

RBC O'Shaughnessy U.S. Value Fund (Unhedged)

Investment Objective

To provide long-term total returns, consisting of capital growth and current income. The fund invests primarily in equity securities of U.S. companies based on Strategy Indexing®, an investment portfolio management model developed in 1995 by Jim O'Shaughnessy. Strategy Indexing is a rigorous and disciplined approach to stock selection based on characteristics associated with above average returns over long periods of time. Stocks, including American Depositary Receipts (ADRs), are bought and held over the course of each year, with no attempt to "time the markets".

Commentary as at June 30, 2019

The S&P 500 Index outperformed most other developed equity markets during the first half of 2019, and Canadian equities recorded strong returns during the period as measured by the S&P/TSX Composite Index. Commodity prices, including oil and gold, appreciated during the period, and the Canadian dollar strengthened versus the U.S. dollar.

Underweight exposure to mega-capitalization stocks aided returns, while an overweight to inexpensive stocks held back performance during the period. Shareholder yield, the key selection factor in the strategy, had a negative impact on returns.

Sector allocation had a positive impact on returns while stock selection had a negative impact. An underweight position in the Health Care sector and an overweight position in Information Technology aided performance. An underweight allocation to the Real Estate sector held back returns. Security selection in the Financials sector was a large positive for returns. Stock selection in the Information Technology, Industrials and Consumer Staples sectors hurt returns. Ameriprise Financial, Ally Financial and Voya Financial were the top individual contributors to portfolio performance. Amgen, Citrix Systems and Kroger negatively affected performance.

The Fund decreased allocations to the Consumer Staples and Energy sectors during the period and increased allocations to the Health Care and Industrials Sector.
