Commentary as at June 30, 2019

The S&P/TSX Composite Index joined other global equity markets in rebounding from declines recorded in late 2018. A number of macroeconomic developments continue to be the focus for equity investors, including the outlook for global trade, the path and pace of global economic growth, and their combined impact on corporate earnings. The uncertain economic backdrop has resulted in central banks moving to a more cautious approach on monetary policy, which has supported equity valuations.

The Materials sector was the largest contributor to the Fund's performance during the first half of 2019, largely driven by a position in Barrick Gold. In the Financials sector, the Fund's overweight position in Element Fleet Management significantly bolstered returns.

Positions in the Industrials sector held back performance, with the Fund's holding in SNC-Lavalin hurting returns over the period. The Fund's position in ARC Resources also had a negative impact on performance.

Looking forward, Canada's economic outlook reflects slowing U.S. growth, trade uncertainty, moderating housing activity and competitiveness concerns. There is also considerable pressure on the Canadian energy sector due to the continuously challenging environment for the production and transportation of crude oil. On a positive note, job creation in Canada has been accelerating at a swift pace. Overall, the portfolio manager expects below average economic growth in Canada over the next year.
