

RBC Core Plus Bond Pool

Commentary as at June 30, 2021

A year into the pandemic, there was a sense that better times lay ahead as the first half of 2021 came to a close. By June, COVID-19 vaccines had reached at least half the population in many developed countries, notably the U.S. and the U.K., and were increasingly gaining traction in other nations, bolstering economic growth. As a result, the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) and Bank of Canada (the “BOC”) began to contemplate the potential need to tighten monetary policy.

Government-bond yields rose in most major developed markets during the first half of 2021, leading to declines in major fixed-income indexes. Bond yields climbed as the global economy started to emerge from pandemic lockdowns accompanied by concerns about rising inflation. As a result, the BOC began to pare huge asset-purchase programs aimed at supporting market liquidity and providing monetary stimulus.

Government of Canada bonds delivered their worst first-half return since 1994, underperforming their U.S. counterparts. The strong rebound in the Canadian economy prompted the BOC to further reduce its pace of bond buying to $3 billion per week from $4 billion. Meanwhile, the U.S. Federal Reserve signaled in June that a reduction in its own bond purchases would be forthcoming.

The Fund’s performance was negatively affected by exposure to the RBC Emerging Markets Foreign Exchange Fund, the RBC Global Bond Fund and the RBC Bond Fund.

The portfolio manager expects that most major central banks will hold interest rates steady for at least the next 12 months, or until the labor market recovery is more firmly and broadly established. Most central bankers view the current rise in inflation as temporary. Bond yields are therefore likely to be range-bound for the rest of the year as the post-pandemic bumps in growth and inflation are expected to cool.

This has been provided by RBC Global Asset Management Inc. (RBC GAM) and is for informational purposes only. It is not intended to provide legal, accounting, tax, investment, financial or other advice and such information should not be relied upon for providing such advice. Information obtained from third parties is believed to be reliable but RBC GAM and its affiliates assume no responsibility for any errors or omissions or for any loss or damage suffered. RBC GAM reserves the right at any time and without notice to change, amend or cease publication of the information. Some of the statements herein may be considered forward-looking statements which are not guarantees of future performance. Forward-looking statements involve inherent risk and uncertainties. Do not to place undue reliance on these statements as a number of important factors could cause actual results or events to differ materially from those described. All opinions constitute our judgment as of the dates indicated, are subject to change without notice and are provided in good faith without legal responsibility.

Please consult your advisor and read the prospectus or Fund Facts document before investing. There may be commissions, trailing commissions, management fees and expenses associated with mutual fund investments. Mutual funds are not guaranteed or covered by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation or by any other government deposit insurer. Mutual fund unit values change frequently. For money market funds, there can be no assurances that the fund will be able to maintain its net asset value per security at a constant amount or that the full amount of your investment in the fund will be returned to you. Past performance may not be repeated. RBC Funds, BlueBay Funds, PH&N Funds and RBC Corporate Class Funds are offered by RBC Global Asset Management Inc. and distributed through authorized dealers in Canada.