Commentary as at June 30, 2019

The S&P/TSX Composite Index joined other global equity markets in rebounding from declines recorded in late 2018. A number of macroeconomic developments continue to be the focus for equity investors, including the outlook for global trade, the path and pace of global economic growth, and their combined impact on corporate earnings. The uncertain economic backdrop has resulted in central banks moving to a more cautious approach on monetary policy, which has supported equity valuations.

In the Consumer Discretionary sector, positions in Dollarama and Real Matters aided the Fund's returns during the first half of 2019. A small overweight position in the Financials sector also helped performance, with Element Fleet Management contributing significantly to relative returns.

In the Industrials sector, returns were held back by an overweight position in SNC-Lavalin. However, Badger Daylighting and Boyd Group Income Fund, which are also in the Industrials sector, had a positive impact on performance. In the Information Technology sector, the absence of Shopify in the portfolio hurt returns.

Canada's economic outlook reflects slowing U.S. growth, trade uncertainty, moderating housing activity and competitiveness concerns. There is also considerable pressure on the Canadian energy sector due to the continuously challenging environment for the production and transportation of crude oil. On a positive note, job creation in Canada has been accelerating at a swift pace. Overall, the portfolio manager expects below average economic growth in Canada over the next year.
