Commentary as at June 30, 2019

Canadian bonds recorded solid returns in the first half of 2019, joining a global rally led by fixed-income markets in the U.S. and Europe. Concerns about a slowdown in the global economic expansion and worsening trade tensions prompted major central banks to shift to a preference for lower interest rates after having indicated that rates would rise for most of last year. The yield on Canada's 10-year government yield dropped about ½ percentage point during the period, while the Bank of Canada (the "BOC") left its benchmark interest rate at 1.75%. Meanwhile, the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") acknowledged the threats to the economic outlook and indicated a willingness to lower short-term interest rates to support the economy. The European Central Bank (the "ECB") in June affirmed its readiness to stimulate borrowing if the economic outlook further deteriorates.

Provincial and corporate bonds outperformed Government of Canada securities, with longer-term provincial bonds boasting double-digit gains. A significant allocation to non-government bonds contributed to the Fund's performance. Especially helpful were holdings of investment-grade-corporate, higher-yield-corporate and emerging-market debt.

The portfolio manager believes that any further significant decline in yields will require an even weaker outlook for growth and trade, or the outbreak of war between the U.S. and Iran. The risk of a near-term recession remains low, in the view of the portfolio manager, and any signs of economic stabilization and/or an easing in trade tensions could push yields sharply higher and lead to sharp declines in bond prices.

As a result, the portfolio manager expects higher-than-normal financial-market volatility in the second half of 2019 given that investors are divided on the outlook for economic growth and financial markets. The portfolio manager has increased the Fund's cash holdings and is reducing exposure to assets perceived as having higher risks.
