

PH&N Currency-Hedged Overseas Equity Fund

Commentary as at December 31, 2021

Global equities delivered solid returns to investors in 2021, with world economic growth rebounding after widespread COVID-19 vaccinations allowed economies around the world to reopen. Toward the end of the year, returns were limited by the emergence of a highly contagious coronavirus variant and the fastest inflation in decades driven by severe supply-chain disruptions and shortages of raw materials and workers, particularly in the U.S.

The year could be separated into four phases: it began with anticipation that COVID vaccinations would create a pathway back to a post-pandemic “normal.” This phase led to a “junk rally,” with hope returning to struggling business models and was a headwind for portfolio performance due to an underexposure to such businesses. Stocks exposed to an economic recovery, including energy equities, did especially well during this phase. A period ensued during which there was a renewed focus on company results, allowing portfolio performance to recover with good gains from stock selection.

As the year progressed, it became clear that supply-chain disruptions in the face of elevated demand were leading to price increases for many goods, sparking debate over whether inflation would be contained or spread more widely and rise to levels that would require interest-rate hikes. As the year drew to a close, the emergence of the new coronavirus variant, Omicron, added another source of uncertainty for investors, as they considered the likely size and duration of possible disruption.

The Fund’s performance benefited from positions in Deutsche Post, St. James’s Place and Croda International. Stocks that held back returns included Orsted, AIA Group and Neste.

The arrival of the new coronavirus variant has, for now, complicated the economic recovery and progress on what investors had assumed would be a decent amount of monetary tightening. Should the Omicron variant prove less harmful, it could mark an important step toward the virus becoming endemic and less economically threatening.

However, should Omicron prove difficult to manage, we would likely see the reappearance of restrictive government policies that would have a negative impact on corporate profitability.

Whichever scenario emerges, the sub-advisor continues to believe that investors’ interests will be best served by owning strong and sustainable businesses. Such businesses are likely to benefit from competitive advantages that enable them to maintain profit margins and capture the opportunities arising from the changing business environment.

This has been provided by RBC Global Asset Management Inc. (RBC GAM) and is for informational purposes, as of the date noted only. Discussion of any securities in this report is not a recommendation to buy or sell any specific security, and is subject to change. It is not intended to provide legal, accounting, tax, investment, financial or other advice and such information should not be relied upon for providing such advice. RBC GAM takes reasonable steps to provide up-to-date, accurate and reliable information, and believes the information to be so when provided. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Interest rates, market conditions, tax rulings and other investment factors are subject to rapid change which may materially impact analysis that is included in this document. You should consult with your advisor before taking any action based upon the information contained in this document. All opinions constitute our judgment as of the dates indicated, are subject to change without notice and are provided in good faith without legal responsibility. Information obtained from third parties is believed to be reliable but RBC GAM and its affiliates assume no responsibility for any errors or omissions or for any loss or damage suffered. RBC GAM reserves the right at any time and without notice to change, amend or cease publication of the information.

Please consult your advisor and read the prospectus or Fund Facts document before investing. There may be commissions, trailing commissions, management fees and expenses associated with mutual fund investments. Mutual funds are not guaranteed or covered by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation or by any other government deposit insurer. Mutual fund unit values change frequently. For money market funds, there can be no assurances that the fund will be able to maintain its net asset value per security at a constant amount or that the full amount of your investment in the fund will be returned to you. Past performance may not be repeated. RBC Funds, BlueBay Funds, PH&N Funds and RBC Corporate Class Funds are offered by RBC Global Asset Management Inc. and distributed through authorized dealers in Canada.

This document may contain forward-looking statements about a fund or general economic factors which are not guarantees of future performance. Forward-looking statements involve inherent risk and uncertainties, so it is possible that predictions, forecasts, projections and other forward-looking statements will not be achieved. We caution you not to place undue reliance on these statements as a number of important factors could cause actual events or results to differ materially from those expressed or implied in any forward-looking statement. All opinions in forward-looking statements are subject to change without notice and are provided in good faith but without legal responsibility.