canadian stocks and fixed-income securities.

The Fund is invested primarily in Canadian equities to provide capital growth and fixed-income securities to generate income. The Fund may also hold income-trust units, corporate bonds and foreign securities. Blending equities and fixed-income securities in a single portfolio provides investors with exposure to the upside potential of equity capital markets while taking advantage of the stability and frequently offsetting risk profile of bonds.

The portfolio manager's analysis of the economic outlook and capital market valuations and prospects determines the portion of the portfolio that will be invested in stocks and bonds. The composition of the portfolio holdings is adjusted as economic and capital market conditions warrant.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 45% for fixed income, 35% for Canadian equities, 10% for U.S. equities, 7% for international equities and 3% for emerging markets equities. The target weightings for each asset class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $4.9 billion as of December 31, 2018, from $5.7 billion at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 4.8%, which underperformed the 2.6% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4%. The broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. The Fund's returns were negatively affected by underweight exposure to federal debt, which outperformed.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe earlier in the year, and while U.S. equities had been quite resilient throughout most of 2018, they joined the declines later in the year. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. Returns were held back by security selection in the developed markets of Europe and Asia, offset by security selection in emerging markets and Canada.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year's rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund pursues long-term capital growth with a secondary focus on modest income. The Fund invests primarily in Canadian, U.S. and international equities and fixed-income securities. It may also invest in income trusts and may use derivatives.

The Fund uses a strategic asset-allocation approach that determines the appropriate asset mix with broad pre-established guidelines for each asset class, and adjusts the percentage of the Fund invested in each asset class as the market outlook changes.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 45% for fixed income, 19% for Canadian equities, 20% for U.S. equities, 12% for international equities and 4% for emerging-markets equities. The target weightings for each asset class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value fell to $670 million as of December 31, 2018, from $727 million at the end of 2017. The decrease was due to a combination of net redemptions and investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 3.1%, which underperformed the 1.1% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%.

The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

Funds that invest in a mix of stocks and bonds generally fell in 2018, although bonds tempered the equity declines.

Global stock markets fell early in 2018, and rebounded before plunging again late in the year, the result of steps taken by central banks to tighten monetary policy, in the case of the U.S. Federal Reserve, or preparing to do so, in the case of the European Central Bank. The worst of the declines were in international markets, with developed markets outside North America falling as much as 20%. Geopolitical tensions and trade concerns contributed to the decreases. In a sign of investor concern, sovereign-bond yields fell during the last few months of the year, generating modest returns that offset losses in corporate fixed income.

The Fund's performance was helped by a decision to expose the Fund's equity holdings to the impact of foreign currencies, and this shift paid off when the Canadian dollar plunged in the latter half of the year. Returns were held back by the underperformance of stocks in the developed markets of Europe and Asia.

The Fund continued to carry a modest overweight position in stocks and an underweight position in bonds. The bond weight was slightly increased during weakness early in the year. The Fund continued to hedge most of its fixed-income currency exposure.

Recent Developments

The Fund took some steps to reduce exposure to stock and non-government bond markets into the mid-part of 2018. There was wariness that stocks were becoming fully valued, and it was unlikely that expanding valuations would continue to drive stocks higher. The decline has made valuations of riskier assets more attractive, and the portfolio manager is looking to increase exposure to riskier assets assuming a recession does not unfold in 2019. For the foreseeable future, the portfolio manager does not expect yields on sovereign bonds to rise above the highs reached in 2018.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |
| Series A       | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Advisor Series | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series T5      | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series T8      | 1.85%           | 54%                   | 46%    |
| Series D       | 1.10%           | 23%                   | 77%    |
| Series F       | 0.85%           | —                     | 100%   |

Series O – no management fees are paid by the Fund with respect to Series O units. Series O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to RBC GAM for investment-counselling services.

* Includes all costs related to management, trustee, investment advisory services, general administration and profit.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund provides the potential for long-term capital growth, with a secondary focus on modest income, by investing primarily in Canadian, U.S. and international equities and fixed-income securities, either directly or indirectly through investment in other funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate of RBC GAM. The Fund follows a socially responsible approach to investing. Investments that qualify for inclusion in the Fund must possess strong environmental, social and governance practices relative to industry peers, as defined by Sustainalytics Best-of-Sector™ methodology.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 45% for fixed income, 19% for Canadian equities, 20% for U.S. equities and 16% for international equities. The target weightings may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $211 million as of December 31, 2018, from $188 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 1.5%, which underperformed the 1.1% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Fund's overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a neutral impact on performance. Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. The Fund's sole fixed-income holding, the RBC Vision Bond Fund, had a positive impact on performance.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe early in 2018, and U.S. equities, which were quite resilient for most of the year, joined the sell-off in the fourth quarter. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. Returns were held back by the RBC Vision Canadian Equity Fund, while the RBC Vision Global Equity Fund had a positive impact on performance.

Sustainalytics conducted one review covering the Fund's holdings in 2018. Eligibility was determined in relation to the Environmental, Social and Governance ("ESG") criteria developed by RBC GAM in consultation with Sustainalytics. In the opinion of Sustainalytics, all holdings in the Fund were eligible in the latest review, based on the above criteria. However, during the year, one company was removed from the Fund as it no longer met certain ESG criteria.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year's rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.

<sup>1</sup> The management expense ratio ("MER") is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. RBC GAM may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption by RBC GAM of certain operating expenses, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by RBC GAM.

Effective June 30, 2017, the management fees were changed in respect of Series A, Advisor Series, Series D and Series F units of the Fund and the administration fees were changed in respect of Series A units of the Fund. If the changes to the management fees and administration fees would have been in effect throughout 2017, the adjusted MER for each series of the Fund would be: Series A – 2.04%, Advisor Series – 2.03%, Series D – 1.20% and Series F – 0.93%.

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. Management fees of each series of the Fund are calculated at the annual percentages, before GST/HST, of the daily net asset value of each series of the Fund. The breakdown of the services received in consideration of the management fees for each series, as a percentage of the management fees, is as follows:

|                | Management Fees | Breakdown of Services |        |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|--------|
|                |                 | Distribution          | Other* |

| Series D       | 1.00%           | 25%                   | 75%    |
| Series DZ      | 0.75%           | 33%                   | 67%    |

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a combination of capital growth and modest income.

To achieve the objective, the Fund invests primarily in a diversified portfolio of income-producing equity and fixed-income securities anywhere in the world, either directly or indirectly, through investments in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate. The Fund may also invest in emerging-market equity securities and emerging-market government and corporate bonds.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 80% for fixed-income and 20% for equities. The target weightings for each class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks associated with investing in various asset classes. These risks are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $163 million as of December 31, 2018, from $155 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 2.4%, which underperformed the 0.3% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4% and the broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Fund's overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a negative impact on performance. Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. The portfolio benefited from exposure to the Phillips, Hager & North Total Return Bond Fund and the RBC Bond Fund.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe early in 2018, and U.S. equities, which were quite resilient for most of the year, joined the sell-off in the fourth quarter. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. The portfolio's performance was held back by allocations to the RBC Canadian Equity Income Fund and the RBC Emerging Markets Dividend Fund.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year's rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.

Management Fees

RBC GAM is the manager, trustee and portfolio manager of the Fund. ## PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a combination of capital growth and modest income by investing primarily in a diversified portfolio of income-producing equity and fixed-income securities from anywhere around the world either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate.

The Fund may invest in emerging-market equity securities and emerging-market government and corporate bonds.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 40% for fixed-income and 60% for equities. The target weightings for each class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks associated with investing in various asset classes. These risks are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds and individual securities. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low-to-medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value was $1.5 billion as of December 31, 2018, unchanged from the end of 2017.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 5.2%, which underperformed the 2.1% decline in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4%. The broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Fund's overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a negative impact on performance. Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the Fund benefited from an investment in the Phillips, Hager & North Total Return Bond Fund, offset by the negative impact of the RBC Global High Yield Bond Fund.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe early in 2018, and U.S. equities, which were quite resilient for most of the year, joined the sell-off in the fourth quarter. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. The positive impact of the Fund's U.S.-equity segment was more than offset by the negative effect of investments in other regions.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year's rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the Fund and would be lower if distributions were not reinvested. The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, optional charges or income taxes payable that would have reduced returns or performance. Past performance does not necessarily indicate how the Fund may perform in the future. A fund with more than 10 years of performance history is only permitted to disclose the past 10 years.

Year-by-Year Returns (%)

The bar chart indicates the Fund's performance for each of the years shown, and illustrates how the Fund's performance has changed from year to year. The bar chart shows, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on the first day of each financial year would have grown or decreased by the end of the financial year.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The Fund seeks to provide a combination of capital growth and modest income by investing primarily in a diversified portfolio of equity and fixed-income securities from anywhere around the world either directly or indirectly through investment in other mutual funds managed by RBC GAM or an affiliate. The Fund may also invest in emerging market equity securities, emerging market currencies and emerging market government and corporate bonds.

The Fund's target weightings for each asset class are 40% for fixed income and 60% for equities. The target weightings for each class may be adjusted based on changes in the market outlook for each asset class.

Risk

The Fund has multiple risks associated with investing in various asset classes. These risks are similar to the risks of investing in the underlying funds. The Fund is suitable for investors who plan to hold their investments for the medium-to-long term and can tolerate low-to-medium investment risk.

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period. The risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value rose to $247 million as of December 31, 2018, from $84 million at the end of 2017. The increase was due to net inflows, partially offset by investment losses.

Over the past year, the Fund's Series A units lost 2.0%, which underperformed the 0.1% rise in the benchmark. The broad-based index 1 rose 1.4%. The broad-based index 2 declined 8.9%. The Fund's return is after the deduction of fees and expenses, while benchmark and broad-based index returns do not include any costs of investing. See the Financial Highlights section for the management expense ratios and the Past Performance section for the returns of any other series, which may vary because of differences in management fees and expenses.

The big macroeconomic themes in 2018 were tightening financial conditions, rising protectionism and slowing global growth. Escalating trade conflicts, especially between the U.S. and China, and geopolitical uncertainty helped trigger global stock-market declines. In Europe, U.K. politicians failed to agree on terms by which the U.K. would leave the European Union (the "EU"), while in Italy the formation of a coalition government committed to higher spending led to bond- and equity-market volatility, as well as friction with the EU. In North America, protectionism fears eased following renegotiations culminating in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico agreeing to a trade deal that, if approved by U.S. Congress, would supplant the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Fund's overweight position in equities and underweight position in fixed income had a negative impact on performance. Canadian bond prices posted modest gains in 2018, outperforming U.S. Treasuries, as domestic yields were pressured lower by a weakening economic expansion and falling oil prices in the latter stages of 2018. These negatives, as well as rising global trade tensions, prompted the Bank of Canada, in December, to express reluctance at pushing forward with additional rate increases after hiking three times earlier in the year. The U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") boosted the federal funds rate four times in 2018, putting the benchmark short-term rate at its highest level since 2008, and continued scaling back its bond holdings. The European Central Bank began preparing investors for the possibility that it, too, might start gradually raising rates. Returns in the fixed-income segment of the Fund benefited from exposure to the RBC Global Bond Fund, partially offset by the negative impact of the RBC Global High Yield Bond Fund.

The sell-off in equities was led by emerging markets and Europe early in 2018, and U.S. equities, which were quite resilient for most of the year, joined the sell-off in the fourth quarter. The S&P/TSX Composite Index, Canada's equity benchmark, lagged many global markets in 2018 as a result of headwinds such as falling energy prices, poor competitiveness, a cooling housing market and trade uncertainty. Emerging markets underperformed developed markets as interest-rate hikes by the Fed and U.S. tax reform bolstered the U.S. dollar. Emerging markets have historically underperformed when the U.S. dollar strengthens. The portfolio's returns were bolstered by exposure to the RBC Global Dividend Growth Fund, offset by the negative impact of allocations to the RBC European Mid-Cap Equity Fund and the RBC U.S. Mid-Cap Value Equity Fund.

Recent Developments

The portfolio manager expects the trend of slowing global growth to continue into 2019. That said, further gradual tightening of monetary policy is expected, and rising rates could limit bond returns. The Fund remains underweight fixed income but the portfolio manager used last year's rise in yields to increase the bond allocation, as bonds can provide a cushion in an economic downturn. While the portfolio manager expects equity-market volatility to continue, stocks still offer superior return potential versus bonds, as long as earnings continue to grow as analysts expect. The Fund remains overweight equities, but exposure remains well below the peak earlier in the cycle.

Protectionism is arguably the largest macroeconomic risk today, although European politics, the U.S. government shutdown, possible central-bank-policy mistakes and troubles besetting specific emerging-market countries also threaten economic progress and investor confidence.
